

4-H CLUB MEMBERS fought off mosquitoes Tuesday of last week during a farm safety night at the farm home of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd McEnery, R.R. 2, Acton. Members toured the farm looking for safety hazards which had been set up and later gathered in a field to see a film

Farm hazard hunt, first aid highlights 4-H Safety Night

The annual 4-H Safety and Parents' night for the Acton area, was held on Tuesday, June 28 at the Esqueving Township farm of R. L. McEnery, R.R. 1, Limehouse.

The Acton 4-H members were joined by a number from other Halton clubs and a fine representation of parents. Extension fieldman Geoffrey Taylor was chairman of the evening and introduced those who took part in the program.

The opening feature was the popular "hazard hunt" during which the members, in groups of six, toured the farm buildings and machinery sheds to locate safety hazards, many of which had been previously set up. Upon reconvening the leaders reported on the findings of their groups. The conditions which they looked for were faulty electrical installations, unsafe ladders and floors, unshielded motor pulleys and P.T.O. shafts, and the general tidiness of the premises.

Mr. Taylor introduced Don Miller and Doug Coulson of the Milton St. John Ambulance Corps who conducted an excellent instruction period and demonstration on mouth-to-mouth artificial respiration. Mr. Coulson opened his talk by listing the causes of respiration failures with emphasis on near-drownings.

By using a life-size dummy equipped with lungs and breathing passages to simulate the human body, Mr. Miller demonstrated the procedure for administering the mouth-to-mouth life-saving methods. The steps which he followed were to raise the victim's shoulders, lower the head, clear away all obstructions such as mucus or foreign matter, pinch the nostrils to seal off the escape of air and exhale into the victim's mouth making sure that his lungs are completely inflated. This he said, should be continued 12 times per minute until the victim revives or is pronounced dead by a doctor.

Immediate action, he stressed is the key to life-saving, since every moment of delay greatly reduces the victim's chances for survival. Club members Carolyn Spear and Bob Lasby also demonstrated successfully.

County honors weed poster contestants

Over 70 Halton public school Grades 7 and 8 students enjoyed a day touring the Royal Botanical Gardens properties in the Hamilton district June 23.

All were contestants and winners in the annual Halton County Council agricultural committee's weed control poster contest, and they represented 20 schools in Halton's seven municipalities.

Halton weed inspector Vernon McArthur of Lowville organized the day, which included morning and afternoon tours of the Botanical Gardens properties and a noon luncheon at the gardens' headquarters building. Along for the trip were several teachers, Halton warden H. H. Hinton and county agricultural committee members Herb Merry of Oakville, deputy-reeve William Hoey of Nassagaweya, and chairman reeve W. F. Hunter of Georgetown.

The county winner in the 1966 poster contest was Jack Winslow of 11252 Devon Rd., Oakville, a student at E. J. James school in Oakville. Unfortunately, Jack and his family have moved to the United States since the contest and he was unable to be present to accept his $25 prize offered by the Niagara Brand Chemicals Co.

His teacher, Mr. Palmer of E. J. James school, accepted the cheque on behalf of the winner.

and will forward it. Mr. Palmer also received a gift from the County Council offered to the teacher of the winning student, presented by Warden Hinton.

Others who spoke at the dinner included Halton agricultural representative Henry Stanley, W. K. Armstrong, superintendent of public schools for the town of Oakville, and Ken Fallis, assistant director of the soils and crops branch, Ontario Department of Agriculture.

Mr. Falls told the children Halton has a forward-thinking county and praised its "war on weeds." "I think you are most fortunate your county does help you by extending the scope of your education to the field of weeds and weed control," he noted, adding that each student was a winner in more ways than one, for their self-education about weeds would always be helpful to them.

Deputy-reeve Hoey appeared at the dinner with two bandaged fingers. He explained to the students weed control was important, and pointing to the bandages, admitted he had injured the fingers the day before "trying to get rid of some weeds at my place."

Leslie Laking, director of the Botanical Gardens, conducted the tours.

Winners from the various areas were:
Acton — Jim McKeown, Olive Marshall and Mark Nielsen, all of M. Z. Bennett school.
Burlington (east of Brant St.) — Linda Kennedy of Ascension school, John Polkinghorne of Rolling Meadows, Donna Marie Sasi of St. John's, west of Brant St. — Diane Dugas of Fairfield, Brad Mason of Glenview, Kathie Hughes of King's Rd., Esqueving — Robert Southcott and Susan Ismond, both of Pineview.
Georgetown — Carson Thompson of Harrison, Molly Henderson of Chapel St., Daniel Carney of Holy Cross.

Milton — Mike Swilans of Martin St., Danny Jones of Holy Rosary, Susan Pearce of Martin St.

Nassagaweya — Micaela Von Richthofen, Angela Pries and Denise Paxton, all of Brookville.

Oakville: east of 16 Mile Creek — Jack Winslow and Martin Pollock of E. J. James, Mary Sousa of St. Vincent's; west of 16 Mile Creek — Ted De Wildt and Diane Laforest of St. Joseph's, Robert Pritchard of Westwood.
