Centennial Planning is Theme For Horticultural Convention

Centennial planning will be the theme when around one thousand members of Ontario Horticultural Assoc. meet June 17 and 18 at the O.A.C. University of Guelph, Guelph. Local and district Societies will be represented and will hear a distinguished panel of speakers tell how members, along with public spirited citizens, may enhance the beauty of the settings in which this and other communities will hold their celebrations in 1967. "Plant now and reap a harvest of beauty in Centennial year" is being urged.

While Horticultural Societies have been in existence as long as 130 years, it was not until 1934 that the Association was formed and thus this is the 59th annual convention, and the second to be held in Guelph. There are approximately 45,000 members in the 230 Societies and they are engaged in a variety of projects with a view to making the world a better and more beautiful place in which to live.

Many Projects
Public plantings, flower shows, garden competitions, essay and photographic competitions, tree planting, and promotion of clean-up campaigns are but a few of the many endeavors of Horticultural Societies which flourish in all parts of Ontario.

One of the features of the event will be the planting of new

Royalty crab tree which has been specially developed for Horticultural Societies and which will be made available for the first general planting in Centennial year.

County council Tuesday approved the appointments of Jack Creighton to the public school consultative committee and Claude Cook to the North Halton high school district consultative committee.

Greenock Institute to Sell Souvenir Silver Spoons

Mrs. E. Kraft of Elora, president of Centre Wellington District W.I., was guest speaker at the June meeting of Greenock W.I.

"There is a need for greater recognition of work of public relations which is in reality all women's institute work. But we must remember that it is nine-tenths doing and one-tenth talking that really counts. There are always public relations and we must strive to keep them the best possible by always keeping up with the times."

"A nation can rise no higher than its homes. Therefore as women's institute members we are concerned with making better homes and we should take advantage of the many short courses offered through extension work of Dept. of Agriculture. Mrs. Kraft also advised all to try to keep meetings alive and full of interest."

Mrs. Osk of Elora, district secretary-treasurer, was also present at this meeting along with one other local guest and 16 members.

Introduce Guests
Mrs. C. Aitken, public relations convener, introduced Mrs. Kraft and Mrs. Osk to the meeting and also gave the motto "He has half the deed done, who has made a beginning."

Folks are prone to say "I can't, I'm not talented that way." Thus the door of opportunity keeps closing every day. Yet things we like but never try. Because we think we'd fail. May be the things that we'd do best. If "Can't" we would curtail. One cannot master everything. Or in all things excel. But if we'd persevere with likes. We'd no doubt do them well. Your work, like play, should be a joy. Not something that is hated. For nothing is accomplished. When the soul is irritated. We're not all born to genius. Or producing works of art. Yet most of us don't find our niche.

Because we do not start. How do I know so much to say About such things as this? I should - because I'm from the ranks Of those who said "I wish!"

Mrs. L. Trysenaar, Mrs. J. McCulloch and Mrs. A. Gates sang "The Old Gray Bonnet" which they had also given as a number the previous week at the 40th Anniversary celebration at Ospringe W.I.

Miss E. Pearen thanked Mrs. Kraft for her address and presented her with a small gift in appreciation.

Recall School Days
Mrs. Wm. Butler was hostess for the meeting which was held in the evening. Mrs. L. Trysenaar, president, conducted opening exercises and presided over the business period. Mrs. C. Allan read Psalm No. 39. Many school day remembrances were brought back when each person answered the roll call by reciting a favorite verse or short poem.

Correspondence included an invitation to the Wellington County Historical Society annual meeting at Elora on June 21.

Sell Spoons
Silver spoons with a design depicting Adelaide Hoodless, founder of the W.I., are now available and a carton of these are being ordered to offer for sale by the branch.

The cushion made Mrs. A. Gates which won first place in the competition at the District Annual meeting was displayed and admired by all.

An evening meeting at the home of Mrs. George Wallace will be held in July.

The meeting closed by singing "God Save the Queen" and the Institute Grace followed by a special half hour over the tea cups. Mrs. Butler was assisted by Mrs. L. Trysenaar and Mrs. G. Leslie in serving refreshments.

Mrs. Joshua Thompson was courtesy convener.
