Library Report

By Mrs. Isabel Watson

The Acton Public Library is now open for these last two weeks since the holidays and there are a great many new interesting books on our shelves.

Our reference shelves are looking so much more helpful to everyone.

On the adult shelves, one of the most interesting "The Dead Sea Scrolls" by Edmund Wilson, Georges Simenon's newest novel, "Maigret in Vichy", "Fever Grass" a first novel of John Morris takes place in Jamaica, L. P. Davies' "Stranger to Town" is a must for everyone. "The Unfinished Odyssey of Robert Kennedy" by David Halberstam is another timely book. Theodore F. Harris has written a really fine biography of "Pearl S. Buck".

"D-Day - The Greatest Invasion", a timely book, for it was just 25 years ago that this took place.

"Canada and the First World War" by John Swettenham is written up in an attractive way and plenty of pictures to help along one's interest.

"Religion in Canada" by William Kilbourn speaks for itself as to the spiritual development of our nation.

"Livin'" by I. E. Levine for young and old alike.

"The Green Bough" by Margery Lawrence is almost a whodunit.

The juvenile section has not been neglected. "Ancient Rome" by Duncan Taylor, "Nurse in Vietnam" by Nell M.

Dean; "I Know an Airline Pilot" by Muriel Stanek; "The Infinite Voyage" tells of man's future in space by Paul Anderson.

"The Varieties of Man" is an introduction to the human race by Edward Bahun. "A Spy Case Built for Two" by Amelia Elizabeth Walden is a must for the teen-agers.
