September ceremony in Bolton of interest to Acton friends

By Wendy Thomson

When the youngsters were small, birthdays were no trouble at all—I just whipped up a cake, added the appropriate number of candles, and had that for the dessert of an ordinary dinner.

When the oldest two entered school and had friends in for the parties, it was still very little trouble. Everyone arrived, ran up and down the hills for an hour or so playing games that kids play, came in for a feed of hot dogs, ice cream and cake, investigated the presents, and trotted off home. All I had to do was serve, then pick the scraps of buns from under the table after, pour the water over them to give to the dog, and throw out the paper plates.

Over the years, I heard that other peoples' parties were far more sophisticated. One mother turns off the lights and tells ghost stories, and another takes out her false teeth and makes faces. I'm afraid I haven't the inventiveness for the first nor the means to do the second.

My usual method for entertaining youngsters is to give them some fairly complicated item and leave them alone while they become engrossed in trying to figure out what to do with it. As this doesn't work too well for a group I've been trying to think up something new, exciting (and inexpensive) for Beth's birthday. She will be 11 in a week or so, and every now and then it becomes apparent that she and her friends are on the verge of becoming young ladies.

I've forgotten what young ladies like to do other than sulk and giggle; therefore, I will happily shelve the entertainment problem for a few days and get expert help with it (from the mother of a 13 year old).

The birthday party menu had a good shaking up, and I substituted things that were as filling as hot dogs but a little more fancy. A Party Sandwich Loaf can be made up very easily in the morning, and served with radishes, celery sticks and carrot curls.

Instead of baskets of candies, there will be pop-corn balls at each place at the table. I have already made one batch, and will do another up this week-end using a different flavour. There will be enough left over to wrap up for the trick-or-treat, to save me the usual last minute rush into town to buy candy.

PARTY SANDWICH LOAF

Prepare the following sandwich fillings: ham salad, cottage cheese and pineapple, devilled egg, and chicken salad. You can substitute some of your own favourite fillings just as long as they all go together (peanut butter and salmon tastes terrible). I usually use cream cheese and cucumber instead of cottage cheese. Remove crusts from an unliced loaf of white bread and cut lengthwise into five slices. Spread each slice with softened butter. Spread ham salad between the first and second slices of bread, cottage cheese and pineapple between the second and third slices, egg between third and fourth slices, and chicken salad between fourth and fifth slices. Press loaf firmly together. Wrap in waxed paper and chill in refrigerator for an hour. Frost top and sides of loaf with cream cheese softened with cream, decorate top with whatever you have on hand—chopped nuts, parsley, tomato slices, sliced pickles, etc. Cut into fairly thick slices when serving.

EASY POPCORN BALLS

1 pkg. Jelly powder (small size, any flavour)
1/2 cup white sugar
1/2 cup corn syrup

Mix and bring to a boil, stirring constantly over medium heat. Pour over 4 quarts popped popcorn. Mix and let stand for one minute. Butter your hands and form the mixture into balls whatever size you prefer. (Cherry flavoured jelly is nice to start off with, if you're not too sure what flavor to try).

Renaud-Cleland wedding vows in Knox church on October 5

Fall flowers in white, yellow and bronze shades decorated Knox Presbyterian church on October 5 for the four o'clock wedding of Dale Lorraine Cleland and Daniel Wayne Renaud.

September sun shone brightly for the marriage Saturday of Patricia Doreen, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Keith Wallace, Bolton, to Mr. Richard David Shaw, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Shaw, Brampton.

The bride's mother is the former Doreen Ruddick of Acton, daughter of Mrs. John Ruddick, and the late Mr. Ruddick.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a full length redingote, styled gown of white organza and lace, featuring a sheath dress of organza over satin. The attached redingote of organza and net was bordered with scalloped lace. The square neckline dipping at the back of the gown to a wide satin bow. The tily point sleeves were of lace. Her three tier bouffant veil fell from a heart-shaped headress of organza, pearl and sequin petals, centred with a single dewdrop crystal. Her cascade bouquet was of red rosebuds and white poms.

Miss Elizabeth Waugh, Rexdale, was maid of honor and wore soft yellow; the bridesmaids were Miss Donna Shaw, Brampton, sister of the groom; Mrs. Debbie Marr, Bolton, and Miss Jo Anne Wallace, Bolton, sister of the bride, who were attired in mint green. Their full length gowns were similarly fashioned in chiffon over satin; with high scooped neckline. A floating panel of chiffon fell from a satin bow at the back, and their headresses were of matching bows and they carried nosegays of green and yellow poms with matching ribbons.

Best man for the groom was Jim Uhlman, Cookville. Ushers were Gord Shaw, brother of the groom and Paul Evans of Brampton and Bob Wallace, twin brother of the bride, Bolton.

A reception at Bolton Legion Hall followed the ceremony and receiving her guests, the bride's mother wore a mint green ensemble of crepe sheath dress with matching lace coat. Her shoes were matching, and she wore a gold hat and accessories. Her corsage was of pink rosebuds and white carnations. Mrs. Wallace was assisted by the groom's mother wearing a full length shrimp crepe gown with matching jacket, and headpiece of feathers. Her corsage was white rosebuds with white and shrimp carnations.

The happy couple left for a honeymoon to St. Augustine, Florida, the bride travelling in a fuschia boucle matching coat and dress with white accessories. Mr. and Mrs. Richard Shaw are living at 1840 Bloor Street in Cookville.
