

The Georgetown Herald
WEDNESDAY EVENING, SEPT. 20, 1900

CURE

SICK

HEAD

ACHE

Groceries, Staple Dry Goods, Crockery, Glassware, Boots and Shoes, Etc.

COLIN MITCHELL,
STEWARTTOWN,
DEALER IN

Groceries, Staple Dry Goods, Crockery, Glassware, Boots and Shoes, Etc.

Also a full line of Furniture, Wash and Garments.

Colin Mitchell,
Stewarttown

G.T.R. Time Table.

GONG MORN.
Passenger..... 6.05 a.m.
Passenger..... 10.45 a.m.
Mail..... 11.30 a.m.
Mail..... 8.37 p.m.

GONG NIGHT.
Passenger..... 8.00 a.m.
Passenger..... 8.00 p.m.
Passenger..... 4.58 p.m.
Passenger..... 8.15 p.m.
Passenger..... 8.12 p.m.

GONG NOON.
Passenger..... 8.20 a.m.
Passenger..... 8.15 p.m.
Passenger..... 8.05 p.m.
Passenger..... 8.05 p.m.

Tickling or dry cough will quickly loosen when using Dr. Shoop's Cough Remedy. And it is so thoroughly harmless that you can give it to your baby, nothing else, even to very young babies. The wholesome green leaves and tender stems of a lung-healing medicine, almost as precious as gold. It calms the cough and heals the sensitive bronchial membranes. No opiate or stimulant, nothing harsh to injure or suppress. Demand Dr. Shoop's. Accept no other. Hold by all dealers.

The Mex Talcless Liquor, Drug and Tobacco Cure.

We have yet to hear of one failure to cure where the drug has been given. It is harmless and absolutely without taste. Mother, sister or wife, you would be doing a great work by giving this remedy to some members of your family. We will mail full money refund if treatment of B.S. Rockell Drug Co., H. Catherline, Ont.

The Ladies' Perfume.
Lava-Liver, for the ladies' favorite condition. They cure Consumption, SICK HEADACHE, Inflammation, and Upset Stomach, with instant griping, purging or cleansing.

CASTORIA
For Infants and Children.
The Kind You Have Always Bought

Leave the Signature of A. H. Miller

Drives illumination out of the blood with Dr. Shoop's (Hannibal) Remedy; and see how quickly palls will depart. Rubious man will rest his red-stained head and ease his aching temples. It deepens his complexion, straightening rid of the palls, it after all, what counts. That is why Dr. Shoop's (Hannibal) Remedy goes by the name of the "Remedy to all Diseases." And herein lies the popularity of this Remedy. It is winning dealers everywhere. Tablets or liquid. Hold by all dealers.

All disorders caused by a bilious malady can be cured by taking Carter's Little Liver Pills. No pain, griping or discomfort attending their use. Try them.

It's a pity when sick ones drag the stomach around until the tears and fits may come. A weak stomach, means weak stomach nerves. And this is also true of the heart and kidneys. The weak nerves are trying to get rid of the bilious excretions, and this is the substitute why Dr. Shoop's (Hannibal) is promptly helping stomach, heart and kidney ailments. The failing "male" nerves, and they too feel a great strain. It won't cure so soon as that, but you will surely know that help is coming. Hold by all dealers.

Pre-empt relief in sick headache, dizziness, nausea, constipation, pain in the side, guaranteed to those using Carter's Little Liver Pills. One a dose. Small dose. Small pills.

Steady employment

(for a reliable local hardware representative) is offered to those who will guarantee to buy $500 worth of hardware and adjustable furniture yearly. You will find there is a great demand for hardware and adjustable furniture. Apply to Mr. W. H. Kennedy, 102 King Street, Georgetown.

W. H. KENNEDY,
Furniture and Hardware, Inc., Georgetown.

MILITARY PRISONERS.
How They Are Guarded at Georgetown.

The hardest duty that a soldier is ever called upon to perform in times of peace and the duty which he dreads the most is the guarding of military prisoners. These are divided into two classes:

First—Garrison prisoners, who have received light sentences for minor infractions of discipline and will be returned to duty in a short time.

Second—Military convicts, who for attempted desertion or other serious military crimes have been sentenced by court-martial and confined to hard labor, according to the gravity of the offense.

Those that remain the various elements of those who hold their own, stand now up to one another.

Every morning at 6 o'clock the prisoners are drawn up in a long line in front of the guardhouse, and surrounded by a crowd of spectators. At 6.30 a.m., the "parade-ground," usually occupied formerly by the "garrison prisoners," is crowded with a gigantic camp of "A," which renders their compactness and therefore makes it difficult to count their number.

Each morning at 7 o'clock follows with long and laborious records. Doubtless many have "done time" more than once, civil prison before passing the watch-towers of the recruiting offices and finding their way into the ranks of the regulars.

No long following in the captain's chair to have innumerable pairs of glasses held over your eyes, but a wonderfully quick and easy method by which the little fingers of the examining officer give you a perfect vision. Children's eyes can be accurately examined by this method without asking them questions.

Every morning at 8 o'clock the prisoners are drawn up in a long line in front of the guardhouse, and surrounded by a crowd of spectators. At 6.30 a.m., the "parade-ground," usually occupied formerly by the "garrison prisoners," is crowded with a gigantic camp of "A," which renders their compactness and therefore makes it difficult to count their number.

Each morning at 7 o'clock follows with long and laborious records. Doubtless many have "done time" more than once, civil prison before passing the watch-towers of the recruiting offices and finding their way into the ranks of the regulars.

Every morning at 8 o'clock the prisoners are drawn up in a long line in front of the guardhouse, and surrounded by a crowd of spectators. At 6.30 a.m., the "parade-ground," usually occupied formerly by the "garrison prisoners," is crowded with a gigantic camp of "A," which renders their compactness and therefore makes it difficult to count their number.

Each morning at 7 o'clock follows with long and laborious records. Doubtless many have "done time" more than once, civil prison before passing the watch-towers of the recruiting offices and finding their way into the ranks of the regulars.

Every morning at 8 o'clock the prisoners are drawn up in a long line in front of the guardhouse, and surrounded by a crowd of spectators. At 6.30 a.m., the "parade-ground," usually occupied formerly by the "garrison prisoners," is crowded with a gigantic camp of "A," which renders their compactness and therefore makes it difficult to count their number.

Each morning at 7 o'clock follows with long and laborious records. Doubtless many have "done time" more than once, civil prison before passing the watch-towers of the recruiting offices and finding their way into the ranks of the regulars.

Every morning at 8 o'clock the prisoners are drawn up in a long line in front of the guardhouse, and surrounded by a crowd of spectators. At 6.30 a.m., the "parade-ground," usually occupied formerly by the "garrison prisoners," is crowded with a gigantic camp of "A," which renders their compactness and therefore makes it difficult to count their number.

Each morning at 7 o'clock follows with long and laborious records. Doubtless many have "done time" more than once, civil prison before passing the watch-towers of the recruiting offices and finding their way into the ranks of the regulars.

Every morning at 8 o'clock the prisoners are drawn up in a long line in front of the guardhouse, and surrounded by a crowd of spectators. At 6.30 a.m., the "parade-ground," usually occupied formerly by the "garrison prisoners," is crowded with a gigantic camp of "A," which renders their compactness and therefore makes it difficult to count their number.

Each morning at 7 o'clock follows with long and laborious records. Doubtless many have "done time" more than once, civil prison before passing the watch-towers of the recruiting offices and finding their way into the ranks of the regulars.

Every morning at 8 o'clock the prisoners are drawn up in a long line in front of the guardhouse, and surrounded by a crowd of spectators. At 6.30 a.m., the "parade-ground," usually occupied formerly by the "garrison prisoners," is crowded with a gigantic camp of "A," which renders their compactness and therefore makes it difficult to count their number.

Each morning at 7 o'clock follows with long and laborious records. Doubtless many have "done time" more than once, civil prison before passing the watch-towers of the recruiting offices and finding their way into the ranks of the regulars.

Every morning at 8 o'clock the prisoners are drawn up in a long line in front of the guardhouse, and surrounded by a crowd of spectators. At 6.30 a.m., the "parade-ground," usually occupied formerly by the "garrison prisoners," is crowded with a gigantic camp of "A," which renders their compactness and therefore makes it difficult to count their number.

Each morning at 7 o'clock follows with long and laborious records. Doubtless many have "done time" more than once, civil prison before passing the watch-towers of the recruiting offices and finding their way into the ranks of the regulars.

Every morning at 8 o'clock the prisoners are drawn up in a long line in front of the guardhouse, and surrounded by a crowd of spectators. At 6.30 a.m., the "parade-ground," usually occupied formerly by the "garrison prisoners," is crowded with a gigantic camp of "A," which renders their compactness and therefore makes it difficult to count their number.

Each morning at 7 o'clock follows with long and laborious records. Doubtless many have "done time" more than once, civil prison before passing the watch-towers of the recruiting offices and finding their way into the ranks of the regulars.

Every morning at 8 o'clock the prisoners are drawn up in a long line in front of the guardhouse, and surrounded by a crowd of spectators. At 6.30 a.m., the "parade-ground," usually occupied formerly by the "garrison prisoners," is crowded with a gigantic camp of "A," which renders their compactness and therefore makes it difficult to count their number.

Each morning at 7 o'clock follows with long and laborious records. Doubtless many have "done time" more than once, civil prison before passing the watch-towers of the recruiting offices and finding their way into the ranks of the regulars.

Every morning at 8 o'clock the prisoners are drawn up in a long line in front of the guardhouse, and surrounded by a crowd of spectators. At 6.30 a.m., the "parade-ground," usually occupied formerly by the "garrison prisoners," is crowded with a gigantic camp of "A," which renders their compactness and therefore makes it difficult to count their number.

Each morning at 7 o'clock follows with long and laborious records. Doubtless many have "done time" more than once, civil prison before passing the watch-towers of the recruiting offices and finding their way into the ranks of the regulars.

Every morning at 8 o'clock the prisoners are drawn up in a long line in front of the guardhouse, and surrounded by a crowd of spectators. At 6.30 a.m., the "parade-ground," usually occupied formerly by the "garrison prisoners," is crowded with a gigantic camp of "A," which renders their compactness and therefore makes it difficult to count their number.

Each morning at 7 o'clock follows with long and laborious records. Doubtless many have "done time" more than once, civil prison before passing the watch-towers of the recruiting offices and finding their way into the ranks of the regulars.

Every morning at 8 o'clock the prisoners are drawn up in a long line in front of the guardhouse, and surrounded by a crowd of spectators. At 6.30 a.m., the "parade-ground," usually occupied formerly by the "garrison prisoners," is crowded with a gigantic camp of "A," which renders their compactness and therefore makes it difficult to count their number.

Each morning at 7 o'clock follows with long and laborious records. Doubtless many have "done time" more than once, civil prison before passing the watch-towers of the recruiting offices and finding their way into the ranks of the regulars.

Every morning at 8 o'clock the prisoners are drawn up in a long line in front of the guardhouse, and surrounded by a crowd of spectators. At 6.30 a.m., the "parade-ground," usually occupied formerly by the "garrison prisoners," is crowded with a gigantic camp of "A," which renders their compactness and therefore makes it difficult to count their number.

Each morning at 7 o'clock follows with long and laborious records. Doubtless many have "done time" more than once, civil prison before passing the watch-towers of the recruiting offices and finding their way into the ranks of the regulars.

Every morning at 8 o'clock the prisoners are drawn up in a long line in front of the guardhouse, and surrounded by a crowd of spectators. At 6.30 a.m., the "parade-ground," usually occupied formerly by the "garrison prisoners," is crowded with a gigantic camp of "A," which renders their compactness and therefore makes it difficult to count their number.

Each morning at 7 o'clock follows with long and laborious records. Doubtless many have "done time" more than once, civil prison before passing the watch-towers of the recruiting offices and finding their way into the ranks of the regulars.

Every morning at 8 o'clock the prisoners are drawn up in a long line in front of the guardhouse, and surrounded by a crowd of spectators. At 6.30 a.m., the "parade-ground," usually occupied formerly by the "garrison prisoners," is crowded with a gigantic camp of "A," which renders their compactness and therefore makes it difficult to count their number.

Each morning at 7 o'clock follows with long and laborious records. Doubtless many have "done time" more than once, civil prison before passing the watch-towers of the recruiting offices and finding their way into the ranks of the regulars.

Every morning at 8 o'clock the prisoners are drawn up in a long line in front of the guardhouse, and surrounded by a crowd of spectators. At 6.30 a.m., the "parade-ground," usually occupied formerly by the "garrison prisoners," is crowded with a gigantic camp of "A," which renders their compactness and therefore makes it difficult to count their number.

Each morning at 7 o'clock follows with long and laborious records. Doubtless many have "done time" more than once, civil prison before passing the watch-towers of the recruiting offices and finding their way into the ranks of the regulars.

Every morning at 8 o'clock the prisoners are drawn up in a long line in front of the guardhouse, and surrounded by a crowd of spectators. At 6.30 a.m., the "parade-ground," usually occupied formerly by the "garrison prisoners," is crowded with a gigantic camp of "A," which renders their compactness and therefore makes it difficult to count their number.

Each morning at 7 o'clock follows with long and laborious records. Doubtless many have "done time" more than once, civil prison before passing the watch-towers of the recruiting offices and finding their way into the ranks of the regulars.

COMING! To Georgetown

The Eye Specialist who practices the new System

Be "Looks Into the Eye."

An opportunity will shortly arise for the people of Georgetown, and every country town to have their eyes examined and placed under medical supervision. In London, this has already been done very well with all convenience, convenience, convenience, convenience, convenience.

Professor F. A. Graham

is visiting the Guelph Optical Society, and will be present at the meeting on Saturday evening, October 1st. His services are described as being the best, the most complete, and the most thorough. He has a special system of "free eye examination," which does not require the payment of a fee. All expenses are to be paid by the patient, and he will be charged only a nominal amount for the service.

A new, simple, and effective method of testing the eye is now in use. The eye specialist has invented a system so perfect that it has brought the service of improved sight to my exact knowledge.

No long waiting in the optician's chair to have innumerable pairs of glasses held over your eyes. Instead, the optician's chair is lined with leather, and the patient is seated, and the doctor comes in and examines the eye, and the patient is given a complete, accurate diagnosis.

Children's eyes can be accurately examined by this method without asking them questions.

Cross eyes can in many cases be straightened by wearing glasses fitted by this system.

All examinations will be made by Professor Graham FREE OF CHARGE. There is no cost for the glasses, and the doctor will pay for the glasses. This is an invitation to all to take advantage of this offer.

This is an opportunity for all to many who are unable to visit this specialist in their city offices, and I am fully convinced that those who take advantage of this will be fully repaid in satisfaction and results.

The doctor gets four examinations each day and evening from 6 to 9 p.m., and 7 to 10 p.m., the evening being fully as good as the day time, as all work is done by artificial light.

I have arranged to take a course of instruction in this new method while Prof. Graham is here.

Please bear in mind the fact that this special engagement is for 9 days only, starting Saturday, Sept. 20th, the last day being Friday, Oct. 2nd.

My message to the people is: Come and see me, and help for your eyes. I am now booking appointments.

YOURS TO SERVE,

E. J. SCOTT
Druggist and Optician,
GEORGETOWN, Ontario

Steel Oven Heats Quicker Saves Fuel

Pandora has a sheet steel oven, because steel is more sensitive to heat—absorbs it faster—than cast iron does. Pandora oven thus heats quicker—less time required to get oven ready for the baking—which also means less fuel expense.

The Part That Never Changes.—"What a very attractive part, my dear," remarked the husband, as they returned from the market, the husband having just returned from the fish market. "The 'Part That Never Changes' is the oven," said the wife. "It is too bad," said a mutual friend, "to be a sympathetic physician." The Ilissuses are fond of each other and used to be so successful and pleasant when they came to our home," said the wife.

"Ah, well," replied the physician, "think how much more they are to each other now!"

Little Doctor.—Among the "blouses in bloom" is the remark of the beautiful Miss Janning to George II. She told the king that she would dearly love to see a coronation. A compliment not infrequently made to the young woman by the old ladies.

It is a fact, however, that the young woman's mother was a great beauty.

"I observed, however," said the wife, "what there seemed to be the usual number of dry threats."—London Times.

The Difference.—Huberness is fighting to have it a certain way you want. Strength of purpose is getting in the most convenient way that presents itself what he wants.

The worst feature about calling a doctor is that you are apt to humbug him.—Punch.

It Pays to Buy the Best

Fine Fresh Fish

Salmon Trout

White Fish.