Good Y's Man Subject of Talk

He described a good Y's Man; he must believe 100 per cent in the beliefs of Y'sdom and be 100 per cent behind the projects. Projects are not a chore, he declared, but a service to someone less fortunate. "We are best to ourselves when we are best to others."

Sunshine School

Conduct Tour for Parents

The night for which parents of North Halton's mentally retarded children have been waiting for so long actually became a reality last week. Despite bad weather, many parents gathered at the new Sunshine School for Retarded Children located on the Seventh Line at Hornby. Mrs. Velma Kennedy, chairman of the Education Committee, chaired the meeting for the evening.

In his remarks, G. G. Addison, president of the North Halton Association, advised that this would be the first opening, that because of limited space and there are too many friends in North Halton to accommodate at the school at one time, an official opening had been arranged for November 3 and 4. It was only fitting he said, that parents of the children be the first to see the school.

Break Down Cost
A breakdown of cost given by Mr. Addison revealed $41,000 for the building, $2,000 for land and approximately $4,000 for furnishings, giving a total of $47,000. One third of the building costs being provided by the Department of Education, the balance collected through public subscription. It is quite evident from the foregoing, he said, that people in North Halton feel strongly enough to invest this kind of money in citizens less fortunate than themselves. He pointed out there are now 16 pupils attending the school.

Mr. Addison then took parents through the school, describing the function of each room visited. He advised that before plans were placed on the drawing board, a total of 16 schools had been visited to ensure incorporation of all the latest features for this type of school, the general theme to be a home away from home, so essential in the training of these children. Each classroom had its own clothes rack to promote tidiness.

A feature of the senior classroom, which adjoins the principal's office, is a one way glass window to facilitate observation by doctors, psychiatrists, teacher, etc. The Junior room featured half round tables which when put together would promote the family togetherness spirit. Younger members of the school are housed in a room adjoining the household science room. The household science room is in fact a model kitchen and it is planned to have pupils prepare at least one hot meal per week. The work shop was not yet complete, a work bench and more tools being the chief requirements.

Parents went outside to see play equipment, valued at $500, which had been donated by an anonymous group from the three townships. Mr. Addison advised that as the school is not large enough to have an infirmary, a bed was available in case of emergency and also served for bed making instructions for pupils. The grooming room boasted a bath in addition to a wash basin. Parents were advised that hair dressing sessions had already taken place with great success.

Auction Boosts Rotary's Funds

Bids went high when the Rotary Club raised $207 at an auction during their dinner dance Tuesday at the Halton Golf and Country Club. The striking items had been sent from Rotary clubs all over the world. They included a rug from Italy, which went for over $20, a tablecloth sold at $17 and Puerto Rican vase at $17.50. Down the scale were socks and coffee, with many lovely articles in between.

Jack Elliott was auctioneer for the club members, their wives and guests. President Tom Shields welcomed the guests to the filet mignon dinner and Paul Nielsen explained the purpose of the auction. Funds raised will assist in providing a building for overseas students at the University of Toronto. There were corsages for all the ladies. Dancing was to the music of The Manhattan.

Mrs. V. Kennedy, speaking on behalf of the Education Committee, then stated she hoped parents liked the homelike atmosphere and school setting. "This was all planned for your children, we call them our children," she said. "We are convinced that retarded children should be given the same opportunities as any other child in the community."

Mrs. R. P. E. Jeffares, Principal of the Sunshine School, then spoke briefly on the school curriculum and general aim in the teaching of retardates. She advised that if a child is not neat and clean he will immediately attract attention, that for a retarded child to be self sufficient in grooming and bearing, to attain as high an academic standard as his capabilities will allow, is the greatest achievement a parent can expect. Mrs. Jeffares reminded parents that the school belonged to them as much as the children and welcomed any comments, complaints or ideas, and called for complete co-operation between parents and teacher.

Parents were then asked to join their child's teacher for group discussions, following which refreshments were served. These refreshments, it was learned, had been prepared by senior pupils that afternoon.
