WHEN THERE'S HEALTH IN THE HOUSE

When there's good health in the house there is laughter everywhere,
And the skies are bright and sunny and the roads are smooth and fair,
For the mother croons her ditties, and the father hums a song,
Although heavy be his burden, he can carry them along.

When there's good health in the house, there are smiles on every hand,
Luck is dancing down the roadway to the music of a band,
Then the hum of wheels is cheery and the daily tasks are fun,
And the toiler smiles at evening at the sum of work he's done.

When there's good health in the house, heart is light and hands are true,
And the poor men court their blessings and the rich are happy, too;
Then the cares which life abounds with seem but trifling things and small,
And a man can laugh at dangers and go safely through them all.

When there's good health in the house, in the house he's left behind,
He is happier than a monarch for he's blest with peace of mind,
For with all he has to struggle he is master of his fears,
For the laughter of his children sweetly ringing in his ears.

—Edgar A. Guest.

A Woman's View

"Let men smoke. It makes them easier to get along with and helps them to think," said Mrs. Luther Hollins, President of the Women's Civic League at Winnipeg, last week. She hoped women would "stop smoking to straighten out the tangle men's smoking and thinking had caused in world affairs.

A DECENT GUY

I'd rather have it said of me,
When this old journey's through,
That on my way I'd try to be
A friend to all I knew,
Than have it said I gathered gold
And then have voices fall,
Because they knew when that was told
They'd really said it all.
I'll gladly pass along my way,
When comes my time to die,
If all who knew him here shall say,
"He was a decent guy!"

I've heard men speak beside their dead,
I've stood in many a room
And noticed what is often said,
By mourners in the gloom.
I've heard high-sounding words of grief
From many a polished tongue,
And stammered phrases of belief
Which from the heart were wrung.
And I shall gladly journey on
To where men's spirits fly,
If some shall say when I am gone
He was a decent guy.

It's hard to think up things to say
When death is at the door,
And speechless many turn away
Whose tongues were glib before.
Yet it's the homely words of men,
True meaning may be found,
While praises which the masters pen
May be but empty sound.
So I shall feel my life worth while
If friends shall testify
And say of me in simple style:
"He was a decent guy."

Tansley Bridge

The leading article in the Canadian Engineer, issued in January, is a description by A. W. Connor, C.E., of the work of erection of Tansley bridge and of the bridge itself, its location and approaches. There are ten illustrations from photographs.

Cattle on Highways

Cattle running at large upon the public highways are there at the owner's risk not only as to any injuries incurred by the cattle, but as to damages caused by the animals. The Uxbridge Journal reports a case where a cow got in the way of a motor car and caused a collision with consequent damage to the automobile and to the clothing of one of the lady occupants. Suit was brought to recover and the owner of the cow was ordered to pay full damage by the court.

Spring Assizes

The spring assizes for Halton will be held at the Court House on Monday, March 29th. Judge Orde, one of the new appointments to the Bench, will preside in place of the late Chief Justice Falconbridge, who was to have presided, but whose death took place after the dates of the different courts had been fixed for the spring sittings. The docket promises to be a comparatively light one, as apart from the Dr. Merill case from Burlington, there are only two or three civil cases to be tried.—Reformer.

Etobicoke Pioneer Dead

Thomas Jackson, father of Reeve William Jackson, of Etobicoke township, died at his home March 10th, in his eighty-ninth year. He had been confined to his bed for about eight weeks. He was known all over the township of Etobicoke, where he had resided since coming to Canada from Yorkshire, England, in 1856. He was a successful farmer. His son, W. G. Jackson, has been a member of Etobicoke Council for ten years. A widow and son survive.

The Newspapers are Hit Hard

Another increase in the price of newsprint paper and the one that is announced to be made next July, will undoubtedly result in the suspension of numbers of newspapers during the year. One result will be that those newspapers that desire to live will have to raise their subscription price. In the United States the price of many weeklies is $2 and $3 and some weeklies in Canada have also adopted the higher rate. Certain it is that under prevailing conditions it will not be possible to continue long at the present rate.

Examinations

Circulars have been issued to the Collegiate and all other institutions in the Province preparing candidates for matriculation and for middle and upper school examinations. They state that an arrangement has been made by the Department of Education, the University of Toronto, Queen's University, McMaster University whereby for the year 1920, where the subjects are common, the question papers shall be the same (1) in the case of the middle and the pass matriculation examinations, and (2) in the case of the upper school and the honor and scholarship matriculations. Under this arrangement certain modifications have been made in the prescription of work in certain subjects, with which teachers and candidates would do well to make themselves conversant.
