Every Wage Earner An Investor

Every wage earner can be an investor in a safe, profitable, and easy way. The plan is so simple and secure that it commends itself to everybody.

All of us spend a portion of our earnings thoughtlessly. If it is "lumpy" money, yet most of us would be glad to have it saved for us, because we find it difficult to save it ourselves.

Make your employer do it by means of War Savings Stamps. Say to him: "I want you to take five per cent. of the money in my pay envelope each week, and buy me Thrift Stamps. Then with each $4.00 worth of Thrift Stamps buy me a War Savings Stamp. When you have bought each War Savings Stamp, put it in my envelope. Go on doing that for a year."

That is all. Your mind is free. You will not miss that 75 cents or that dollar which you have hitherto squandered on trifles.

But at the end of the year you will have a little package of War Savings Stamps, each bearing the $5.00 mark, but which have cost you but a few cents over $4.00 each. These Canada will redeem in 1924.

Make Your Savings Serve You and Serve Your Country—Invest Them in War Savings Stamps.

War Savings Stamps can be bought wherever this sign is displayed.

SPRING GLADNESS

How can the day be dreary,
How can the heart be sore,
How can the soul be weary
When all the winds are glad—
When every bud is leaping,
When every bird is singing,
When every flower is blooming,
And summer's just ahead?

There's joy among the flowers,
There's gladness on the hills,
There's laughter in the shadows,
That swell the leaping rills,
Where the happy songsters' feet
Exclaiming loving pledges,
Wait summer's just ahead.

There's joy in every glimmer
Of reds upon the slope,
Emerald gleams and new life
Upon the fields of hope,
Why should a heart beat sadly,
An eye look out with dead,
When all the woods sing gladly,
And summer's just ahead.

Price, and his eyes twinkled.
"It is really serious," Peggy protested. "I have been most thoughtful. Perhaps some distracted mother is now wringing her hands over his absence. He was so captivating, you see. I just kept pushing him on from before the big stone house, where I found him."

"The house is at the top of the hill I must get back to my room."

Bravely she swung the carriage about. The time had come for her to go. She was not to be seen at the house.

"Let me see," said the man matter-of-factly, "if you will let me see you at your college campus."

"Yes," nodded the girl.

"And the second, crossing a busy city street."

"Then there was a time, when you came glowing through the door of the railway train."

"You looked that way to me," said the girl, "like a civil flower in a dreary place."

"Thank you," answered Peggy simply.

"And this," the man went on, "is the only time I have seen you away from your sister's veranda, when you were not surrounded by the same fellow. Your fiancé, I suppose?"

The question was extremely casual.

"My young brother," Peggy replied, "has been very kind to let me go to the carriage handle and stand still before her. 'Your brother?' he has been saying: 'and all this time I've been trying to keep from falling in love with another fellow's girl.'"

"You have no right to speak to me like that," Peggy began severely, but immediately her anxiety was transferred to the nearness of a surrounding stone wall.

"This is the place," she whispered, "where I—look the baby. I've been very quiet some time, would you mind walking with me as far as the front door? If his mother should happen to be angry—"

"Just go to it all to me," Tom magnanimously suggested.

As there was still no response to their summons at the great house door, perplexed and feeling rather guilty, Peggy consulted her protector's advice and waited with him upon the veranda.

Her eyes softened as the nice man rocked the baby in his arms.

"He is not a bit afraid of you," she murmured.

"Them Tom Price laughed. 'Why should he be? He is my own little fellow. She left him in my care for a couple of hours this afternoon. I'd just gone to hunt up his nurse when you came and stole him.'"

"And you didn't tell me," Peggy accused. "You kept walking along and never told me."

"The nice man reflected baby's smile. 'I had to find out about that other fellow, you see,' he said."

SEE EXTINCTION OF COYOTE

Stock Raisers Confident That Their Skulking Enemy Will Be Entirely Wiped Out.

According to stock raisers and farmers, especially in Kansas, the coyote race is being rapidly exterminated. The fencing in of big pasture districts where practically every acre is stocked with cattle has robbed the coyote of his once free and open range.

Because of the depredations on young and helpless domestic stock a bounty has in many places been set upon his head and he has long been a fugitive, hunted and killed by every farmer and stock raiser. The greater part of these houndies are collected in the spring months before the mother wolf has left her den with her family to begin the hunt for food.

By means of the institution of coyote drives of extermination been carried on that the coyotes which rear their families in safety must be cunning indeed.

The coyote has long had a reputation for cowardice, to say nothing of other unworthy qualities, but in the opinion of some this is unfair to the beast. His warfare on sheep long ago led to the institution of coyote drives especially in the far Northwest. Hundreds of men turn out and manage the case of a rabbit drive, when great numbers of cowboys are driven in to a sort of corral, where they are killed.

On one occasion many men and boys in southern Kansas all day drive the coyotes and when they, the men and boys, had all converged at the corral they found just one coyote. In it, and he got away!

To Control Jute Trade.

It is understood that the English government is to keep control of the jute trade during the next season, and that it purposes to give greater facilities for the export of yarns and cloth, as well as to deal liberally with requests for permits, etc., for the home market.

Meanwhile the surprisingly heavy increase in the price of raw materials has made all quotations nominal. There being only one seller in Russia now, the government has had to pay what may be called an exorbitant rate for the fiber.

Changes are also rapidly developing in jute-goods trading arrangements. The granting of grading permits and export licenses has been put on a different footing. More encouragement will be accorded to the shipment of yarns until it is found that this is interfering with the weaving of cloth for home output.

White Whale in the Yukon.

Deputy Minister J. C. Wood of Fairbanks, Alaska, is authority for the story that a white whale has made its appearance in the Yukon river opposite the mouth of the Tanana river. He noted the animal on his recent trip up from Ruby. The deputy says that preparations are now being made for the capture of the whale as soon as the river freezes up a little more.

The whale was headed for some place on the Upper Yukon, but the ice run prevented it getting any further than Tanana. It frequently comes up to the mouth of the river from a number of residents of the lower river town, Alaska Citizen, Fairbanks.
