The Georgetown Herald

Wednesday, July 10th, 1918.

It is not difficult to see the significance of the events that have transpired in the history of our country since the outbreak of the world-wide struggle. We are now at the height of the year and there has been no sign of the summer yet. At no time have we been too hot to remember that the coal bin is still empty.

CONFESSING this month the people of Canada are called upon to make some real sacrifices in food that there may be more to send overseas. So far, except for high prices, we have had little to complain of, so far as the interest of Canadians take in winning the war be exemplified in the position they take, and the extent of their compliance with the request of Canada's Food Board for greater food saving.

Military News

Pright Lieutenant William Donville, son of Lieut. Col. and Mrs. Donville of Hamilton, had given his life for the cause. Word has been received that the young aviator, 20 years of age, had died in a Kingston hospital as the result of injuries received in a collision.
A group of soldiers were telling stories around the table of a Y. M. C. A. but a turn of a colonel came around. "I have at home," he said, "I got rattlesnake. I saved its life once and it seems to realize it. One night I was awakened by my wife, who had heard a noise downstairs, gripped my revolver and stole down. I heard a struggle going on in the dining room. Imagine my surprise when I saw my rattlesnake with his body tightly round a burglar and its tail out of the window rattling for a policeman."
