THE COMING OF MAYTIME

I wonder if you keep a bit of Maytime in your heart?
And if, when other hearts are sore and sad,
You ever think to comfort, and to lend them just a part
Of springtime joy that makes your own so glad?
I wonder if you've seen the way a bit of Maytime weaves
Its thread of gold thru every gloomy day.
Till, when you're looking back, the shadow fades and leaves
The sunshine in your memory—that stays?
I wonder if the sweetness that a bit of Maytime gives,
Is ever in your soul's most secret shrine?
The incense in the service of a love that ever lives—
Then all of lusty happiness is thine?
I wonder if you'll keep a bit of Maytime for the years
When sorrow spreads its shadows over you?
You'll find its rainbow-gleam will ever, shine thru all your tears
The sunshine of the Land of Linger Loo.

ONE OF THE tragedies of the day is an old home where the children have passed out and only the old people are left. In some cases it was built or extended to accommodate a multiplying family, the grounds and garden were spacious and easily kept in good shape by those who were continually growing up to help the father, and often the mother, in keeping the lawn nice and the garden well cultivated. But time went on and one by one the children passed out to homes of their own, until at length the time came when only the old folks were left and they were unable to do the work necessary in keeping the place in order. The home is dear to them because of old associations—none other will ever be quite the same. They hate to move and yet long for a quiet place; free from the constant exactions of the homestead. Its hard, very hard, but its the way of the world. Yet one sympathizes with the old people. What a pity it is that young people when they move out have to get so far away from the old home that when they visit it they appear like more than strangers.

—With regard to the arrangement instituted whereby correspondence of a private and family nature can be forwarded from individuals in Canada to persons in enemy and enemy occupied territory through the medium of Thos. Cook & Son, 580 St. Catherine St., W., Montreal, difficulty is being caused owing to persons remitting the charge for forwarding these letters (85c) by postage stamps instead of by means of a Postal Note for 80c with five cents in postage affixed thereto. The attention of persons sending such correspondence is particularly directed to this, as in future where the charges are remitted by means of postage stamps the letters will be returned to the senders. R. M. COULTER, Deputy Postmaster General.
