To Day's Story

Making an Acquaintance
Method Was Breezy, But Effective

By F. A. MITCHEL

Miss Altherton had gone to the country for the summer. She was a devoted automobile enthusiast and had intended to drive herself to the summer home of the Althertons, but the machine she had purchased was a dud.

She had bought a new car, a Buick, and she was very proud of it. She had spent a great deal of money on it, and she was determined to make it pay for itself.

She had driven it for a few days, and she was very satisfied with it. She had found it to be a very comfortable and reliable car.

She had driven it to the country, and she had found it to be a very convenient and comfortable mode of transportation.

She had driven it to the city, and she had found it to be a very convenient and comfortable mode of transportation.

She had driven it to the mountains, and she had found it to be a very convenient and comfortable mode of transportation.

She had driven it to the lakes, and she had found it to be a very convenient and comfortable mode of transportation.

She had driven it to the planets, and she had found it to be a very convenient and comfortable mode of transportation.

She had driven it to the galaxies, and she had found it to be a very convenient and comfortable mode of transportation.

She had driven it to the universe, and she had found it to be a very convenient and comfortable mode of transportation.

She had driven it to the end of time, and she had found it to be a very convenient and comfortable mode of transportation.

She had driven it to the beginning of time, and she had found it to be a very convenient and comfortable mode of transportation.

She had driven it to the middle of time, and she had found it to be a very convenient and comfortable mode of transportation.
