The Georgetown Herald

Wednesday, September 11, 1918.

THERE OUGHT to be nothing more popular than the appeal for help for British seamen. So far during the war these gallant men have had very little attention though their's has been the great strain of working always on the alert, and no time for growing weary, no matter how cold the weather or fierce the storm. If anyone has been faithful to their trust it is these watchmen of the deep. Their popularity will no doubt attract all the support necessary. Let the response attest the gratitude for all that we are, what we are and where we are—the result of the efforts of the British mercantile navy to keep the ocean trade moving. Since the outbreak of war no branch of our forces has been called upon to make such sacrifices as the Mercantile Marine. Although members of an unofficial branch of the service and therefore no pension, separation allowance or any other official recognition, the merchant sailors have been forced to face every horror and danger that German terrorism could devise. By day and by night they sail the seas menaced hourly by the floating mines and the submarines. But for their heroism our Allies could not make war for a week; they would be without food and without munition. Fifteen thousand of these men have already given their lives in the Empire's service. Their families are left to their own resources, and in many cases they are in dire distress. Rightly or wrongly they receive no aid from government, and they can look only to the generosity and appreciation of the nation. "Sailors' Week" is a Dominion-wide campaign which is being conducted by the Navy League of Canada to raise money to help them. Ontario's objective is to contribute $1,000,000. The cause is a worthy one, and we believe our citizens will not fail to answer the cry of the distressed. Give generously! Let our slogan be "They shall not want."

METHODIST

At 11 o'clock a memorial service for William King who fell Aug 8th. Evening, The worlds greatest need.

The memorial service for Pte. Garfield Mason was largely attended. The service was according to the parents wish, and was most impressive. The text chosen was, "I shall go to him, but he shall not return to me," It was most helpfully treated revealing the four doctrines of salvation, personal recognition, personal assurance, and final perseverance. The coming union will be spiritual, conscious, and happy, to the Christian. The choir ably sang, "Memories" by St. Clair while at the close Miss Violet Ruddy sang expressively, "Nearer my God to Thee,"
