Celebrations Held at Paris Honor Golden Jubilarian

To mark the 50th anniversary of his ordination to the priesthood, a series of celebrations have been arranged by parishioners of Sacred Heart parish, Paris, to honor Father Francis J. McReavy. He has served as pastor there for the past 32 years.

His first pastoral appointment came in 1912 when he came to St. Joseph's Acton, also responsible then for missions at Georgetown and Oustic. He was well-loved here.

A spiritual bouquet was presented to him by the children of Sacred Heart school following a special Mass of Thanksgiving on May 28. A parish dinner Saturday May 29 was attended by adult parishioners, representatives of the Ministerial Association, federal, provincial and local governments, Knights of Columbus and visiting clergy.

Bishop J. F. Ryan will celebrate Pontifical Mass of Thanksgiving at 12 noon June 12. A clergy luncheon is to follow. An open reception will be held that afternoon from 4.30 to 7.30 when a presentation will be made.

Father McReavy is a native of the Irish Block district in Bruce county and was educated in Owen Sound. He is a graduate of St. Michael's College, Toronto. He taught in Killarney high school before entering the Grand Seminary, Montreal and later St. Augustine's seminary, Scarborough.

Following ordination to the Holy Priesthood in 1915 he served as assistant pastor in Hamilton, also teaching at Old St. Mary's High School.

He came to Acton in 1922, but in 1930 became pastor at St. John's, Hamilton, serving as a professor at the new Cathedral

Authority Studies Scotch Block Dam

The second phase of a study covering the construction possibilities of the Scotch Block Reservoir north of Milton and adjacent to highway 25, was approved by members of the Halton Region Conservation Authority.

The first phase of the study, presented to the meeting, indicated a dam would flood 75 acres. The 500 foot long dam would be 40 to 50 feet high and would hold back 1,000 acre feet of water. Kelso contains 1,100 to 1,200 acre feet by comparison.

The second phase of the study would include soil tests and design possibilities as well as cost estimates on the project. Engineers are C. G. Parker and Associates Ltd.

Wood Mill Area

The meeting approved calling tenders on the Mount St. Helens dam with a deadline of June 10. The new dam will flood approximately 500 acres. It will have an effective storage of 2,150 acre feet. It will consist of a concrete overflow spillway of 250 feet in length and about 18 feet deep. It will be located in the Mount St. Helens Conservation Area about 14 miles west of Milton, south of highway 401.

Increase Fee

The parking fee for Kelso Conservation Area this year was increased to 75 cents a car, by the meeting, following a committee report. There is no charge for use of the swimming pool above the car parking charge. A sign post to be erected at the entrance indicating a further charge would be made for admission to the Halton County Museum. A survey had indicated only about five per cent of the Kelso visitors planned to visit the museum, the committee reported.

Members debated the desirability of a separate charge for use of the swimming pool but noted this would encourage more swimming in the lake and the necessity of additional staff.

Ross Johnson was named the area superintendent at Kelso Conservation Area this year. He has been employed at Kelso for the past several summers.

Authority Field Officer Dave Murray reported the trucks were now radio equipped, and this was aiding in the communication between the various work parties.

The Authority solicitors were instructed to investigate the town of Burlington's interest in an offer to the Authority of 230 acres of land at $60,000 if the area was maintained for park purposes.

Next Section of Bruce Trail Wends from Hamilton to Kelso

South-west of Acton, another section of the Bruce Trail is being prepared.

For the last two and one half years voluntary trailbuilders from the Iroquoia Bruce Trail Club have been busy laying out and constructing the hiking trail along the Niagara Escarpment from Grimby, through Hamilton to Kelso near Milton.

Over 90% of the trail is on private lands and officials of the Club highly praised the cooperation received from property owners, commercial firms, municipal offices and, above all, their workers. More than 100 club members have put 40 miles of trail on the map, from Flock Road in Hamilton to Guelph Line in Burlington. These trail builders proudly look back on a record of 25 bridges built over streams and gullies, 47 miles protecting farmers' fences, and more than 500 steps in places where circumstances made it necessary to locate the trail on steep slopes.

42 in One Hour

Public interest in hiking is rapidly increasing because of the availability of this unique hiking facility. On the trail near Dundas, on a Sunday afternoon in November, 42 people passed a given point in one hour.

Looking behind the scenes, one is amazed at first to hear that the Iroquoia Bruce Trail Club has been organized less than two years. The Board of Directors has 11 members, who are all active trail builders. Six committees are in charge of different phases of the work. It does not take long to discover that this club is organized not only for the need of the moment, but also with an eye to the future.

"Relaxing Recreation"

"The Trail project has as many facets as one wants to see in it," says president Jan Kammermans.

"It works for the physical and mental well-being of the community by providing means for the relaxing recreation of hiking in the country-side. But also it can provide a challenge for young people, a much needed alternative to street corners in crowded cities, and a new appreciation of country-side, nature and conservation. Records of other trails indicate that our trail will contribute to tourism by attracting hikers from near and far. Not soliciting government support and completely relying on voluntary effort and co-operation, it becomes a lesson in good citizenship, an indication of the strength of a society in which we can achieve worthwhile goals without expecting the government to do it all. It is for these reasons that we want the Iroquoia Bruce Trail Club in the heart of the community. From this stems the confidence that we will succeed, because we cannot conceive of any citizen to whom one or more of these values will not appeal."

"And all are invited to support this voluntary community project. Membership in Iroquoia Bruce Trail Club is $5 for one adult or for one family. Student membership is $2; youth organizations $5; adult organizations $10. The membership year begins on April first, but fees paid after January 1 will be applied to the coming membership year. Address Iroquoia Bruce Trail Club, P.O. Box 183, Hamilton, Ontario."

SOLOISTS were prominent throughout the Lions Club show on the weekend. Mrs. Marg Hoare sang "When Day is Done" with harmonica background supplied by Lion Zone Chairman Al Lauder.
