Finish the Job . .

The first steps in a program to "finish the job" were taken at a meeting last Friday morning of the Communuity Centre Fund raising committee. After consideration of the work still to be done to finish the proect completely, the committee decided it would be best to attempt to have the pledges continued for an extra two months. In the financial report of the campaign and building program, it has been established there will be a deficit of over $4,000. This amount is almost exactly the amount of the pledges which have not been honored.

With an objective of $10,000 it is felt this deficit can be wiped out, a concrete floor laid in the arena, and the finishing touches put on the project.

To raise the $10,000 it can be done by continuing the pledge deduction for an additional two months, ash contributors are

THE GOOD OLD DAYS

Back in 1912

Taken from the issue of the Free Press, Thursday, April 25, 1912. Assessor Harvey has completed the work of assessment and the new roll for 1912, while being comprehensive, is also a work of art. It is most legible, clean and well arranged. The total assessment is $454,345, over $6,000 more than last year. There are 471 children of school age in town. The births last year numbered 50 and the deaths 13. There are 64 dogs in town.

While felling a tree in his bush one day last week, Mr. Hugh Mc-Cutcheon of Erin had a narrow escape. A beech limb from another tree fell and struck him on the back of the head, knocking him senseless. Andrew Murray Jr., his brother-in-law, was with him and helped him up and he soon recovered consciousness. His back and arms were painfully bruised. It was a narrow es-

Eight men and boys were up before the magistrate in Guelph on Monday for bicycling on the pavement. Similar offenses in will land offenders in court, too, one of these fine days. There is no reason why the women and children should have to be dodging this means of transportation.

Constable Harvey has it in for the newsboys who throw the wrappers of their bundles on the street as they come from the evening trains. They are easily detected as their names are always printed on the wrappers.

About six o'clock Sunday evening in Georgetown, a light engine following a cattle train crashed into the rear end when the train had stopped at the semaphore at the white bridge. Eight men in the caboose were hurled forward at the impact of the engine. Six of them jumped to safety. However, the brakeman was pinned in the wreckage and met immediate death, and a drover, although remaining conscious for some time, was fatally injured.

The rumor that pupils attending the High and Continuation school in Guelph would be charged full fare on the railways turns out to be a canard. The order only pertains to students attending colleges and universities.

Also relative to our way of living was a story, "The Red Silk Dress" by Miss Beth McEnery. Arising from these two items was an interesting discussion. #### Let's Play Bridge By Bill Coats

It has been stated that 40 per cent of the contracts played in contract bridge are made or broken on the opening lead. I think that 40 per cent is a little high, but I would agree that many contracts can be set with the right lead, or made on the wrong lead

What to lead is a problem that confronts every bridge player from the novice to the expert. It will depend on what you hold and whether partner has bid and whether the contract is in suit or no trump.

The lead of a singleton should not be made just because it is a singleton. A singleton can be led when you have little trump that can be used to ruff and if you think that the contract can be made if you don't get these ruffs.

In today's hand, a singleton ruined declarer.

Declarer was reasonably pleased when she saw dummy. Only three aces to lose and the contract was hers. But East soon put an end to her dreams. The ace of Clubs won the first trick and the seven was led back for a ruff by West. Note that seven of clubs. When you are giving your partner a ruff, you can indicate in which suit you may be able to regain the lead.

A high card calls for the lead of the highest suit other than trump. A low card calls for the lead of the lowest suit other than trump. So East's seven of Clubs says, 'Please lead back a Spade, partner: I can get the lead and give you another ruff." This West did and declarer went down two tricks on the singleton lead.

Bridge Tip: The singleton lead is good if you are short of high cards. The partner should be able to get the lead and give you a ruff. The singleton lead is not good if you have lots of high cards, for then partner is not likely to get the lead to give you a ruff.

A good defense really shows that "Bridge is a partnership house, it was about 12 feet high. Every spring, I tried to figure out a way of trimming it, and every spring it was a foot higher. Then the maples and spruce started growing up through the cedar, and it was so pretty I just let it go. It must be 20 feet high by now. "But, if I wanted to thin it, I'll bet I could get some good timber out of there . . ."

Next part of my annual inspecion was the cellar. I'd go down there ready for anything. And that's just what I'd find in itanything from a beaver pond to potatoes right out of the cellar floor. I used to pick up a shovel, move some ashes from here .to there, then get absorbed in restuffing the broken window with a burlap sack and finally head upstairs, muttering, "If a fellow could just get somebody to take those ashes out of there . . . "

There were dozens of other little jobs to plan: painting the trim; putting up that section of fence the kids knocked down three Hallowe'ens back; putting new panes in the storm windows; tearing down the leaky drain pipes. Each of them took careful, accurate figuring on time involved, and money for materials.

And you know, I miss all that, There's something about that good, old spring tour of inspection that is vital and satisfying It just makes you want to get right at things and plan them. After years of planning, this year I feet like a gentleman farmer without a farm I never got around to doing any of those jubs around the vid place.
