Light on What? . . .

Once upon a time somethody had a twight ides. He thought that if certain vehicles drave with their headlights on in the daytime, it would draw attention to them, and thus help to prevent accidents.

This poor fellow missed one vital point He did not remember that human beings are like sheep. If a fashion expert says skirts must go to the ground forthwith all skirts must be lengthened, or the short ones thrown out. If the same or another expert, later says skirts should be cut off at the thigh there is almodistely a discard ing of all longer skirts
