

THE CYNIC

He's always just about to have a pain.
He always knows it's just about to rain.
With many grim forebodings he is cursed.
His auto tire is just about to burst.
He always sees his country's early doom.
His only goal of life is nothing but a tomb.
He's always just about to lose his job.
He always sees a grave financial And sits around just waiting for the crash.
There is no good in any thing at all.
He hates the winter, summer, spring and fall.
When others go to give parties go.
He sits at home and waits for it to snow.
He's always looking for the worst of it.
He thinks that every man is a hypocrite.
He always looks as cheerful as a croch.
And nothing in this world amounts to much.
A hardened, wrinkled, sour-faced pessimist.
He'll die and never know what he has missed.

"To give the face a good color," says an expert in London Opinion, "get a rouge and a rabbit's foot. Buy them two miles from home, and walk out and back once a day to see if they are still there."
— A minister explained one day to a bishop why he never went to church "You see, bishop, it's like this," the minister said; "the first time I went to church they threw water in my face, and the second time I went they tied me to a woman I've had to lean over since." The bishop smiled grimly. "And the third time you go," he said, "they'll throw dirt on you."

Trouble Everywhere

By WATT MASON

There is trouble everywhere, as the day's despatches show discontent in the air, every fellow has his woe. From our homes in Easy Street we come charging forth, each day, asking, in the name of Pete, for all kinds of higher pay. In our staid cars we ride, up and down the crowded pike roaring that we are denied luxuries enjoyed by Mike. In our silken shirts and socks we denounce the plutocrats, who have gathered in more rocks than we've hoarded in our flats. All this discontent in view is an after-war disease: it is like the Spanish flu, as you've been told, ran its course and fizzled out, giving place to ailments old, rheumatism and mumps and gout. And the present ailment, diphtheria, which is scouring us to-day, brings a house adrift, soon with and fade away. Soon we'll gather as of yore, chewing topics safe and sane, gathered at the Blue Front Stove, talking of the need of rain, and we'll analyze the crops till the theme has under its hooves, when this plague of diphtheria, like the flu has run its course.
