The Prompt Answer!

IF the habit of answering promptly when the telephone bell rings were universal, the saving of time would be enormous.

Few things are more pleasing to telephone users than a prompt and courteous response to a telephone call. In business, the practice of prompt answering has been a money maker, for customers appreciate it.

Practice prompt answering yourself and make it a rule in your business.

Norval

Mr and Mrs G. Gellor, of Norval, and Miss McGuire, of Manitoba, are visiting at Sheriff Webster's.

After an absence of over eight months, Mrs Francis Hunter has returned to her home at Norval. She visited her daughter, Mrs E. A. Epply, of Saskatoon, Sask, and in company with Mr Early's family and her son, J. F. Hunter, spent the winter in La Jolla Park, San Diego, Southern California.

Incidentally she visited San Francisco, Los Angeles and Pasadena, and greatly enjoyed a few days with Mrs Mahahan and Miss Harrison, at Long Beach. With them she attended the Annual Orange Show at San Bernardino, and inspected an orange-packing plant at Riverside. Brief stays were also made at many other cities in the United States, and at Tia-Juana, Mexico.

On the return trip, old acquaintances were renewed with Mrs J. T. Smith, and Captain Frank Moore and family, at Vancouver. A few delightful days were passed in Regina, at the home of Mrs H. A. Reid, there meeting old friends amongst whom were Mr and Mrs A. M. Robson and family, and Mr and Mrs Stephens, formerly local residents.

Very general regret was experienced last Thursday around Norval, as it became known that Mr. W. G. Davies, the popular manager of the local branch of the Bank of Nova Scotia, had received promotion to the Bank at Bridgen and was to leave for his new appointment at only two days' notice.

So great a liking have all classes of the community for Mr. and Mrs. Davies, that they could not let them depart without manifesting this feeling, so a surprise party and a presentation were hurriedly arranged for by Mr. John N. McPherson and others, and actually carried out the same evening. The inmates of the bank residence were surprised in the labors of packing, but they at once graciously relinquished this task for the more agreeable one of greeting their many assembled friends. Mrs. A. Noble came forward with an address from the Red Cross Society, eulogistic about the services of Mrs. Davies in this work and anticipating a very prominent gap in the ranks by her withdrawal. A pretty glass bowl was given Mrs. Davies as a little remembrance, and she smilingly responded. Mr. Wilson then read a short expression from the men of the community, who have very much appreciated the unflinching courtesy and business integrity of Mr. Davies during his manager'ship extending over a period of four and a half years. Their tangible offering was a purse of money; Mr. Davies suitably replying.

The gathering then took on a social aspect and excellent music was contributed by Mrs. George Brown, Mrs. Davies, Mrs. E. Noble of Toronto, and Mr. Joe Hunter. Short impromptu speeches were made by Mrs. A. Noble, Mr. J. W. Campbell, Rev. Mr. Ferguson, Mr. A. Noble, Dr. Gollop and others. Mr. Jack McPherson was the efficient master of ceremonies.

The strains of Auld Lang Syne sounded at last and farewells were said and it was very evident that Mr. and Mrs. Davies were leaving in Norval many sincere and affectionate friends, who, in their turn, were losing two valued members of the community.
