O.P.P. report

Definition of tailgater: ignorance with a weapon

Our reporting week of September 22 through September 28, 1968, was marred by a tragic accident. An Acton woman was pronounced dead at the scene by the coroner. She was struck by a train while crossing the tracks on Mill Street East. Violent accidents of this sort have not been common in this community—nor do we wish them. Other occurrences investigated by the six man detachment included an impaired driver, three liquor infractions, one theft and two reports of lost property. Traffic activities were few during the week. Six people were charged for offences under the Highway Traffic Act and four other people were warned to correct their driving habits. One traffic accident was investigated with approximately $300 damage to the one vehicle involved. No injuries were sustained. Following too closely is one of the most common, most dangerous, most obvious and least checked forms of bad driving. Tailgaters come in assorted shapes and sizes, all repulsive. You find them everywhere, but mostly two feet from your rear bumper. Undertakers love them, drivers hate them, empty highways frustrate them, and who knows what protects them. A tailgater is ignorance with a weapon at its command—death with a gleam in its eye—stupidity with the power to kill—irresponsibility with a driver's license. His is the diet of Dracula, the energy of a 400 horsepower engine, the curiosity of a rear bumper inspector, the enthusiasm of a horseman in hot pursuit of lady Godiva, and the bashfulness of a fullback three yards from the enemy goal line. No one is more familiar with hospitals or traffic courts. When you don't want him, he's grinning at you in your rear-view mirror. Nobody else can cram into 20 years of driving, 40 cars with shoved-in front ends. And when he gives you the "snap", "crackle" and "pop" of your upper vertebra in a rear-end collision and comes to visit you while you're in traction, he has not lost his power to bring tears to your eyes. He does it with those ancient, familiar words: "I ain't got no insurance!"
