

A Precious Example . . .

For days the world watched anxiously, sharing a mutual concern, as a great man slowly passed from our midst.

The death of Sir Winston Churchill was expected daily as regular bulletins from his home reflected his weakening condition. When it came it knifed off an age through which he had personified the determination of the British people in war. The phrases he coined, the spirit with which he said them, will live on in history for they became rallying points for the free world in time of its most serious crisis.

While he was an inventor, an artist, a diplomat, an historian, a reporter, a soldier, a politician, a bricklayer, he was above all a leader.

As one editorial writer said "It was when he clothed the spirit of free men in words and marched those words against the greatest armed might the world had yet known, that he proved what free men must believe if freedom is to survive, that the spirit is always stronger, in the end, than any weapon."

The state funeral accorded this great man of our times will be attended by world leaders. In his death all will reflect on the greatness of a man who can draw together heads of state, and who can touch the common man with a sense of loss. What a tremendous image he leaves behind. What a magnificent use of one life in the service of his fellow men.

Queen Elizabeth's well chosen words of sympathy to Lady Churchill noted "The whole world is poorer by the loss of his many-sided genius, while the survival of this country and the sister nations of the Commonwealth in the face of the greatest danger that has ever threatened them, will be a perpetual memorial to his leadership, his vision and his indomitable courage."

While we lament his going, we must not forget how much has been given and what a precious example is left.

Sugar and Spice . . .

BY BILL SMILEY

Is there anything siller than an old soldier? Well, a minute, Jack. I don't mean honest veterans like you and me, who fought our war, then forgave and forgot. No, I mean the professionals, and, especially, the generals.

My feelings toward the top brass were rekindled recently when General Omar Bradley took a swing from out in left field at General Montgomery, claiming Monty had been too slow and too scared to close the Falaise Gap when he should have twenty years after the event, the old boys are still bickering.

I didn't blame Bradley much. Montgomery has been barking every other general, ever since the war ended, for everything that went wrong. Apparently he was the only big shot who was always right.

And that reminds me of the silliest thing Montgomery ever said. It was a few years ago, during an interview. It was to the effect that he likes to see soldiers soaking wet, hungry, filthy and exhausted. Then he knows they have been soldiering. That sort of poppycock is fairly typical of the intelligence of a general.

This may have been true during the Kaiser's war. Old sweat, wet, lice, slim rations and exhaustion. But their troubles were all physical. They were being blown up, or sniped, or caught on the barbed wire, or gassed.

or eaten alive by rats. They didn't face the psychological horrors of my war.

It was sheer hell, at times, for us pilots, especially if we were officers. Even today after two decades trying to heal the scars, memory of those ordeals sends a cold shudder through me.

Sometimes, for example, the batman would forget to put sugar in the morning tea he brought when he wakened you. But you never complained. You drank it down stoically, without a whimper.

Another experience that left its mark on many of us was the time they took the batman off altogether and substituted WAAs for them. Some of the chaps were totally unnerved to be wakened in the morning by a chubby little woman, cooking "civies" your tea. Drink it up while it's hot.

Some of the other hardships we endured can scarcely be recounted in a family journal. One aeroplane at which I had the incredible bad luck to be stationed in England was eight miles from the nearest pub, and the only way to get there was by bicycle. Match that for infantry conditions.

But that's the sort of thing we went through, and those of us who survived were prematurely aged by the pitiless circumstances under which we strove to ensure there'd always

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT
I do not like to talk with people who always agree with me. It is amusing to converse with an echo for a little while, but soon one tires of it. A man lives by believing something, not by debating and arguing about many things. — Carlyle

Residences Threatened Seek Glen Flooding Solution

Glen Williams ratepayers, tormented by floods this year, found a champion at last week's Esqueving Township council meeting, when councillor George Currie stated, "no matter who is responsible for flood control, it is our ratepayers who suffer." Wilfrid Leslie, deputy reeve, reported that he would discuss the problem at a meeting of Emergency Measures Organization, and also at the next meeting of the Credit Valley Conservation Authority.

Clerk K. C. Lindsay suggested, "The Credit Valley Authority is supposed to have control of the river."

Residents that back on the Credit River in Glen Williams have been threatened by the so-called Credit. A jam which occurred recently is still locked solid and backed up water is raising the surface and spilling into basements.

Members of the Silverwood Women's Institute were on hand for the meeting and heard council make the following appointments for 1965: Ballinadad Community Hall, Walter Lamborn, Credit Valley Conservation Authority, W. Leslie, Halton Region Conservation Authority, George Currie, Grand Valley Conservation Authority, G. Leslie, Humber Park Board, C. Wigglesworth, Jim Currie, George Currie, Esqueving Planning Board, Col. G. O. Brown for P.O.s 66 and 67, Acton Fire Area, R. Lawson and W. Lamborn, Georgetown Fire Area, George Leslie and Milton Fire Area, George Currie.

In other business conducted at the meeting, councillors:

- Learned that 494 births were recorded in Esqueving last year. The fact Georgetown and District Memorial Hospital is located in the township, explains the large number of births registered.
- Appointed Charles Austin of RR 3 Georgetown, as the second livestock evaluator for the township. Nelson Stark is the other evaluator.
- Learned the Township will receive an additional $5,000 grant from the Department of Highways for roads in the township. The maximum expenditure allowed upon will be $32,000 for construction and $80,000 for maintenance.
- Agreed to go along with the possible solution to the corrosive effect of salt on cars, even if it does cost an additional $3 a ton for salt.
- Learned two building permits were issued by building in respect for William Hills during the month of December. One permit for the addition to the Glen Williams school was for $96,990, and the second permit was for $300.

Publish Biography Last of Romanovs

A new book has been written about the last Imperial Grand Duchess, Olga Alexandrovna, youngest sister of the last Czar of Russia. Included in Saturday's Globe Magazine section review of the new publication are two pictures of the Grand Duchess, one with her husband in their home in Denmark and one as a "Halton County Farmer's wife." The Grand Duchess lived at Campbellville for a while before moving to Gorky, where she died in obscurity. She was the last of the Romanov dynasty which ruled Russia for more than 300 years.

Those who came in contact with her in this district will be interested to read "The Last Duchess" by Ian Forbes, published by Messrs. Foster and Scott and costing $8.50. The author is a Toronto art critic who became her friend.

Says the reviewer, "the book is engagingly written, the Grand Duchess has been fortunate in her biography. Her memories of the last two Czars may not vindicate the picture."

The Good Old Days . . .

20 YEARS AGO 50 YEARS AGO

Taken from the issue of the Free Press, Thursday, Jan. 25, 1945.
Storm blocked roads were no deterrent to representatives from all parts of Halton who named Hughes Cleaver to represent Halton Liberals in the election to be held this year. He has been Member of Parliament for the past 10 years.

At the Conservative convention, A. S. Nicholson was named to be their nominee in the election. He is from Burlington.
It is hoped to have the arena free of wool before next season. Everyone—players and spectators alike—are looking forward to the resumption of hockey and other arena activities.

It will be of general interest to residents here to learn that Wood Combining Corporation is planning continued expansion and the addition of another new department. It is already one of Acton's larger industries.
Motorists in Acton with its two well-plowed roadways are certainly enjoying a lot better driving than even city folks this year. The only thing you hate to leave home.

Duncan Buchanan lost his fine large barn, entire crop of grain, several head of cattle and a number of implements when fire of unknown origin broke out in the structure. The only thing that could be saved were nearby buildings. The loss will amount to thousands of dollars.

In order to arrange for the building of a new store on the present site, Cooper's Drug Store has taken up temporary quarters next to the Bank of Montreal in Pallant's Men's Clothing Store.
On Wednesday, the Friendly Circle of the United Church held a "Lucky Party" on the Sunday school room. Various games were conducted by Mrs. Alrena Priestly. After a hard time snack of cold beans on a bun, a delicious lunch was served.

For the first time since the December 12 storm, No. 25 Highway was back to two car width last week.

Successful Euchre In Hall Tuesday

Quite a successful euchre was held in Ballinadad Hall on Tuesday night when 17 tables were played, high scores going to Mrs. E. J. Robinson, Georgetown, Mrs. Wilfred Harding, Litchford, Mr. Bert Price, Hillburgh and Mr. J. Storey.

Mr. and Mrs. Cam McInnes report a few days in Toronto visiting with Mr. and Mrs. Goughly. The sympathy of this community goes out to Mrs. Anne Vancaster and Mrs. Comfort Rowell in the passing of their brother, Mr. Leslie Waddell of Hamilton.
