Disappointing $360 For Brigade's Appeal

How many in Acton benefit from St. John's Ambulance?

In every factory with over 20 employees, there must be a team of first aid men. Most of these men in town have had St. John's training.

Think of the dozens who have taken their courses.

Think of the hundreds who have been protected by the big gear at the park. Recall fairly good attendance at concerts, parties and games and any large gathering.

Act the current drive for $1,000 for the Acton brigade has brought in just $360 so far. Despite a letter to every household, letters and visits to industries and clubs on business.

Chairman Paul Neilson expressed this week the disappointment and surprise of those involved. They had expected the work of the brigade to be appreciated. Some out-of-town appeals which brought far lower returns have far greater returns.

Businessmen have shown the most interest so far.

Why?

Donations may still be left with campaign treasurer Chester Anderson at the Bank of Nova Scotia.
