THE GEORGETOWN HERALL

WEDWEDAY EVE'G, JULY 11, 191

(By Folger M'Kineley) Fishin' is nomethin' that's more to me.
Then belt and tack is and hook and line Phhin is gettle' right next to a tree And the bloom and the bird and

And then you sit down death

And the birds sing and all the wild at Peking that the envoys of the

Bome fallers think flabin' is fillin' their

My fishin's the glory of bein' out there. To hear the leaves talkin' and clappin' And get my old heart full of beauty and And feelin' more love when I kneel . down to pray.

WHERE WE FIGHT

There are some folks who make a feast about each little thing, they keep an everiestin' how? on tap to make the beavens ring. Ob, they ain's pleased with anything, no matter what it is, from soop to coffee or to stew, from sodus to jis lizz. They always find in everything a cames to make 'em awear and turn their fine artistic an oute appointin' in the air. Oh when they wander to the kirk to let the parson breach, and hear the organ belier and the leadin' lady screech, they whack the preacher fore and alt, he lacks both vim and fire, and all the crickin singers is a campin' in the choir. It ain't no use to go along and bungle through this life, with a face that looks for all the world like some big butcher halfs attack beneath our skin, and we meet the things that wax us with the same old bomely grip, and things come easy every day what folks will take a file and rasp the wrinkles off their brow and try and sprout a smile. But say, there's coething we can't down, no matter how we choke, we'd rether have some horny fist a landin' us a poke—it sets us good in the strong onlose for his tes. Ark simply this you see, to set up close to him what's el strong onlose for his tes. Ark There are some folks who make a fuse Twenty-third street a box of old mansimply this you see, to set up close to him what's et strong onions for his tea. Ark

AN EMBROIDERED CEILING.

14 Once Grased the Chinese Imperial One of the most beautiful and elaborate pieces of embroidery ever exhibited in New York was the ceiling of the council chamber of the imperial. pulace at 'Paking, 'This coiling was formed of yellow silk of heavy quality that much resembled falls in the blue, woven in a small diamobd pab Now, you take your wrigglin old worm tern. The total measurements of it all were twenty-one foot alx inches long and nineteen feet six inches wide. The deelgn with which it was embellished was an imperial dragon in the center and four others, one in each corner. Encircting thead is ground work was formed of cloud pattern, and dispetsed were small bats and other symbots. The cloud effect was worked out in blue and perple and the bats in pink. The dragons were largely gold work, and s.threefold time of gold surrounfed each part of the dealen. .The story of this coiling and how !

FIRST BEAUTY DOCTOR.

The first "Yeauty doctor" to mis wide celebrité was one Balsamo, son of a poor shopkeeper in Palermo, but beet known by his assumed title of Count Alessandro di Cegliustro. Ile was born in 1743 and was educated in d monastery. As a young man lie went to Blome, where he met and mee . ried a beautiful girl, says an exchange. The pair then traveled over Europe under the names of Count and Countess Cagliostro, going about in a mag. O piscent coach and four and securing sores to the highest modety of the fortune by Selling a "wine of Egypt." disposed of tu drops as being more precious than nectur, the use of which was alleged to restore vigor and jouth and beauty to wornout and wrinkled men and women. The Countess Beraphina adduced hisself as a living evidence of the emeany of the elisty, averring that she was pest sixty and had a son who was-a voteran soldier. The count claimed to be an octogenarian. Vor years they carried on's highly profitable trade in Egyptian drops, beauty waters, wrinthe eridicators and love pulitors, but at length, after long enjoying the favor of kings, princes and nobles, Canllos. Q tro was thrown into prison and his wife confined in a convent, where both

ARABIA'S DIVERTED RIVER.

Work That May Have Been Directed by Alexander the Great Arabia lies at the head of the l'erdan gulf, its western boundary being the Shat-el-Arab, the great river formthe Shat-el-Arab, the great river formed by the combined waters of the Tigris and Euphrates, the right bank of which and Euphrates, the right bank of which is in Turkish Arabia. Forty miles above where it flows into the Persian gulf the Shat-el-Arab is joined by the Karun, and the town of Mohammersh stands at the junction of the two vivers, the former a clear green stream, the latter thick and red. In ancient times the Kurus flowed into the gulf and part of the river still runs along the old channel, but the main stream has been directed three miles above Mohammerah Into au arth Scial channel known goographically as the Haffar canal.

It is impossible even to make a guess at the date of this wonderful work. not even a tradition remaining of the rater whose farsighteduess realized the enormous value and possibilities of the waterways.

Alexander the Great has been suggested, but apparently for no other reason then that he is a convenient and likely person to credit with any ambitious enterprise and that one of his many Alexandrias was built on the alte of the present Mohammerali.-Wide World Magazine.

Force of a Flying Bird. The marvelous force with which a hird dies was strikingly illustrated recently when a partridge crushed through a big window of a country estate. The window was glazed with plate plans a quarter of an inch thick. The bird, which welghed twenty ounces, was found dead in the living toom eleven feet from the window. The impact of its body broke a bole lu the beavy glass about three feet in diameter. The window is more than five feet square and close to the ground. It overlooks a large lawn, which at certain times in the day is very vividly redected in the glass. It is thought that'the bird was deceived by this refaction into thinking it was flying through an opening. Nearly all of the broken glass was thrown into the room.-Detroit Vree Procs.
