The Georgetown Herald

WEDNESDAY EVENING, JUNE 11, 1902

We understand that it is the intention to lay down more lines this season. It will be well to see that the quality is an improvement on the present one, the smooth surface of which makes it so dangerous at times.

In the Beer war, the "blondly Maun" wasn't nearly so fatal as was the deadly enteric. The total number of British troops who were killed in action and died of wounds was 7,702; the number who died of disease was 18,950.

AN OLD HALTOUN

Most of the members of the Hamilton Congregational Church have been absent from the services since the death of Rev. J. D. Moore.

MR. O'BRIEN CHAIRMAN
