

A CARPET OF LIVID AUTUMN COLORS stretches along the Credit Valley near Terra Cotta bringing to mind the school stands . . . The River Credit stretches lazily along here now and then sliding down a slight turbulence, tired after its mad day poem, "Along the line of smoky hills the crimson forest ascent down the escarpment near the Forks. When adhesive on envelope flap doesn't stick, try quick application of nail polish. Dries quickly leaves no smudge. Can't even be steamed open.

PRODDED BY a farmer's stick this herd of Holsteins heads through the autumn colors back to the barn where machines will empty them of milk which thirsty town and city dwellers will receive unmindful of the scenery in which it was produced. Bare trees are strong evidence pasturing days are almost over until lush spring grasses renew the cycle. (Staff Photo)

SUNLIGHT GLIMMERING on the steel grey water reflects the autumnal brilliance of the trees, contrasting with evergreens and yellowing grasses and weeds. The river takes no note of the Canadian autumn stopping only now and then in some quiet pool to collect eroding banks and large logs before continuing its quest to Lake Ontario. Did the red men one day coast by here in their canoes? (Staff Photo)

U.C.W. holds work meeting

A work meeting comprised the program in the United Church on Wednesday of last week, when Unit 3 of the U.C.W. met for their regular meeting.

Members brought interesting items to work on as they prepare for their Santa Fair. They had aprons, poodles, candle holders, oven mitts, to mention only a few of the ideas that were being made.

The business was conducted by Mrs. H. Patterson and the devotional was taken by Mrs. M. DeHaan.

The social evening to be hosted for the Anglican ladies was finalized.
A letter was read from Rev. Eaton of India in which he expressed his thanks for money sent from the U.C.W. He told of spending it as part payment for a well to supply water to the hospital.

IN A CANADIAN WOODLAND setting even the Queen could be envious of, this sentry box is ingeniously constructed for a daughter to step into a modern school bus. It is on the ninth line. (Staff Photo)

EACH NEW TURN in the road brings some new delightful scene that delights the aesthetic in us. The sun's rays cast huge shadows and the earth does not take long to cool. (Staff Photo)

Good sale

DESERTED BRICK PLANT along a deserted railroad speaks of days when the valley here was more industrious, where bricks were baked and shipped to district cities to build huge offices and residences. The earth is red here; hence the Latin word Terra (earth) Cotta (red). (Staff Photo)
