

Georgetown Arts, Crafts show draws crowd to Riviera, Norval

Copper to crewel work, leathers to pottery, glass to wood, there were many crafts displayed at the 25th anniversary show and sale of the Georgetown Arts and Crafts group.

There were several Acton and district residents taking part in the popular show at the Riviera, Norval, and many others from this area attended the Saturday event. The large room was crowded from even before the opening hour of 10.30 a.m.

Long-time member Mrs. W.J. Beatty of Acton assisted with the brunch and afternoon tea. Her charming stuffed animals and silver jewellery were on sale, and granddaughter Carol Beatty, now of Guelph, acted as a sales-lady for her grandmother.

Mrs. Herman Bessem, formerly of Churchill Rd. and now of Esqueving township, had a counter of attractive leather and lapidary work, with some knitting.

Clarence Rogvaldson again showed spinning wheels, with daughter Janet in costume demonstrating as she did at the Acton fair.

A colourful innovation was leather flowers. These were fashioned into arrangements for sale and centred all the lunch tables.

Miss Dorothy Stone of Esqueving, a former instructor here, had paintings for sale. Other articles which attracted many buyers were the pottery, enamelling on copper, crewel work and leather jewellery.

A pantry counter had brisk business.

Special guests were demonstrating their hobbies. H.H. Davis showed marquetry and Mrs. R. Rosser made apple-head dolls; Douglas Phillips showed hand-carved birds and Mrs. Peggy Specht displayed mobiles and toys made of scoriaform. Miss Ruby Millsap showed how fabrics are colored in the batik manner. Helen Agg was making pottery at her wheel.

George Hill of the chemistry department of the University of Waterloo had a demonstration of glass blowing.

The hardest thing a bride has to contend with is being wistled for instead of at.

No matter what happens there is always someone who knew it would.
