Meet owner, agree to sign contract for Service property

Another step toward the Halton Region Conservation Authority's purchase of the A. R. Service farm adjoining Kelso Conservation Area was taken Thursday, when Mr. Service attended an Authority meeting to finalize details on the purchase agreement. The initial agreement was made in July and Mr. Service said as soon as the agreement is signed it can be executed.

The Authority is purchasing the 145-acre farm for $70,000. Eighty acres of the property are being re-sold to the Ontario Government for $40,000 for the establishment of an Ontario agricultural museum and a home for the Ontario Steam & Antique Reservers' Association. The remainder will be used to extend the Kelso Conservation Area which lies along the west border of the Service property.

Mr. Service was granted occupancy of his house and barn until April 1, 1967, at a monthly rental of $75. The Authority agreed any improvements he made to the property during that time would be purchased from him in April when the property is turned over to the Authority.

The owner also requested a 200 foot lot on the Town Line where he could erect a new house. This matter is to be finalized later. The meeting turned down on a 54 vote, a motion by vice-chairman C. A. Martin, asking the Halton Museum Board to move to a 10-acre site in the Service farm, from their present location in the Alexander farm complex in Kelso Conservation Area. His motion mentioned troubles in past years over limited parking, duplication of fees and lack of space.

"We would also help in moving the renovated pigpen, blacksmith shop and water wheel," he said.

But Authority member George Currie of Esquesing (also a member of the Halton Museum Board) objected strenuously to the idea. He said the Museum Board has spent $30,000 on its holdings in Kelso since the board was founded five years ago, and moving would ruin much that had been done. Mr. Currie said the Museum Board's centennial building project would be too late for 1967 if the suggested move was made.

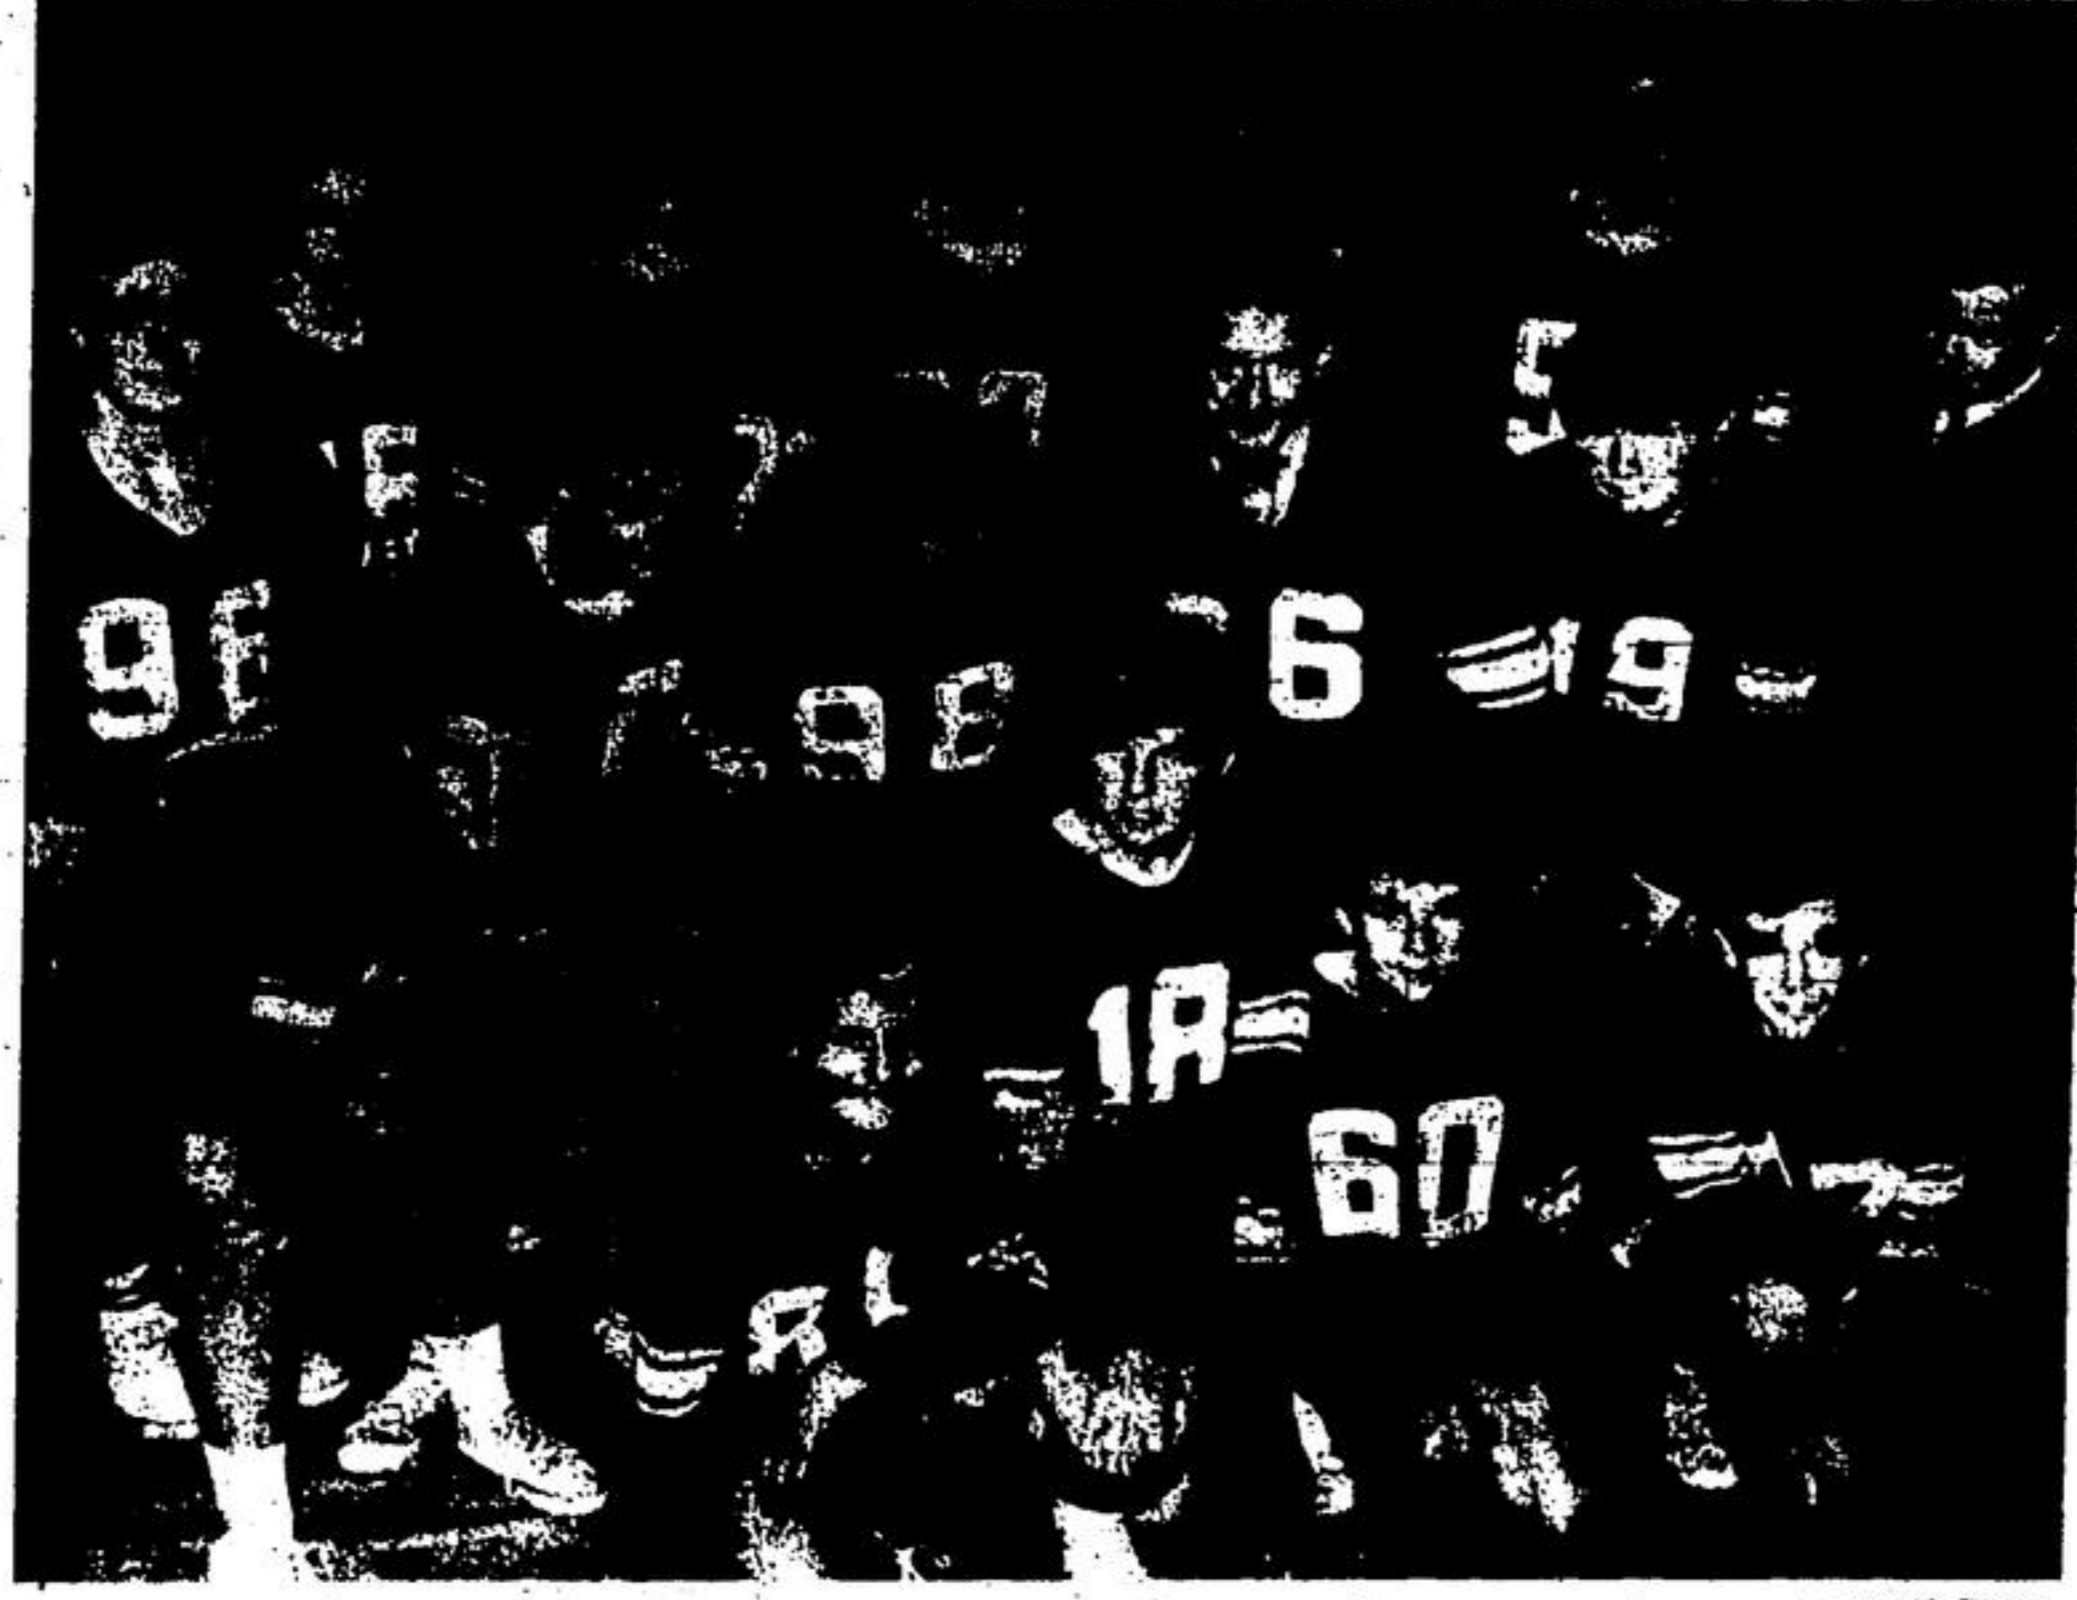

D. A. McConachie, solicitor for the Authority, suggested there should be a meeting between a committee from the Authority and the faltering Glen Eden Ski Club to discuss the financial problems of the club before any formal action is taken concerning its repossession.

Authority member Bill Sargeant, claiming he was tired of having the agenda and no backup material for his information, suggested a full transcript of any Ski Club negotiations be kept and reviewed at the next meeting. It was learned the club is in debt to the Authority for $3,000, and has an additional $12,000.

UNICEF pennies on Halloween

While some children are playing trick or treat when Halloween rolls around again, other pupils from both the Robert Little and M. Z. Bennett public schools will be knocking on doors seeking pennies for needy children in other countries. The UNICEF project for helping these children will be supported by both schools as children who want to help will tote around the yellow boxes seeking support.

Again this year, Acton's Men's Club is sponsoring the annual project; members will count and bundle pennies as children bring in their boxes toward the end of the evening. It is hoped that students at Acton district high school will take part in the annual project and it is expected UNICEF boxes will be placed at the school for students' donations.

Essay places first in zone

Acton fair's prize winner for the Ethel Brant Monture essay contest has also placed first in the district level.

The essay now proceeds to judging at the provincial level. Word of the win was received Wednesday by Mrs. W. J. McDonald, secretary of the fair ladies' division.

Heat's on at library

The heat's on! That was the latest word from the building superintendent in charge of Acton's Centennial Library this week.

Heating contractors are on the job and the heating system in the main floor area has been turned on, making working conditions more comfortable. Windows and some doors have been installed, closing the building in, and other doors are expected to arrive on the site this week.

Some sodding has been completed and railings at the side of the main entrance steps are being installed. Inside, finished carpentry is in progress including cupboards in the main floor workroom. Roof insulation has been finished and the heat's on as workmen work diligently to have the building completed as soon as possible.

Mayor Les Duby reported to council he was seeking advice from Sam Snow on a design for a foot bridge across the school creek and that Randy Lidkea had volunteered a landscape design for the area.
