(Continued from Page B1) provincial parks welcomed 10,000,000 visitors in 1966. I hope to see Highway 25 completed from Acton to Oshawa if elected.

The Roberts Government has created OMSIP, a voluntary medical health plan to ensure that everyone can get proper medical attention regardless of ability to pay. OMSIP lightens the burden of medical costs for 1 1/2 million Ontario residents - many of them people who could not afford protection under commercial schemes.

In three years the Ontario Housing Corporation has built more homes for the aged, for students and for low income families than were built in the rest of Canada combined in the last fifteen years. Today only three years after it was created, the Ontario Housing Corporation administers and has under construction or negotiation, enough public housing to build a city with a population of 100,000 people.

To sum up, I feel that the Ontario Government has done a good job, and is doing its utmost to provide the services and legislation required in such a complex industrialized province, and further, that we are taking steps to meet current problems.

(Continued from Page B1) disatisfied with this report. Although it attacks certain problems, it does so in a piece-meal fashion. It is not an imaginative nor a far-sighted approach to Ontario's taxation problems.

The government has selected two of these points as election bait. The total cost is likely to be in a neighbourhood of 120 million dollars per year, but to pay for this the government says there will be no increased taxation in 1968! When will we pay for this and how? If all the points in the Smith Report for 1968 and 1969 are adopted by the government, it will mean programs totalling $90.1 million dollars per year. Is the government going to implement such costly recommendations? If so, when and how does it propose to pay for them?

Does this government not have the responsibility now, during this election campaign to indicate just what they intend to do about this report? Or do they, if elected, intend to carry on in their usual haphazard and makeshift way? These are questions that the voters of the riding of Halton West have to have answered. What does our Conservative candidate have to say? If he is honest in his approach surely he will give the voters an indication of the government's intentions as to how they mean to finance the Smith Report recommendations.

In contrast the New Democratic Party stands for a government prepared to act. It stands for a new and dynamic approach and is ready to move with imagination and vigour. It will not wait until it is pushed to the wall.

The New Democrats are a party that cares. It will be concerned about the increasing tax burden placed on the municipality. It will act to do something effective about the housing scandal. It will appoint an ombudsman and pass a bill of rights for the consumer and for apartment house tenants. It intends to tackle the question of education. We need an entirely new approach to education based on a fairer means of financing. Our high school system needs a new look and our universities have to be free.

It is the New Democratic Party's intention to vigorously tackle the problem of pollution, in air and water. It will act to integrate welfare policy, based on a guaranteed wage law and not the means test, to replace the present inadequate fragmented policies of our present welfare programs. We have had twenty-four years of makeshift programs. In this age of rapid development we will need a modern government using modern methods and led by men who are prepared and willing to chart the future of our province.

Such programs as public car insurance, adequate health service, proper labour and management legislation and rural development programs will be the concern of the New Democratic Party. The voter who wants a government that is concerned for the average man and is concerned about the future development of our province will vote N.D.P. in the coming election.

News of the District

MILTON:

Milton launched a province-wide campaign Monday to measure support for assumption by the province of 100 per cent of the cost of education. Milton electors this December will be polled on whether they think the province should take over the total cost of education, and the town will send out nearly 1,000 letters to other Ontario municipalities asking them to take similar action. The subject came up for discussion at last week's council meeting. At the outset of discussions this week Mayor S.G. Childs cautioned there were some 932 municipalities involved as well as additional cost in getting the material prepared and out to make it possible for municipalities to meet a November 1 deadline to plan the plebiscite.

In typical "show must go on" spirit, directors of Halton Agricultural Society pitched their 1967 edition of Milton Fair against the elements - and won. Heavy rains lasting right up to Friday, cloudy threatening skies and a cool breeze on Saturday failed to stop the show and 90 per cent of the fair played to a smaller-than-usual crowd in spite of the elements. "We really can't complain at all," summed up Agricultural Society president Archie McKinnon. About 3,000 paid admissions were registered at the gate, a drop of about 1,000 from last year.

GRAND VALLEY:

Standing room only was a mild way to describe the biggest entertainment event in the history of Grand Valley on Saturday night, September 23. An estimated crowd of 4,000 people were packed into the Community Centre to hear the music of Guy Lombardo and his Royal Canadians. Many more who had purchased their tickets in advance were turned away at the door because there was no room left. Many had travelled from as far away as Toronto and Hamilton only to find it almost impossible to get into the building. Financially the night was nothing less than a complete success for the Grand Valley Lions Club who sponsored the event. Figures show an estimated profit of $10,000 which will be turned over to the community centre.

GEORGETOWN:

Town council recommended to the Board of Parks Management that proposed ice rental charged for the Saturday morning Kid Hockey league be cancelled and that no charge be made for the 1967-68 season. The motion which carried on a 7-1 recorded vote followed a stormy session at which a delegation disputed a move to have the sponsoring Legion pay an estimated $1,000 for ice time. Since the Legion started sponsorship 15 years ago, such time has been free.

Police report:

Seizure of stolen goods two local men jailed

A wide variety of activities and investigations, although minimal in number, were entered into by the Acton O.P.P. from October 1 to October 7.

Occurrences totalled only seven but included one disturbance where a local man was charged and lodged in the Halton County Jail and the seizure of goods stolen in a break and enter in a neighboring municipality, also resulting in a local man being jailed.

ning and preparation would have avoided this inconvenience. Is your car winterized yet? Anti-freeze installed? Battery checked? Now is the time, not after it won't go!

Each year someone loses their life sitting in a cold car that refuses to run. It could happen to you, but why take the chance. Winterize your car as well as your driving attitude, said Corporal R. Mason.

Traffic activities incurred during 196 work hours and 767 patrol miles, included three accident investigations where $650. damage was done and four persons injured. Charges are pending. Traffic patrols saw only three persons charged, but a total of 32 warnings were administered for offences committed against the Highway Traffic Act.

On Thursday Oct. 5, a lecture covering all phases of safety, driving, walking, in the homes and holiday tips, was given to the Acton Women's Institute. Other groups in the community interested in having one of the local constables attend to speak at their meetings may contact the O.P.P. office. We welcome the opportunity to assist you in any manner we can.

In Magistrate's Court at Milton on Monday October 2, 11 persons were judged guilty for liquor, traffic and criminal offences. Magistrate Langdon subsequently levied fines totalling $417 coupled with $48 in court costs. Two drivers found guilty of 'Impaired Driving' also received three month licence suspensions.

As winter approaches, we begin to think of what our driving will be like when ice, snow and cold become the order of the day or, if you are not, you certainly should.

How many times have you come out on a wintry morning to find your car will not start? At least once for most of us, I think. I think too, that a little early plan-
