As we always wish to duly recognize every worthy object, we note with pleasure, the success of the anniversary services at Union on the 17th. The services were conducted by Rev. Mr. Pidgeon of Stratford. Each discourse was much appreciated. Mr. Pidgeon is an able speaker and handles his subject in a most interesting manner, so that he has no trouble in sustaining the attention of his audience. The music by the choir also added interest to the occasion. The services of the choir were very faithfully rendered upon the organ of the praise.

Mr. H. M. McLean, who has been leader for about 20 years, and connected with the choir for 40 years. The congregation was exceptionally large; at the evening the seating capacity being over filled.

The offerings of the day were entirely satisfactory. May success continue with this congregation.

BALLINARAD.

The home of Mr. F. H. Near, Reeve of Esquinton, was the scene of a pretty wedding on Wednesday evening, February 28th, when his daughter, Miss Aneutie Near, married to James H. Reid, eldest son of Mr. Robert F. Reid of Esquinton. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Mr. E. Whitworth, in the presence of about thirty guests, relatives of the contrasting parties. The bride was most becomingly attired in a gown of cream cashmere with satin and ribbon trimming, and wore orange blossoms. She was attended by her cousin, Miss Rita D. McLean of Erin, who was gowned in pretty white muslin and lace garniture. Miss Josephine Reid, sister of the groom, made a sweet little maid of honor. The groom's present to the bride was a handsome silver cigarette holder, the bracelet being a pretty pearl necklace.

Outside the immediate relatives of the families there were no guests present excepting a few intimate friends of the bride.

Pity and Beauty

The most beautiful thing in the world is the baby dimpled and joy. The most pitiful thing is that same baby thin and in pain. And the mother does not know that a little fat makes all the difference.

Dimples and joy have gone, and left hollows, and fear the fat, that was comfort, and color and curve-all but pity and love-is gone.

The little one gets no fat from her food. There is something wrong; it is either her food or food-mill. She has had no fat for weeks; is living on what she had stored in that plump little body of hers; and that is gone. She is starving for fat; it is death, be quick!

Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil is the fat she can take; it will save her.

TERESA GOTTA.

Anniversary services were held in the Methodist church on Sunday. There was a good congregation in the morning and an overflowing house in the evening.

The services morning and evening were conducted by Dr. Mr. (Rev.) Jordan of Ingleswood. Mrs. Jordan, who was one engaged in evangelistic work, preached two excellent sermons, which were listened to with the best of interest.

The debate at last week's literary was the most interesting of the season. The question was, "Prohibition," those in favor being Messrs. Gibson, Wilkinson and Milligan; those opposed, Mr. Patch, Lyons and McLean. A hard fight was put up by the opponents, but they were finally beaten.

Others, however, thought the singing was a reasonable excuse of black. All were agreed, except when they were foolishly carried away by the enthusiasm of the audience. Both sides had studied up the subject and even government blue books were in evidence. Mr. Coulter presided and the order was good.

There was quite a practical discussion of the subject. Some of the members expressed themselves as opposed to the practice of abstaining, a preponderance of black having the tendency to add girth to girdle. Others, however, thought the eating of a reasonable amount of black was appropriate. As to Sunday fare, all were opposed, except when they were foolishly carried away by the enthusiasm of the audience. Both sides had studied up the subject and even government blue books were in evidence. Mr. Coulter presided and the order was good.
