

460 GALLONS of water per minute dashed from this pipe at the bottom of one of the two new hibernation garden reservoir tanks on Churchfield Road North Tuesday when the tank was filled for testing. Shown at the pipe is town workman Sam Tennant. Water level in the reservoirs is controlled by a pressure system which feeds the demand pumps on automatically. Work on the excavation for the reservoir system began May 6.

1963 OLDSMOBILE An entirely new roof line is the chief characteristic of the 1963 Oldsmobile Dynamic 88 Holiday Sedan shown here. It's one of six Dynamic 88 models, which include two sedans, a coupe, two station wagons and a convertible. All the new full-size Oldsmobiles are restyled throughout and feature an optional 324 V-8 adjustable steering wheel and improved safety features. Each of the regular size Oldsmobile series - Dynamic 88, Super 88, 98 and Starfire - has its own distinguishing side chrome trim. All Dynamic 88 models are powered by the famous 280 horsepower Rocket engine or a 260 horsepower version for use with regular grade gasoline.

Interview Two Men For Arena Position

Parks Board members held a brief session Monday evening when they interviewed two applicants for the position of arena worker.

Last week the board received five applications for the position and selected two men for interviews. Monday evening James Jasamine of Newmarket and Arthur Baird, Acton, were present to discuss their experience and potential with members. No selection has been made to date and board members are expected to meet again this week.

WHAT DID THE EARLY CHRISTIANS BELIEVE?

This short study will be of continuing interest to every honest heart bewitched by the babel of religious voices on every side. To answer the question let us quote from that monumental work "The Decline & Fall of the Roman Empire" by the historian Gibbon, a work recognized everywhere as the most accurate and valuable chronicle of Roman times. Gibbon wrote as follows:

The ancient and popular doctrine of the millennium was summed up succinctly in the second coming of Christ. As the work of the Christians had been finished in six days, then duration of creation, according to a tradition which was admitted by the apostle Paul, Earth was fixed to six thousand years. But as the end of it was now almost elapsed, was there still time left for a joyful Sabbath of a thousand years? And did Christ, with the triumphant band of the saints and martyrs, who had espoused death or who had been born again, remain upon earth till the time appointed for the final and general restoration?

This simple and clear statement was carefully mentioned in the earliest writings of Justin Martyr and Irenaeus, so far back with the immediate disciples of the apostle Paul, the first Christians who was the preceptor to the school of Corinth. The belief might not be universally received, but it may have been the reigning sentiment of the early Christians. It may also have been adapted to the desires and aspirations of the people of that time. It must have contributed greatly to the rapid and general progress of the Christian faith.

The second and third century church was at first divided in a definite category, was considered by degrees as a DANGEROUS AND HERETIC OPINION and was at length rejected. THE ABSurd INVENTION OF HERESY AND PANACHEISM.

The third and fourth century, with instruction! It exhibits an attempt to reconcile the old and new name in relation to divine revelation, and to show the evolution of error. The people could not believe that they had then considered doubtful and heretical, and that they were an absurd invention. The author of the book, however, of the immortality of the soul, who also believes in the resurrection of the body, and the gates of heaven, going and eternal torment, makes it clear why the church rejected the doctrine of the millennium as the absurd invention of heretics. Like Paul, we do not hesitate to say, "After the way which they call heresy, even though the God of my fathers, believing all things which are written in the law and in the prophets. And have been satisfied that there shall be a restoration of the dead, both of the just and the unjust." (Acts 24: 14-15)
