Institute proud of member's wodel village seen at CNE

By Mrs. R. Wright

The lawn of Mrs. W. McLean Sr. was the scene of Eden Mills Women's Institute meeting on Wednesday afternoon, fourteen ladies attending.

Mrs. R. Roy conducted the meeting after the Insitute Ode and Mary Stewart Collect. Several thank you letters from the sick were read.

Another letter of praise was read upon the erection of our W.L. sign at both entrances to Eden Mills village. This is quite commendable. Another letter received by one of our members was worthy of mention and was read to the meeting, which follows.

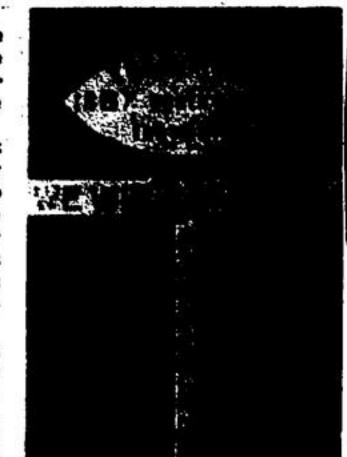

Enclosed is a small thank you from Unicef for so generously loaning your 1867 village for display at the Canadian National Exhibition. It was so authentic and beautifully done that thousands of viewers were delighted with this look back at Canada. Now the village is being viewed and admired by visitors to the Western Fair in London. UNICEF Committee members join me in this expression of thanks in sharing your Centennial project with the World through UNICEF.

The UNICEF exhibit at Canadian National Exhibition featured a Canadian Pioneer Village created as a Centennial project by Ima Drysdale, Jack Marshall, Hazel and Clarence Shoemaker of Eden Mills and Guelph. It was an authentic scene of 100 years ago when business and social life of every community revolved around the general store.

Shelves of log sided buildings are stocked with miniature axes. picks, shovels, cast-iron pots and pans, the implements of daily living in Canada.

Store clerks, customers, indians, pioneer families are handmade dolls dressed in authentic costume. Homemakers wear gay prints complete with bustles, reticules, bones and lace. They visit and make purchases in dry goods and general ware, ribbons, buttons and bows, corsets, bloomers, hats, bonnets, quilts, handsewn and colorful. Homemade soap, tubs and washboard, hore hound candy, the tempting cracker barrel. The roadway has its' hitching posts, horses, buckboard, stagecoach and Conestoga Wagon. Those were Canada's "Horse and buggy days" when neighbours drove for hours to help one another.

And in our Jet Age, Canadians still help neighbours through UN ICEF more than halfway around Conservation of entries is just as important to the defense as it is to declarer. In fact it can be more important, since the defenders do not usually have a surplus of high cards. Here is a hand to illustrate the point. Four times the hand was played at no trump and in three of these the defenders failed to make the best use of their cards. But one pair 'did manage to set the contract and this is how it was done.

The bidding NORTH EAST SOUTH Pass Pass Pass Pass 3NT All Pass

Opening lead 6 of Clubs The bidding could vary depending on style but the no trump contract offers the best chance for a game.

Declarer wins the opening lead and is faced with the choice of developing a suit. Spades should be the choice since a trick must be lost here in any case. The king of spades drops the ten from West's hand which is both good and bad news. It means three spade tricks for sure but it cuts off the chances for five tricks. East should win the spade lead at once and return'a club. It is at this point that West must stop and think. He has but one sure entry - the club ace. He must hope that East has three clubs. When declarer plays the king, West must reject the temptation to win the trick. He must play low and conserve his ace.

Declarer will continue spade and when they don't break he will switch to hearts. On the spade leads. West should discard two diamonds and a heart. When hearts don't break, declarer will lead a diamond. Again East must rise with the ace immediately and lead his last club. West can now set the contact with three club tricks.

If East ducks a diamond, declarer gets home with three spade, three hearts, two clubs and a diamond. East must take his aces quickly to help set up West's club but West must hold his ace to conserve communication with his partner.

Last week's winners at the Acton Bridge Club were: first, Warren Sadler and Duke Wilson; second, Dave Lidhea and Bill Coats; third, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Dickson; fourth, Mr. and Mrs. Ken Brown.

Ebenezer observed her 145th anniversary with two fine congregations. In the morning, Rev. Geo. Dunlop, B.A. preached on the subject My Brother's Keeper, from Matthew 25. He also quoted from Job 31. Job's comforters had the idea that punishment followed sin; this is not always the case. In the east, bread is sacramental. An American missionary, in a hurry in Africa, gulped down his noon lunch. Not so his African guide, who said, "I am eating my wife." He went on to explain that his wife had put thought and affection into the preparation of his meal, so he would not eat it thoughtlessly.
