WM. A. GIBSON,

who drinks temperately and is a first-time offender, according to figures released this week from the Department of Reform Institutions. In their annual report covering the year ending March 31, 1963, the Department lists all the vital information concerning the County jail in Milton, into which 602 prisoners were committed.

During the year, jail expenses totalled $57,161.85, including $51,345 for salaries, $2,105 for clothing, fuel and ordinary maintenance and $2,911.77 for food, as well as $79.26 for repairs, alterations and additions. The average cost per prisoner per day was $10.08.

Jail Officials
Salary costs included those for jailor J. G. Ryder, chief matron Mrs. E. G. Ryder, jail surgeon Dr. C. K. Stevenson and other jail officials.

During the year, the 602 prisoners spent a total of 5,672 days in jail. It accommodates 28 men and three women and the average daily jail population was 15.5 prisoners per day. At the peak capacity during the year, there were 28 men and three women locked up and once during the year there were as few as four men and no women in jail.

Fines were paid by 257 prisoners (247 men), while 31 persons were placed on probation (28 men), and 51 were suspended without probation (49 men).

Mostly Laborers
Of the 602 persons committed, 216 were classed as laborers, 77 worked on construction, 65 were mechanics, 58 worked in transportation, and 31 held commercial positions. Other occupations listed on the chart include: agriculture workers 16, clerks 11, domestics 26, one man who listed his occupation under "Fishing, Trapping and Logging", 27 in manufacturing, one in mining, 10 in personal services; one professional; one without an occupation and 61 others.

The fact that unmarried men get into more trouble than do married men, was substantiated by the 315 unmarried men who were committed to jail. Only 257 married men were committed, while 13 unmarried women and 17 married women were also committed.

No Difference

The difference between those with elementary education and those with advanced education, made very little difference according to the chart for the County jail. While 321 prisoners had elementary education, 281 had advanced education.

First-time offenders were far ahead in the criminal history chart, with 503 entering jail for the first time. Second-time offenders totalled 31, third time 22 and over 3 times, 44. Only one woman was classed as not being a first-time offender, and she was returning in the over three times category.

The "Movement of the Jail Population Chart" shows 113 prisoners were acquitted and released, 257 paid fines instead of staying in jail; 51 were released on probation; 10 were released for other reasons; 72 were transferred to other institutions; and 64 were discharged on expiration of sentence.

These figures are compiled from the 602 prisoners committed during the year, plus seven who remained in custody on remand March 31, 1962, six who remained in custody on unexpired sentences and 26 who were readmitted from bail after being released on bail during the previous year, making a grand total of 641 who made use of County Jail facilities during the year.
