Scout and Guide Mothers

By Marion Patterson

Acton Scout and Guide Mothers held their first meeting of the fall season on August 19 to plan the booth for the fall fair. Hamburgs, hot dogs, soft drinks and home-made pie and donuts will be sold at "pre-inflation" prices, so plan on bringing your family to our booth for a delicious and practical lunch or snack. This ambitious group of women go to a great deal of work to bring this service to the Fair visitors and the proceeds are used for furthering Scout and Guide work in Acton.

The problem of too many youngsters in these groups has again come up and they must divide their packs in order to bring the numbers down to the specified group of each organization to best facilitate the needs of each youngster. This is really a problem for the Group Committee. There are eleven groups, and only five nights in the week. Consequently there is an urgent demand for accommodation for the six outstanding groups to meet.

If each of the churches in town donated one room for one night a week, it would do a great deal to alleviate the problem, and we all surely realize just how important it is to keep the youth groups active in our community, so that they at least have some place to meet.

In the past, the problem of getting leaders for these groups was a real stickler, but now that we have these people who are willing to give of their time to nurture the growth of the young people, surely without going through the lengthy red tape of official boards, there is a way that the facilities can be immediately offered to these groups without hesitation or a long "waiting" period till permission is granted. If the church and community-minded citizens are truly interested in solving the social problems of today, this indeed would be a wonderful way of showing concern and solving the "housing" problem for a weekly meeting place that can be depended upon.

Any former girl guides or boy scouts now grown up, will remember fondly the tremendous fun and fellowship they enjoyed in the organization. So if you have a large room that will accommodate 25 to 30 youngsters for an evening, please contact Mrs. Schnopp, our Scout and Guide Mothers president as soon as possible.

There will be a bazaar on October 25, at which time the very beautiful doll with 12 complete outfits will be raffled off along with a toy for a boy, namely a transistor radio.

Registration for Cubs, Brownies, Scouts, Guides and Venturers, etc., will be a week or so after school starts. Watch the newspaper for further notice.

The Acton band failed to place but played quite satisfactorily, considering the fact that seven members of the band have been playing only a year and 20 were playing in their first competition.

The young band should do well in future competitions.
