IN CIVIL

Where are the girls that used to smile and the girls I used to get? And where is the crowd that were very proud to pass me a cigarette? Time was, I danced with the maidens fair and captured their hearts by storm. But I've lost my pull with the beautiful since quitting the uniform. I've sunk my shoes into Turkish rugs that only the rich can own. At tables like I've been asked to dine in the heart of the social zone. In the cushions deep of a Japanese I've rested my mummy-form. But I've lost my graft with the lily craft since quitting the uniform. I've been a king on the ball room floor, an ace in the social whirl. I could show my face in any old place, and never a lip would curl. I could walk right up to a rich man's door and be sure of a welcome when I came. But I've changed, a lot and they know me not, since quitting the uniform. Now I walk down town and the autos pass, and nobody says "get in." And the girls are shy when I'm standing by, and they give me the tilted chin. And nobody knows and nobody cares, whether I eat or how. I must buy my chuck, for I'm out of luck, since quitting the uniform.

—Chaunauqua commences 20th. —Canada isn't last experiencing a visit from a Hun submarine—a fine sight under the circumstances by which it is here. —Everybody is preparing for a big great Chaunauqua week in Georgetown, June 26 to July 2nd. It will be the event of the season.

Struck by Lightning
St. Alban's Church came very near losing their steeple, when a heavy thunderstorm broke over the town on Sunday, June 16th. The organ was struck by lightning. Both were stunned and knocked to the floor. They soon recovered. Mr. Mansell was able to walk home to the rectory hereafter. Some slight damage was done to the church and vestry, a small portion of plaster being knocked off. Sulphuric fumes were quite noticeable in the church. It was a miraculous escape for the rector and those in the church, and fortunate that the edifice did not catch fire. The lightning also struck an elm tree close to the church, and stripped the bark from top to bottom.—Free Press.

The last to be disturbed by the wheels of progress is the single-record phonograph manufacturer, who says the playing of all records on one machine "cannot be done."
