THE MEDICINE FOR TROUBLE

I've been feeling pretty blue; Have you ever had 'em? Well, I guess they're nothing new. Rothered ever'body, But I found a medicine For my troubles, neighbor—I sat down and I buckled in—With my daily labor.

Try it some time when you're got Feelings that are dizzy; Buckle in no matter what. Just so you are busy All the devil's of despair: In the shadows lurking, Soidon bollier you with care: If they find you working, "Douglas-Millock."

Gardner Lane was busy with the delightful task of painting Amy Roland's portrait. If you had seen Amy you would have really envied him, for she was truly lovely. On this particular day Amy left the studio somewhat later than usual for the picture was just at an interesting stage and Gardner could not bear to stop work till the last bit of daylight had vanished. Mrs. Roland, who always came with her daughter, had left early to keep an appointment and Amy had promised to meet her at five. Gardner had kept her till the last possible moment and she was hurrying toward the front door, when she ran directly into a young man who was coming in the opposite direction. "Be my pardon," exclaimed Amy, as she bounced back in surprise. "Why, Billy Lane," she added, as she recognized him. "Where in the world did you come from? I haven't laid eyes on you for over two years." "Just got here. Amy. I've been out in Colorado working hard. But even an obscure farmer has a right to a vacation now and then, so I'm taking two weeks this time. Maybe it isn't good to see you again—you haven't changed much except to grow up more, so suppose you'd forgotten all about me, though."

Amy blushed slightly, but it was too dark to see. "I hadn't, really; but of course two years is a long time. In another one I might forget whether your hair was red or brown. It's hard to remember much when you're kept pretty busy."

Billy laughed ruefully. "Amy held out her hand with a frank and engaging smile. In another moment she was gone. "For heaven's sake," cried Gardner, saying to his brother from the floor above. "When did you get here? Well, maybe it isn't good to see you again, too! Is this a pleasure trip?" "The truth of the matter is I'm enlisting in about two weeks and I wanted to see the old town before I went over."

"Great Scott, you don't say so! I would myself but I'm beyond the draft age and I hate to leave my work—I'm really needed here. Could they spare you all right?" "Well, you see, I'm my own boss, so I just sold out and came along. I couldn't stay out of it any longer and I'd nothing to hold me back, either."

"I'm single, too, but I may not be long—that's my reason why I don't want to enlist."

"Who is it—Louise?" Gardner laughed. "I should say not! I've had a dozen since Louise. It's Amy this time. I haven't told her yet, but I'm going to marry her."

"Two days later Amy went for another sitting for her portrait and again she found Billy in the hall on her way home. "Hello, Mr. Herald," she scoffed. "You're not wasting time on your old friends this trip, are you?" "Most of them seem to be pretty busy themselves."

"Well, I'm not for one, and to prove it I'll invite you to go for a walk with me now."

"Isn't it lovely out today?" cried Amy enthusiastically. "Yes, but you'd never call this beautiful if you could see it out where I live. Mountains and hills and valleys everywhere you look. And the sunsets—just like those sunsets, Amy. They just make the whole world a blaze of glory and put peace into your soul. I can't explain how it is out there—it's too big for that. But I can tell you it impresses me. Maybe I'm daffy on the subject, but it's simply life out there to me. I feel like our post friend who said: 'I want to go back, and I will! You'd love it out there, Amy.'"

"Oh, I would love it!" she agreed, and almost surprised herself by her own fervor.

"Will you visit me some day then—and your husband?" "Yes, I'd be delighted—provided I have one by that time."

"In the meantime will you consider an invitation to dine with me this evening?"

"I'm sorry, Billy, but I'm going to dinner at the Statou's with Gardner—they asked me ages ago. But I've had a lovely walk with you."

"We'll have to do. Good night."

"Billy!"

"What can I do for you?" "Don't you ever want to walk home with me again? I have three more sittings."

175 Million Advs

Wigley's manufacturers of the famous Spearmint, Doublemint and Juicy Fruit Chewing Gum, have just issued a unique circular to their retail trade, which tells one of the most wonderful advertising experiences that we have ever read.

Wigley's Chewing Gum has been introduced to the public in Canada almost exclusively by newspaper advertising. Figures given in this circular show that Wigley's is sold by more than 80,000 Canadian retailers, that it is advertised in 267 newspapers, magazines and farm papers, from Newfoundland to Vancouver. These publications have a total of 8,147, 628 circulation each issue, which means 165 million Wigley advertisements go out to the public nearly every day through the papers. With this enormous exposure, it is no wonder that the public has responded so heartily in buying Wigley's Gum.

It is barely ten years ago that this message began to go out to the many readers of the sales newspapers. Every year more papers have been used. Today the advertising is larger than ever and the selling cost less.

Recently a Western editor made a comparison between advertising and the advertising of some of his local merchants. He published a statement in his columns to the effect that Wigley's spent more money with him in a month than some of his local merchants in a year, yet, his circulation was infinitely more valuable to the local man than it could be to Wigley's.

Wigley's could only sell chewing gum. The local merchant has hundreds, or maybe thousands, of items that interest the purchaser once he comes into the store. Advertising is needed to arouse interest, to create the desire to buy, in order that the merchant may make the sale. Then he must deliver the goods or the service which will induce the customer to come again. So with Wigley's, the chewing gum must be good or the customer does not wish another package. Wigley's have wisely added good advertising to good chewing gum.

They have told people that in Wigley's the flavor lasts, that it benefits the teeth, appetite and digestion and to "Chew it after every meal."

It seems to us such an advertising story as this is of interest to every reader of this paper, whether he wants to sell a stock of merchandise or a flock of chickens. Whether he needs a page advertisement or a liner want ad. Advertising will help to sell goods, rent your house or get you a job.
