

LET'S PLAY BRIDGE

By Bill Coats

What do you do when declarer leads a singleton from dummy and you have the ace of the suit and must play second hand? Do you take your ace or do you duck? One thing you should do is decide before it happens what you will do.

This hand came up at the Acton Bridge Club during the Christmas holiday. One East must have felt like Santa Claus for he gave declarer the contract as a present.

Dealer—South.
Neither side vulnerable.

The bidding:
South West North East
1S Pass 2C Pass
3S Pass 4S Pass
5D Pass 6S All Pass

South opens with one spade and North responds with two clubs. This bid suits South since clubs were his weak suit. North raises the spades to four. South makes one more slam try with his five diamond bid. North, valuing his singleton heart, makes the final contract a small slam in spades.

West led his singleton club. Since declarer can see the two, three and four of clubs, he knows that the lead was a singleton. Winning the club in dummy, declarer takes out trump, ending in dummy. The singleton heart was led and East presented declarer with his contract. East played the heart ace.

Declarer now had the rest of the tricks. His two high hearts took care of dummy's small clubs. In all, declarer took five spades, two hearts, a diamond, two clubs and two club ruffs in dummy.

Notice the effect if East does not play the heart ace. Declarer wins a heart trick but lost two clubs in exchange.

United Nations '65 Recounted at I.O.D.E.

The Duke of Devonshire Chapter met at the home of Miss R. Clark on Tuesday, January 4, the Regent, Mrs. Force, presiding. Mrs. Force read a capsule account of what happened in the United Nations in 1965 from an editorial written by Aaron Einfrank, United Nations correspondent for the Telegram. Summing up the year, it was decided the U.N. made some progress although its work is enormous.

Mrs. Holmes, Mrs. Lidkea and Miss Clark were appointed as nominating committee for this year's election of officers.

Why should East duck the heart? First, declarer may not have the king and queen. He might have king and jack and make a mistake. Secondly, East also knew that West's lead was a singleton. Therefore, South has four clubs.

Since he has shown five spades, he can have only four red cards. If they are almost any combination, East knows that he will get a trick in return.

East week's winners were: first, George Solly and Cam Sinclair; second, Jack Coats and Lou Bertasson; third, Miss Olive Logan and Mrs. K. Coats.

Trees Thinned In Cox Tract

Market Halton Forest Product As Trees Thinned in Cox Tract One of Halton County's first and oldest forest tracts situated in Nassagaweya township, Concession VII, south half of lot 12 and managed by the Department of Lands and Forests is now undergoing a new phase of management. This land is better known to some as the Cox tract and older residents may recall the day when it was called St. Helena tract.

The Cox tract containing 100 acres was purchased for forestry purposes in 1939 from Thomas Cox and was the start of the first Reforestation program with the Department of Lands and Forests in Halton County. In 1940 red pine were planted and an established plantation was completed in 1942.

The trees were left to grow and it has been used mainly as a recreational area, mainly by hunters. In 1960, selected crop trees were chosen and pruned to eight feet to allow these trees to grow, knot free lumber. Rows were marked for future thinning to provide ample light and room for the crop trees.

Need Thinning This year, 1965, the stand has shown a retarded growth rate, indicating a thinning is required to continue maximum growth.

This year the crop trees were pruned to 17 feet to produce a 16 foot log with knot free lumber, and to provide the amount of release for these and the other remaining trees, an estimated 150 cords of pulpwood will be harvested this year.

This is the first and only beginning of forest products marketed in Halton County forests, providing material for Ontario's pulp mills and to the county's labor force.

Anyone wishing to see this plantation is welcome to drop in to look at it. The blue slumps may surprise you. A chemical is painted on the stump immediately after cutting in order to keep out a serious disease from entering the root systems. Blue coloring is added so the men will be certain that all stumps are treated.

Sugar and Spice ...

BY BILL SMILEY

Dad, we should be glad, you and I. Glad that we got a mate when we did, 20 or 30 years ago. We'd never measure up to what the girls demand today.

I discovered this the other day during a panel discussion in one of my Grade 12 classes. Topic was "Early Marriages". Participants were four bright, attractive girls of 17 or 18.

Well, they really opened my eyes. In fact, I was shocked and dismayed by the hard-boiled, materialistic attitude of these young ladies. Generally, they had the right idea—that teenage marriages are a mistake—but for all the wrong reasons.

I used to think that marriage was based on mutual respect, physical attraction, shared interests, love. That shows you how old-fashioned I am.

It seems that these days, a successful marriage is a combination of economic essentials and psychological clap-net.

First of all, you have to have security. This rules out early marriages. It means the couple must have enough money for at least down payments on the house, furniture, appliances. It follows that the girl must finish school and take a job and save. The boy must get through law school or medicine (no plumbers for these kids). Again, it follows that he's about 30, she's at least 25, before they can think of marriage.

I could have reminded them, but didn't, that most of them would never have been born if their parents had waited for security before marrying.

Second, they said teenagers are not "emotionally mature" enough for marriage. I don't quite know what that means. Eight out of 10 of the married adults I know have tantrums or drink too much, flare with jealousy, fight over trifles, fall in love, hate bitterly. In short, they are normal human beings. But they're not emotionally mature.

Another point the kids brought up was that teenage girls are not prepared to face up to the complexities of married life—they can't cook; they know nothing about raising children; they can't manage a budget. Apparently the answer to this is for the girl to complete her education and work for a few years. This prepares her for marriage.

Thus, if she has studied typing or philosophy or hairdressing or embalming, and made a living for a year or two, she's all set for cooking, child-bearing and budget-balancing. I don't follow the logic but I always was a little dense about feminine thinking.

Girls, I can show you women of 30, career girls, who can't cook a TV dinner, don't know one end of a baby from the other unless it's crying, and couldn't handle the budget of a Sunday School class without putting it on the rocks.

Another serious suggestion was that marriage should be delayed until both parties have had a chance to travel and see the world. The implication was that after you're married and had kids, you never do more than take a Sunday drive.

Heck, I have a nephew of 17 who was born in Yellowknife, North-West Territories, and has grown up in South America, the West Indies, Holland and Newfoundland. I have a niece, 19, who has lived in England, France and Germany. Those kids didn't slow their parents down.

One of the girls said boys of 19 or 20 are not ready to assume the responsibilities of marriage. Some aren't but some men of 30 aren't and never do. I've seen boys of 19 or 20 in charge of a million dollars worth of aircraft, and a hundred lives.

I could scarcely refrain from telling these complacent pre-marriagees that their grandmothers were married at 16 or 17, their grandfathers at 20, coping with a life they couldn't even imagine.

Not that I'm in favor of teenage marriage. Heaven forbid. Our society has all the cards stacked against the young lovers. But there's something sad about their attitude.

Proficiency shields were presented by school board chairman Vic Rumlley to Marion Keelan, Ernest West, Kenneth Allan, Fred Crewson, Betty Masters, Middle school graduation diplomas were presented to Jean Harris, Clayton Fryer, Lorna Frank, Annie Thompson, John Stewart.

Lower school certificates were presented to John Barr, Frances Chen, William Clay, Joan Col, Doris Cripps, Shirley Elliott, Irma Kentner, Shirley Kentner, Olga Locker, Helen McLellan, Donald Matthews, Kenneth Pappillon, Jean Robertson, Mary Smith, Calvin Sprowl, Doreen Steele, Martha Turkosz, Ernest West.

An award for the best shot in the recently formed cadet corps went to Fred Crewson. At the summer cadet camp, awards were made to Ronald Salt and Walter Porty for coaching.

Never late, never absent, certificates went to Mildred Armstrong, Martha Turkosz, Shirley Kentner, Dena Braida, Betty Bauer, Aldo Braida and Clayton Fryer.

The festive Christmastide was saddened in many homes with the word that Frederick S. Blow had died early Sunday morning. His long residence here, his community service in many phases and his kindly manner won for him a place in the hearts of many Actonians.

Everton boys who have returned recently are Ronald Hepburn, Henry Hill and Kenneth Stubbington.

Home for Christmas—Mr. Boyd Clark, Mr. Ernest Brown, Miss Mary Chalmers, Mr. Jack Hollinger, Mr. Fred Crewson, Mr. Harold Kennedy, Wren Margaret Somerville, Wren Frances Dills, Miss Helen Lamb from University of Toronto, Miss Isabel Mead, Miss Ruby Clark and Mr. James McGeehan.

Service men from Acton were on the Queen Elizabeth. Cpl. John Turkosz served for three and a half years overseas and was wounded by bomb fragments. Cpl. Ross Swackhamer, son of Reeve and Mrs. Arthur Swackhamer of Erin Township, got back just in time for a family New Year's reunion.

Spr. J. L. Ellerby was three years overseas. Pie Mervin Reid was also welcomed.

Acton's first baby was a son, Charles John, born to Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Lantz at the Nursing Home on Guelph Street at 2:20 a.m. on Monday.

In the King's New Year's Honors, Flight Lieutenant Herbert Hugh Hinton of Acton was awarded the King's Commendation for valuable services in the air. Lt. Hinton served with the R.C.A.F. for five years and this fall returned to civilian life and his business on Mill St.

He and Mrs. Hinton and family are residing in the residence they recently purchased at the corner of Park Ave. and Lake Ave. We join with many other friends in extending congratulations on the honor accorded him.

A happy holiday tomorrow, then for a year of busy business and a fair measure of prosperity. Postmaster Matthews and his staff despatch the thanks of our 2,000 citizens for the manner in which they handled the enormous quantity of mail matter during the Christmas week. The largest mails ever received were distributed.

Ralph Swackhamer and Clarence Matthews have enlisted in the Halton-Dufferin Battalion.

A very pretty wedding took place at the home of Mr. A. McArthur, Sixth Line, Erin, on the 22nd of December. The principals were Miss Margaret McArthur and Mr. Robert L. Davidson, with Rev. Mr. Heddon, the pastor of the home, performing the ceremony.

The bridal pair, attended only by the little nephew of the groom, Willrose Reid, as ring-bearer, entered the parlor and took positions under an arch of evergreens festooned with white and a large bell. Miss Elsie Smith played the wedding march.

The bride was becomingly gowned in Duchess satin with lace and pearl trimming. She carried bridal roses. The groom's gift to the bride was a crescent of pearls.

The bride received many useful and costly presents, showing the esteem in which she is held. About a hundred guests sat down to a daintily prepared repast.

The happy couple drove to Georgetown and left by the 5:15 train amid a shower of confetti.

There was certainly no excitement at the nomination meeting. Everyone was returned by acclamation—Reeve Hynds, councillors Alex Bell, Charles Bailey, David Henderson, W. H. Smith; school trustees C. C. Speight, John Kenney and John R. Kenney.

At the high school "At Home" and Christmas reception, an honor roll was being shown to the students who have enlisted—Ernest Black, Warren Brown, Jack Chapman, Melfort Collier, Will Douglas, Willie Kenney, Edwin Madlock, John L. Moore, Will Muffin, Fred Williams and Anna Oram, nurse.

Taken from the issue of the Free Press, Thursday, January 6, 1916.

The welcome to our soldiers who have returned, invalidated from the war arranged by a joint committee of council and leading citizens, was a cordial tribute to their heroism and loyal service. Acton Citizens' Band escorted the returned soldiers, Sergeant Coles and Private Lane, with an accompanying contingent to the town hall, where they were escorted to the platform amid the plaudits of the audience. Mr. H. P. Moore, secretary of the committee, handed to each an engraved open-face gold watch "from the citizens of Acton 1916".

After his appropriate reply, Sergeant Coles appealed to young men to follow the example of those who had already gone, and he sang a stirring recruiting song.

Married—Margaret Harvey to E. J. Hassard, Phm. B.

The Women's Institute is having a bee at the council chambers to make four quilts for the Belgians.

A crowded house greeted Knox Sunday School at their annual New Year's entertainment, under the able chairmanship of Rev. J. C. Wilson. Those receiving diplomas for Bible verses were Jean Kennedy, Bertie Goulet, Myrtle Carnochan, Calvin Wilson, Findlay Wilson, Florence Murgason, Agnes Mann, Marion McLean, Hector McDonald, Nellie Hall, Thelma Gamble, Olive Cooper and Jean Barber. The graduates on the catechism were Isabella Watkins, Telford Kenney and Jack Waldie.

Three Toronto storekeepers were lined for selling cigarettes and candy on Sunday.

It will be remembered when the Free Press gave the experiences of Sergeant Coles at Ypres, he refused permission to publish particulars of his own courageous exploits. Now letters have been received from relatives in Edinburgh of a soldier Sgt. Coles carried on his back for over four miles, away from the firing line, thus saving his life.

The New Year's night party of the Kilcare Club was much enjoyed.

New Warden?

County Council names its warden next Tuesday. Acton Reeve Bert Hinton has declared his intention to stand for this office, and town councillors extended their support and best wishes at their inaugural meeting.
