

Let's Play Bridge

BY BILL COATE

One of the most difficult ideas in bridge for a person to get used to is that bridge is a partnership game. Far too many bridge players can only think how good their hand is and what has part-got to help them.

Too few bridge players picture their hand as dummy and think how their hand can help their partner. It is almost a pleasure to get a bottom on a board when the opponents use this type of co-operation.

This is Board No. 12 from last week's duplicate bridge game at the Acton Bridge Club.

West has a reasonable third hand opener, which North doubts. This is a "takeout" double. It requests partner to bid his best suit. Once East enters the auction, South can pass. East's bid is really just a no-super bid. It does not show any particular strength.

When West raises to two no-trump, North doubles again. This time, the double is for penalty, but East runs out to three clubs. When this gets back to North, there is another double. This double is also penalty, but can be taken out. At no time does North mention his best suit—diamonds. When South takes the double out to three spades, North can picture a hand that cannot stand three clubs doubled. South must have length in spades.

North's hand is a very nice dummy for South, where as South's hand is almost useless as dummy for North. Again, a club lead, declarer does not have too much trouble making four spades.

The club is won in dummy and a diamond is led. South's trick loses to West's ace. The club continuation is ruffed and a trump is led. The trump finesse should be taken since West is marked with most of the high cards. This loses, but South can handle any return and by leading a low trump from dummy, he can drop the ace of trump.

The hand can be set by the double dummy play of forcing declarer with clubs, but this is not likely to happen in actual play. When the hand was played, three Norths ended up in diamonds. I would assume that they

CVCA Opposed to Oil Drilling in Lakes

The Credit Valley Conservation Authority has protested offshore drilling for oil in Ontario lakes. They fear pollution.

Meeting at Terra Cotta recently, the Authority agreed to forward their objections to Ontario's Economics Minister and to other authorities in the province.

R. F. Hardy of Hornby said the possibility of drilling in Lake Huron, as was done in Lake Erie, had been suggested.

"If we are truly interested in trying to keep our lakes and rivers clean, we will go on record as opposed," Mr. Hardy said. "We have plenty of gas and oil in the province at this time. There is no emergency about it."

PERFECT COMBO

Today's typical teenager is a person who mistakes a combination of loud noises and lousy lyrics for a song.

Junior Farmers Name Officers

Halton Junior Farmers' Association held their annual meeting at the office of the Ontario Department of Agriculture, Milton, on February 19 at 8:15 p.m.

Retiring president Fred Barnes called the meeting to order and acted as chairman. Reports from each of the following retiring executive members were presented and adopted: Lillian Fine, secretary; Kay Sepsworthy, treasurer; and Ed Sepsworthy, county director.

The major award in the Halton Juniors' year is the Inter-Club Scoring championship. The clubs are scored on their participation in the various county activities by a committee from the county organization. Bill Wilson, chairman of this committee, announced the high scoring club this year as Norval Junior Farmers.

The results of the 1963-64 election of officers were as follows: past president, Fred Barnes; Georgetown; president, Joe Hayes, Acton R.R. 1; first vice-president, Joe Love, Burlington; second vice-president, Lillian Fine, Hornby R.R. 1; secretary, Diane Wingleworth, George Town RR 2; treasurer, Marion Hunter, Burlington R.R. 1; council director, Ed Sepsworthy, Burlington; press reporter, Marilyn Wingleworth, Georgetown and interclub scoring, Fred Barnes, Georgetown.

J. Allen Francis, Agricultural representative, addressed the meeting on "Effective Communications." Several demonstrations were used to show some of the ways that people misunderstand one another in organizational work.
