CHEAP—Offers for those whose consciences have been troubled by the war are proposed in Ontario. Separation from a faithless marital bond should be made cheap, so as to be within the reach of all but not any so as to become a national disgrace.

IF THE London Times has the German peace terms for Russia stated correctly, the world is given a splendid idea of what the Huns regard as a fair and democratic peace. For the allies to enter upon peace negotiations with the enemy at this time would, in view of the Russian experience, be absolutely suicidal. The fight must go many rounds yet before a truly democratic peace will be possible.

IF YOU have a copy in the house of "The Finest Mystery," one of the latest books turned out by the Russelites, burn it. It may not give much heat, but what you will save by burning it would buy a big pile of fuel. The fine for having this book in your possession is just $5,000, or a year's imprisonment, or both. The book has been pronounced "objectionable" by the Canadian Secretary of State, and it is illegal to sell it, give it away, lend it, or even to have a copy in your possession. Other titles of the Russelites also come under the ban.

While there is a good deal of usage of the words Bolsheviki, Mensheviki, Minimalist and Minimalist, not a great many people understand their meaning. Bolsheviki is pronounced, most generally bol-she-veek with the accent on the second syllable. The plural is bolsheviki. It is a Russian word meaning "majority" "the most." In present day Russian politics the Bolsheviki are the most extreme radical members of the Social democrats. It is the antithesis of the Mensheviki (plural Mensheviki), the "the least" "the smallest," the most moderate of the Social Democrats. The latter are really the idealists of the party believing in a gradual social revolution. Mensheviki and Minimalist are the French terms for the extreme and moderate socialist respectively.

THE appeal of the Food Controller to produce large quantities of maple sugar and syrup this spring should receive a ready response from those who have groves of maple trees. While maple sugar can be made as it was in the early days of settlement, with every simple apparatus, the work is greatly reduced and better products made when a modern equipment is utilized. For the instruction of those not entirely familiar with advanced methods the Publications Branch of the Department of Agriculture at Ottawa has issued Bulletin No. 2—B entitled "The Maple Sugar Industry in Canada." By taking advantage of this publication it makes very clear the operation of a maple sugar plant. The time to tap, the utensils to use, the refining and handling of the product are all dealt with. This bulletin is available for distribution to those who apply for it.

THE Food Controller urges people to eat onions and carrots. There should be no necessity for impressing on the minds of people the value of these vegetables. They are acknowledged as valuable as nutrients. Scientists tell us most that the two vegetables mentioned contain essential properties towards the making of good health. Some people, particularly the younger set, possess at times an aversion to the onion because the odor being a trifling repulsive when one is attired in full dress suit or on a mission that may lead to a matrimonial venture. The same objection does not hold good in connection with the carrot. It may be used without later embarrassing situations cropping up. However, the chief reason for the somewhat imperative order of the Food Controller is that these vegetables now on hand will lose their powers as a diet unless consumed. They are now best fit for human consumption. By taking advantage of this condition people will assist in helping out the food situation.

We trust the Industrial Committee of the Town Council are maturing plans for filling the empty houses in town.

A year or so ago houses were at a premium, rents were hoisted, and new comers to town could not secure houses according to their love or money. For some reason or other, things are quite different now.

The coal situation in town has greatly improved since our last by the arrival of a number of cars of black diamonds.

The dealers are busy now supplying their customers. It is to be hoped the worst is over and let us be thankful it has not been as bad as it might have been.

Not in many years has the hollow been so badly flooded as it was on Tuesday night, when a number of those living along Commercial street had to be taken out of their homes, caused by the fire jumping to the creek and backing up the water.

The flood was at its worst about one o'clock. One man who started out on foot, was carried back when he found himself in water up round his waist and had to turn back. There were cries for help from a number of quarters where the water had entered their homes, and they were rescued by willing hands and taken to places of safety.

Ocellars in stores and other places along Main st. were badly flooded by the water backing up to the sewer, and in some ocellars the water was over a foot deep, putting out the fire in the furnaces in some instances. By morning however, there was another story to tell, the temperature having taken a big drop, and conditions became normal again.—Reformer.

An Appeal

To the Men of Georgetown:
The Women's Patriotic Society find themselves in need of a considerable sum of money to enable them to carry on the Patriotic work in which they are engaged. They are therefore asking for the generous assistance of the men of Georgetown.

In order that the appeal may be met in a systematic way, a strong Committee of men have undertaken to make a canvass of the town, the amount which they have set as their objective is $1,000.

Mr. C. B. Dayfoot is the Chairman of the committee, Dr. Heath the Secretary and Mr. C. M. Grandy the Treasurer.

Commencing on Saturday morning, the canvassers will endeavor to see every man in town.

It is hardly necessary to mention in detail the work which the Women's Patriotic Society has been doing. In the aggregate they have sent overseas, tons of soldiers' comforts, socks, handkerchiefs, and many other articles.

They are prepared to go on with this good and very necessary work if supplied with the money which will purchase the raw materials.

This is the first direct appeal for money that the Society has been doing. Every man who knows that the men of his town will know that the men of his town will know that they have been doing for the soldiers.

A LETTER FROM FRANCE
Many readers of the Herald will remember the late D. B. Arrowsmith, who at one time had a harness shop in town and who died about 18 years ago. He left a boy of two years, who with his step-mother (now Mrs W. J. McKechnie) moved to the States. The boy, now 20 years of age, enlisted in the American Army last May, a few weeks later went to France and is now a Sergeant.

The following letter written to Mr. Warren, who has looked after his business affairs since Mr. Arrowsmith's death, will be read with interest.

France Jan. 20, 1918.
Mr. R. D. Warren, Toronto.

Dear Mr. Warren:
I suppose you receive many letters from the Canadian Forces in France but not many from boys serving in the American Forces. I have been in France for about five months. We were on a month on the boat from the time we left the States until we reached England, a long and rather tiresome trip, although we had very good accommodations on the boat.

The trip across the English Channel was short enough but rather disagreeable. One part of the trip at least I enjoyed very much and that was a practice march on Canadian soil.

We had a good deal of amusement with some of the Canadian children for they all had different ideas of who we were and where we came from.

I have not seen much of France during the five months we have been here but my impression so far is that the country and people are not as progressive as the English speaking people. The weather here consists chiefly of rain, producing plenty of mud, but a windy day, or snow to try it up. This is followed by more wind.

I had a picture taken about a month ago and intended sending one to you but found that the censors' rules would not permit it. We can send personal photographs to the States but not to Canada or England.

I will always be glad to hear from you. Letters now are especially welcomed in France.

Sincerely
John O. Arrowsmith.

Dealing with the system by which personal effects of deceased Canadian soldiers are returned to Canada, a Military Department memorandum says that these personal articles are collected by the unit in which the man served and forwarded as quickly as possible to the authorities in England. When received in England, they are checked and sent to Canada as soon as transport is available. In Canada they are forwarded by express to the next of kin, but five months usually elapse between the time of the soldier's death and the receipt of his personal effects. The memorandum goes on to state that experience goes on to show that the overseas authorities cannot take any action towards final disposal of an estate until some months after an officer or man is officially reported to have died.

Sufficient time must be allowed for the audit of the account and its transfer to Canada, where it is checked and distributed. The distribution of estates should not be expected before eight months after the soldier's death. Before the official certificate of death can be issued by militia headquarters it is necessary to receive from the overseas authorities in writing a confirmation of the casualty report. This sometimes takes three months.
