EXCHANGE NEEDED

Iroquois Indians at St. Regis (Two men out about 20,000 head each hunting deer a year. At end of the United States last month are sold in England where licence is a popular game in girls' school.

Daniel Boone was only 5 feet eight inches. His strength and en durance were questioned. Once he escaped from Indians by leaping from a 60 foot cliff into a treetop. Another time he ran 800 miles in 10 days warning surveying parties of Indians on the warpath. He claimed thousands of acres of land, but because of faulty titles, kept only 850 acres. He volunteered for the War of 1812 though he was 70 years old.

Natives Peoples From North Asia

Canada's native peoples the Eskimos and Indians are believ ed to have come to this country in pre-historic times from northern Asia. While most of the Eskimos today live north of the tree line on the coasts of the mainland or the islands of the Arctic Archipelago and Hudson Bay about 2,000 years ago the ancestors of all our present Es kimos are thought to have lived among the forests north of Lake Superior.

The 1951 census placed the Es kimo population at 9,491 and the population of Indian origin at 155,874. The first census of Can ada was taken in 1666 and show ed 4,115 inhabitants exclusive of aborigines. The peaks of growth of the national population have coincided with the American Revolution, the Irish famine, the building of the Canadian Pacific ways, and the opening of the West.

The greatest expansion occur red in the first years of this century as the wheat growing possibilities of the West became known and as the railroads buil ding at the rate of nearly three miles a day in all the years from 1900 to 1914 made possible the fuller development of the coun try.

PETREA

Some petrels feed as far as 100 miles off the coast of Maine and never come to land except to nest. They avoid the mainland because their burrows are vul nerable to predatory animals

Rescue, Communications Course is Planned Soon

Immediately after the first of the year rescue and communic ations courses will begin in Mil ton for all those interested, spon sored by the Halton County Em ergency Measures Organization.

The rescue course will consist of lectures and training in the various uses of wire, rope, chain, knots, levers and jacks in rescue operation, the uses of tackle, hold fasts, and how to construct temporary shoring. Part of the course will include methods of building construction. To obtain a certificate upon having com pleted the training series, it is mandatory to have successfully completed a first aid course. Em ergency Measures Co-ordinator Bruce McGregor said they intend to include a St. John first aid course in the program.

Course instructor will be I. A. Thorne who has completed train ing at the Civil Defence College in Ampton.

At the same time, a communi cations course will be training people in the use of radio tele phone equipment leading to an R.T. restricted operator's certif icate. After the initial course the E.M.O. will set up HAM radio equipment for continued train ing. If anyone is interested in progressing still further, says the E.M.O. co-ordinator the members may go on to learn how to op erate still more powerful equip ment.

"We already have a number of people from Oakville signed up for the courses, and also sever al postmen," reported the co-ord inator, "so you can see that any body who is interested is sign ing up." Mr. McGregor asks any one who is interested to contact him at his office, Main St., Mil ton.

Canada Ranks Seventh in Steel

Canada ranking seventh in the world in the production of steel has had in the period since just prior to World War II the great est proportionate increase in steel production capacity of any of the world's major steel pro ducers. At January 1, 1958, Can ada's steel furnaces had a rated ingot capacity of 5,927,000 net tons per annum, an increase of 76 per cent over one year earlier and of 241 per cent over six years earlier.

In the period since 1950 the expansion programs completed or underway at the primary steel mills located at Hamilton and Sault Ste. Marie, Ontario and Sydney, Nova Scotia, have cost about $940,000,000. Some measure of the industry's future is indi cated by the estimate of The Steel Company of Canada that on its Hamilton mills alone it will have to spend up to $1 billion for expansion over the next 20 years.

Despite the remarkable growth of domestic production, Canada imports steel from the United States, the United Kingdom, Eur ope and Japan. Because of the comparatively small population of Canada, the country uses rela tively few of the enormous var iety, kinds, sizes and shapes of steel.

"WELL, DAD! Whose present is this anyway?" could be the caption for this picture taken this week during school Christmas holidays. Tom Watson and son David were caught as they gassed up the motor of an airplane for a flight. Children are spending their holidays in many ways with some skating, sleighing or playing with brand new toys.
