MILTON County Council HIGHLIGHTS

During a regular meeting of the Halton County Board of Education on Thursday members:

- Authorized the employment of a student-assistant from the Psychological Department of the University of Waterloo for a four month period at a cost of $2,600. The student, with a masters degree in psychology and working on a doctorate, will assist the three psychologists currently working in the system.

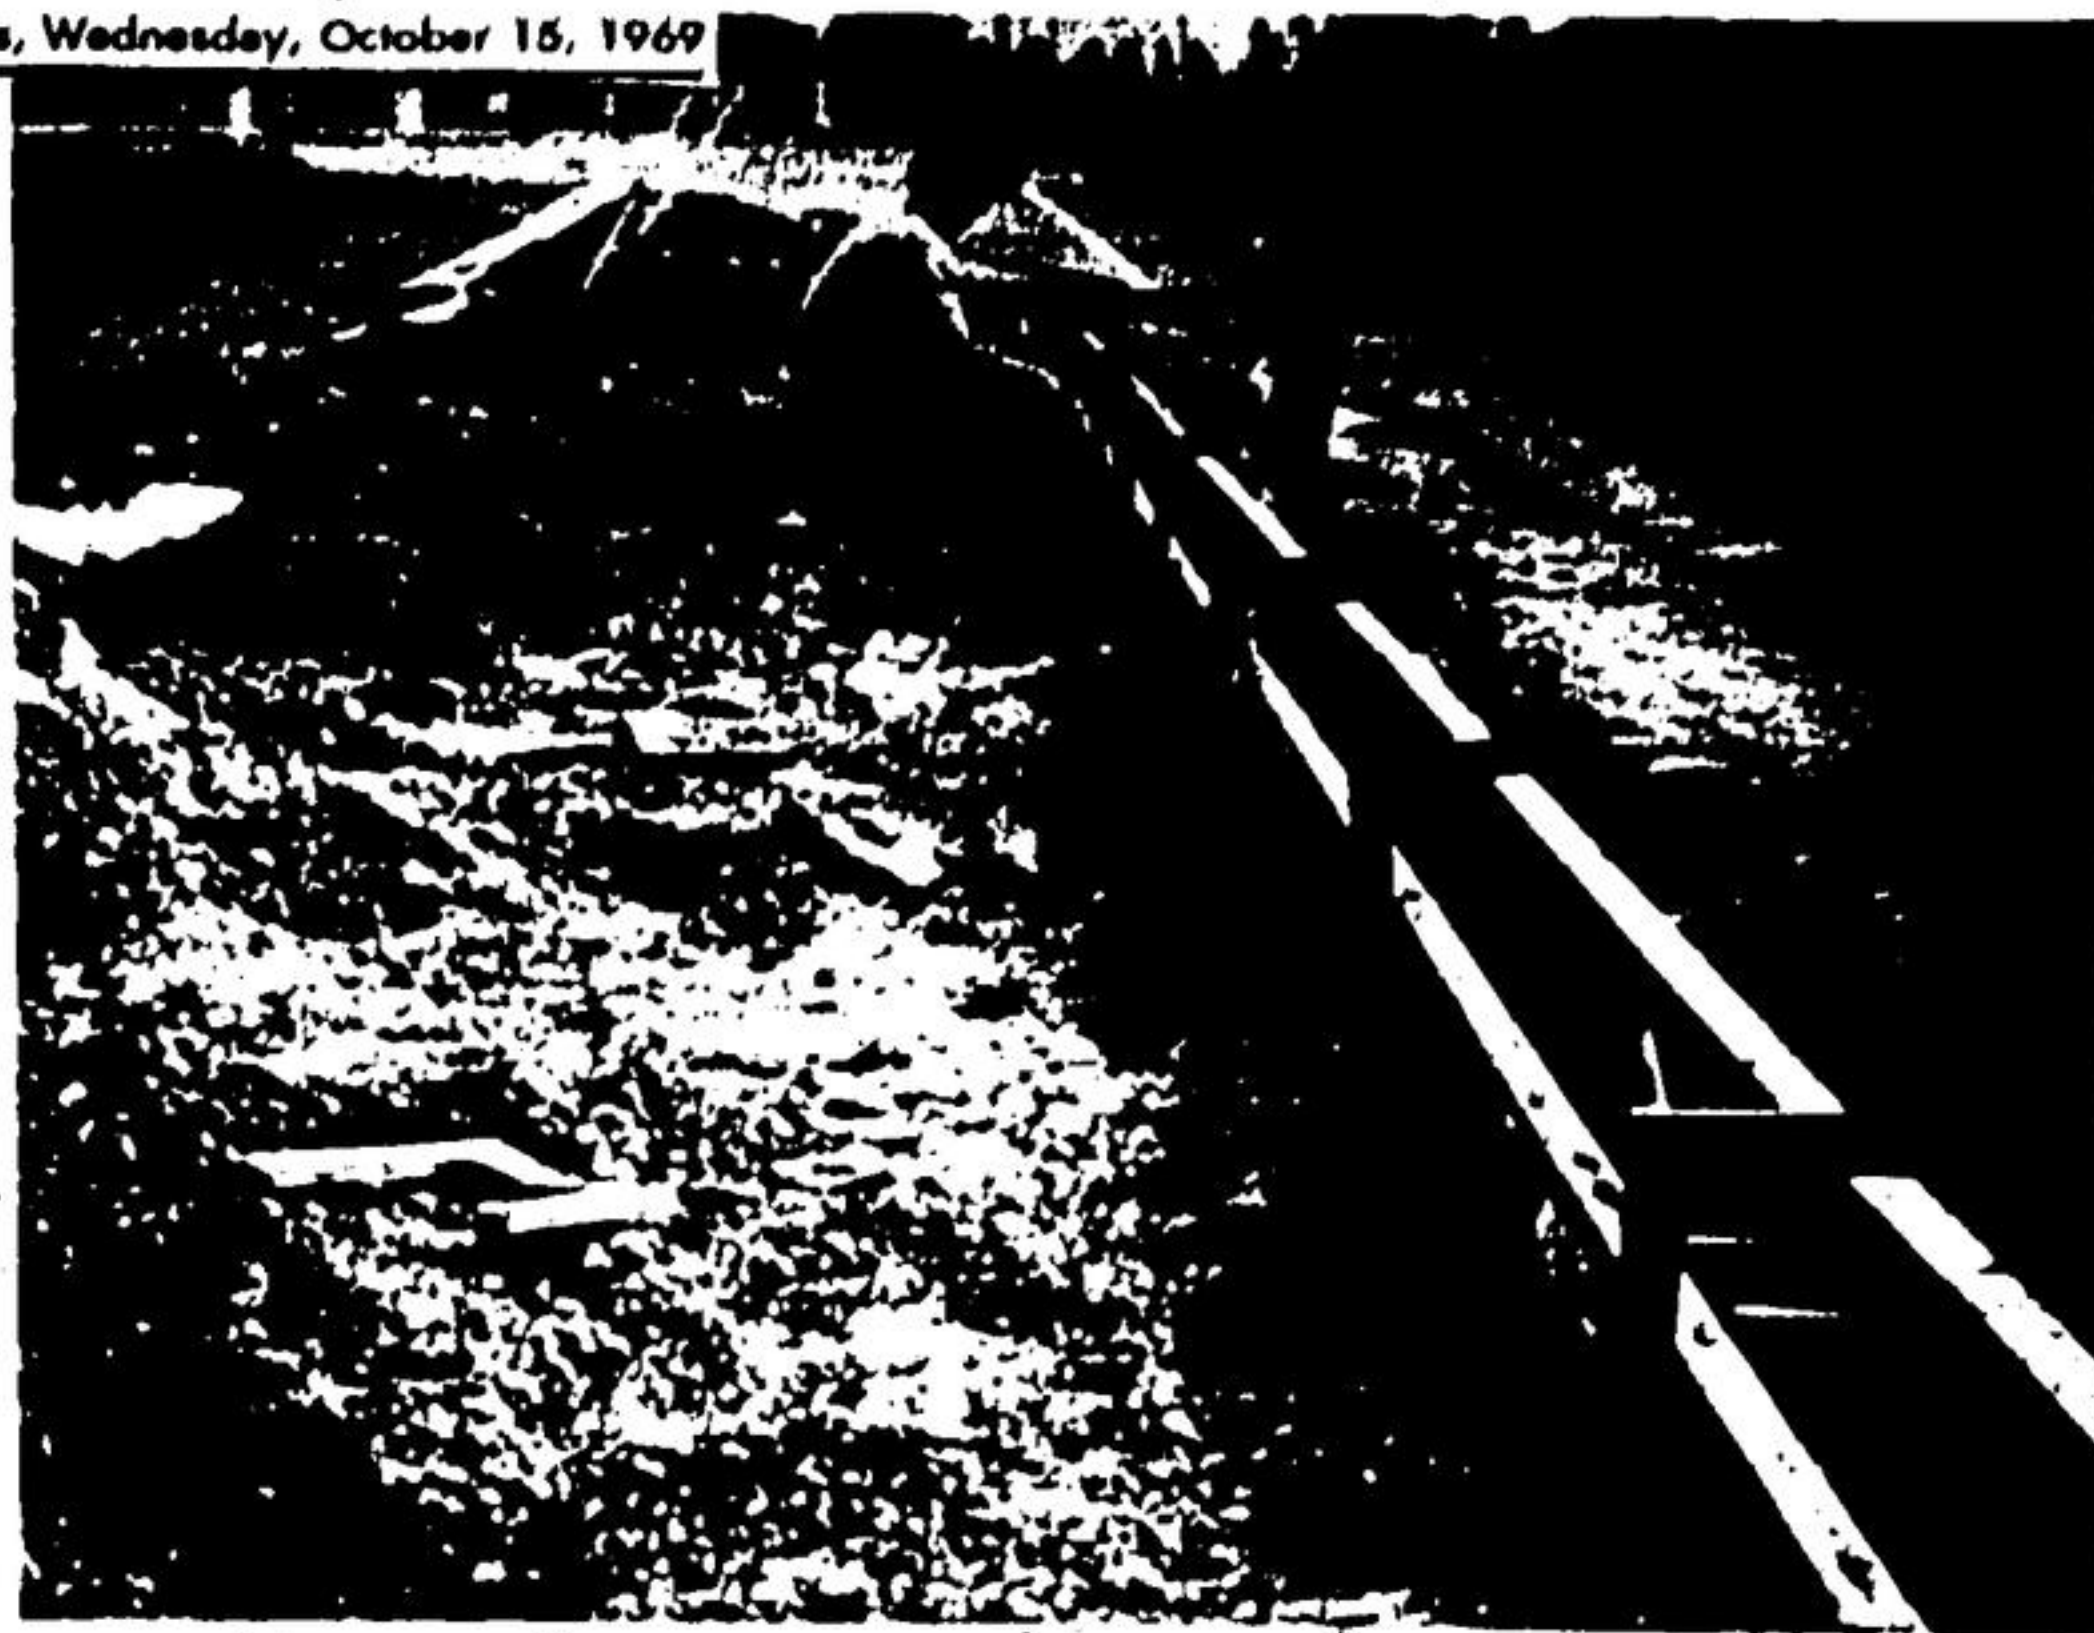

- Approved sketch plans for the addition to the Montclair Senior Public School and a projected budget of $272,000 for the project. The addition will include a music room classroom, gymnasium with stage and two change rooms. It was reported the original school was approved by the Department of Education without the facilities, under the Oakville Board, on condition the facilities be added.

- Agreed to refuse commercial firms the use of schools for publicity purposes and ruled that non-commercial organizations would be permitted general announcements, immediately prior to dismissal, when the announcements had been approved by the Director of Education. Requests to conduct educational contests will also be considered by the Director.

- Agreed to provide a maximum of $150 annually to each secondary school to be used at the discretion of the principal, for awards at commencement exercises. Previous policies in schools had ranged from $60 to $1,200. A move to increase the amount to $250 was defeated.

- Heard a report from the conservation education committee that discussions were taking place with representatives of the Halton Region Conservation Authority to familiarize members with the facilities that exist in the area.

- Received an invitation from the Rotary Club of Milton to hear the Hon. Darcy McKeough speak on regional government at a meeting in Milton Nov. 25.

Expect announcement on dam program

An announcement from the provincial government in the next two or three weeks may clarify the Grand River Conservation Authority's large dam program which includes the one near Everton.

The dam program, estimated to cost $30 million in 1966, has been stalled for three years because the federal government has not approved the project.

The five dams and reservoirs were to have been built with the province and federal government each paying 37½ per cent and the remaining 25 per cent by the authority.

Since then the province agreed to increase its share to 60 per cent with the other 40 per cent being paid by the authority. However, some local municipalities have objected to this proposal feeling that the federal government should participate in the cost of the dams.

Mr. Bauer said he has been in touch with the provincial department of energy and resources, and following the proposed federal Canada Water Act and the position of the G.R.C.A. as well as other authorities, the province is reviewing its position.

Mr. Bauer said the province could change its present grant structure, or leave it as is in any case, the situation will be clarified shortly.

T. J. Heeg of Guelph said the authority can forget about getting financial aid from Ottawa. The federal government now seems to be steering away from all cost-sharing programs.

He said the authority has been willing to accommodate those municipalities opposed to the scheme, but the time is approaching when the authority have to become autocratic and use its statutory powers.

Noting recent reports of how the area is going to expand tremendously in the next few years, Mr. Bauer said unless something is done about the dams, expansion won't be able to occur. The dams are needed to curb pollution. If the pollution level becomes too high, the province could put a stop to further growth and development.

Mr. Heeg said unless the dams are built, expansion is going to choke the municipalities. "They'll poison themselves to death."

Mr. Bauer said it just didn't make sense for the province, on one hand, to encourage conservation authorities to buy scenic, recreational and flood plain land to preserve them for public use, and then, on the other hand, to assess them at the same rate as industrial or subdivision land.

If flood plain land is going to be assessed at subdivision rates, the authority will not be able to afford to keep or buy such lands, he said.

Mr. Coult's felt there should be a conservation use category for assessment, whether the land is in rural areas or urban built-up areas.

Liberal dinner-dance to pay tribute to M.P.

The Halton Liberal Association will hold a dinner-dance Friday, Nov. 7 at the Club Galaxy in Oakville.

Liberal Association President David Butler said a cabinet minister from the Trudeau government in Ottawa will be guest speaker. Butler said he did not want to release the minister's name until he has received official confirmation.

"We're also holding this event to pay tribute to Halton M.P. Rud Whiting," Butler said. "This will be the first time the Association as a whole has had the opportunity to get together with Rud Whiting since he celebrated the anniversary of his first year in office June 25."

The dinner-dance will start at 7 p.m. at the Club Galaxy, south service road just east of Trafalgar Road.

Butler said tickets have already been sold to about 200 persons. About 350 to 400 persons are expected to attend.
