Mr. Knapton is being transferred from Acton Limestone Quarries to Industrial Minerals Ltd. The family will be missed in many circles. Roy was an elder of the United Church, sang in the choir and Legion Choralists, and belonged to Walker Lodge. Betty was a member of the U.C.W. and Assoc. for Mentally Retarded. Daughter Wendy belonged to the Brownies, Explorers and the junior choir. There have been several presentations before they leave.

Arena booth, first aid room grant on committee's agenda

Acton Recreation Committee dealt with a variety of topics ranging from access to the arena booth, facilities for the St. John Ambulance brigade, grants for figure skating to the past summer's recreation program at their regular meeting Thursday night.

Roy Goodwin appeared before the committee at their request to discuss access to the arena booth by curlers on Mondays and Tuesdays of each week. Mr. Goodwin operates the booth at a rental of $225 for the season. He told the committee he was under the impression the booth was under his control except when banquet license privileges were operated by the curling club.

"Some curlers are insinuating I have no control over the curling on Monday and Tuesday nights," said Mr. Goodwin. "I feel the recreation committee should tell them I'm in control except when they have a banquet license."

"I'm perfectly willing to cooperate with them... but I don't like the attitude of some curlers telling me I've got to do this or that. It's the attitude I resent, entirely different from the agreement I made with the committee."

Queried by chairman Len Lovell, Mr. Goodwin stated he left all his stock in the booth except cigarettes and cash which he took out each night. He felt the committee should designate someone to be responsible for the stock in the booth when the curlers tell him to go to do this or that. He also recommended a cupboard be found elsewhere for the curlers so they could store their equipment.

Committee member Helen Otterbein, also a curler, outlined the curling club's position on access to the booth by saying she understood the arrangement between Mr. Goodwin and the committee was only verbal.

"A lot of us are not too sure of what's going on," she said. Mrs. Otterbein outlined her experience when she wanted some dishes. She managed to get them but when she went to bring them back she had to leave them in the office because the booth was locked.

"All we need is some arrangement to get in when necessary," she said. A suggestion from chairman Lovell that the easiest solution might be to provide arena manager Herb Ritchie with an extra key received a poor reception from Mr. Goodwin. "I've heard quite a bit about floating keys," he cautioned.

Mrs. Otterbein replied there was no use the curlers having their own dishes if they couldn't get into the booth. Again Mr. Goodwin emphasized he was willing to co-operate. He said the differences caused by conflicting attitudes, could be resolved.

Both parties agreed Mr. Goodwin should see curling club president Ted Tyler to work out an acceptable solution. An extra key for Herb Ritchie and a list of names of people eligible to use it for access to the booth was suggested.

Mr. Goodwin seized the opportunity of appearing before the committee to ask about roller skating which he had been discussing with the recreation director to ask, "Some time in the near future, if you like the way I'm running this thing you might consider a two or three year contract," he said.

The committee felt they could make no long range plans until the present board was dissolved. Possibility of an entire new committee being formed was cited and the obligation to complete transactions within the year.

Mr. Goodwin left with the suggestion the matter could be a good thing to look into.

hockey and the YMCA program there's nothing for young people to do in town, Mr. Pearce emphasized.

Councillor Charles Leatherland, a committee member, agreed with the recreation director. Too many young people are going to police courts from Acton, he said. "It's our duty to do something about it."

Mr. Pearce distributed copies of his summer report listing recreational activities and including many recommendations for updating the program.

In conclusion he asked the committee to consider a raise in pay from the $4,800 per annum he started with in April.

The chairman pointed out the budget was fixed for 1966. We can't do anything about it until January, he said. It was agreed, however, to review the director's salary at committee level.

Mr. Hart proposed the committee reconsider their plans so a portable room could be installed in the upstairs auditorium. He questioned the advisability of constructing it downstairs where fracture and concussion cases, which must have little or no movement, would be subjected to a long, hazardous move.

"We're prepared to build collapsible walls that can be moved anytime upstairs in the auditorium," said St. John corps officer.

Committee members listened sympathetically to the proposal but rejected any plan to parcel off parts of the upstairs auditorium. Mr. Townsley spoke of consulting one local doctor who advised the room would need a table, a sink and a good light to be properly equipped for first aid work and only possible place for it was downstairs.

Mr. Hart told members they would co-operate in every way with activities at the community centre. He urged the committee to consider helping form a St. John branch to take some of the organizational work off their shoulders.

Recreation director Howard Pearce in his report to the committee stated it was his aim to have something going on in the arena every night, summer and winter. He asked about resuming the popular Saturday night dances, an attraction which teenagers have been appealing for in numerous telephone calls.

Drivers who feel that the no-stopping regulations in cities are too tough, might think about this historical note from the Ontario Safety League:

In ancient Nineveh, where roads were sacred, posts were placed along the processionary way inscribed: "Royal Road: Let No Man Lessen It." It was decreed that anyone who parked a chariot or other vehicle along the road should be slain and his body impaled on a stake before his house.

It's heart warming to read of sports figures who have made successful comebacks. You'll also find inspiring comeback stories in the lives of people who might have been defeated by heart disease, the Number One Health Enemy. Their successful return to productive life has been made possible by the kind of medical research and education supported by your Heart Fund. Help continue this vital work by giving to your Canadian Heart Fund.

When you know that you have the right ammunition, and that your gun is in good serviceable condition, the Ontario Safety League asks you to follow the basic rules of safe gun handling:

(1) Treat every gun as if it were loaded at all times.
(2) Always point the muzzle of your gun in a safe direction — never at any person.
(3) And be sure of your target. Never shoot at a sound, a patch of color or any object until you are positive it is the game you are hunting.

Free Press news in brief —Elected officials in Guelph and Milton have a two-year term of office now, too.

—Most people are hoping the fine weather recently will remain for some time.

—Some of the high school students attended the Royal Winter Fair together.

—Just got a notice to inform us last week was National Prostitution Week.

—Quite a number of children watched the Santa Claus parade in Toronto on color TV at the Legion Saturday morning.

—The switch to cold sunny weather on the weekend made the gay Christmas decorations in the stores look more inviting and appropriate.

—Mrs. Mary Jane (Force) Robinson is the professional at Milton Figure Skating Club again this year. She also instructs at Georgetown.

—Cold and flu germs are making their usual fall rounds.

—The sale of chocolate bars at the high school proved very successful.

—The Confederation Caravan will be stopping at both Guelph and Milton in this vicinity. The attraction will depict the full history of Canada from the ice age to the present.

—On Saturday, December 3, Acton Y's Men's Club is presenting a variety show featuring the Humber Valley Harmonizers complete with a 50 man chorus, girls, dancers, comedy routines and quartettes. The Acton Pairs and Squares dancing club will also take part.

—Santa Claus will arrive in Acton Saturday, December 3, in all his splendor when he greets children at the former post office on Mill Street. Sponsorship is under the United Church women and their project has the enthusiastic approval of the Chamber of Commerce.

—In the Free Press plant this week, all attention is focussed on the back shop, where press erector Gerry Tighe of Chicago is assembling the new offset press, assisted by Will McEachern and Will Duval. Its four interconnected units require considerable skill to erect, and Mr. Tighe expects to be here about two weeks.

—A Youth Bowling Council newsletter, sent out Nov. 11, reports: "Can you top this? Press secretary Jackie Palmer writes a weekly bowling column for the Acton Free Press in Ontario and mentions the Pettit family, six Y.B.C. members from this one family, four bantams, one junior and one senior. Let's hear from you if you can top this."

CHILD KILLER
Every year, between 30 and 40 Canadian children die of poisoning, yet every one of those deaths could have been prevented. Carelessness with poisons, drugs and chemicals in the home accounts for many deaths.

—Parent-teacher interviews at both public schools have been underway this week. Report cards went out last week.

—The exterior of Dills Printing office in Milton has been completely renovated. To the design of Don Hayward, who does some of our commercial art work, it is now colonial with a leaded bay window. The bricks have been painted two shades of grey with a pine finished door. White wood trim and two carriage lights all add to the change. News or ads for either paper, by the way, can be left at either office.

—This is the first day for the new system of regular weekly police reports to the local newspaper. The listing of miles patrolled and investigations all indicate that the police are doing a great deal more than is ever reported in the Free Press. Of course we will be continuing our policy of not publishing names or details of court cases and charges. Despite the fact some Actonians read these in another paper, we still feel it's the best thing to do.

LIMEHOUSE
Florida, Africa as destinations for travellers

Mr. and Mrs. Glendon Scott and children attended the diamond wedding anniversary of his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Tarzwell in Toronto on Sunday.

Miss Dale Hayes left Malton by plane on Sunday evening for London, England, where she will spend a week before flying to Kenya in Africa.

Mr. and Mrs. G. Scholz have returned from a two week motor trip to Florida. They took friends, Mrs. Dittmann, on a visit here from Karlsruhe, Germany, and Mr. Graf of Hamilton with them.

We extend sympathy to Mr. and Mrs. John Crichton and Jacqueline in the sudden passing of his mother in Georgetown.
