TERRA COTTA

Decision to build a new road into the Terra Cotta Conservation Area was greeted with enthusiasm by residents of the district, in particular those living along the old road.

Expected to be ready in June, the new paved road will be west of the existing one, following an old trail. Cost will be $230,000, with 80 per cent provided by the province. Chinguacousy Twp. will recover the remainder from the county.

At a recent meeting of the public concerned, pleasure was evident when the decision was announced. The heavy traffic — up to 2,000 cars on a Sunday — and the never-ending dust have been a major disturbance to residents.
