The Island of the Night

(Samuel Mintern Peck)
Whether the moments lag or fly
Neath cloud or shine, at toil or play;
Whether our schemes go right or wrong
As years along the moiling day,
There comes at last an hour that's bright
At last God speeds the parting light;
And human hearts a while may rest
Upon the Island of the Night.

The wings of peace are as the dusk,
Her breast is like the evening sky
Her breath is as the sent of musk
Afloat, where sleeping blossoms lie.

And where's the home of Peace
but where
Sweet darkness soothes the aching sight,
And human brains are left of care
Upon the Island of the Night?

I love the daylight tide: yet oft
I weary—wearry of its face:
Winsome songs there are and soft,
But silence was the tenderest grace.

And if I must have sound, give me
The murmur of the breeze in flight
Wafting the voice of Memory
Across the Island of the Night.

Honay there is that needs no ray,
And love's the gleam of day
With bolder radiance but more
So there are hopes with shyest gleams

That even the eye of dawn
would blight;
And such the fairy-footed dreams
That haunt the Island of the Night.

"Let there be light!" God said, and then
Beholding all that was revealed
Within the anguish'd breasts of men—
How much there needed to be healed—
He sent the balm of dusk below
And kindly hid the wounding light

That human hearts sweet rest might know
Upon the Island of the Night.

The Great Question

The writer heard a good man make the following statement to the most tremendous truth I ever heard, he said—There is an hour coming in the life of every man when we have to wade out into the cold river of death, if we have not got Christ and a clear knowledge of salvation there can be nothing before us but the blackest darkness and despair, and that forever. He said if we were worth a million in gold we would give it all for one of the days that we are now throwing away, that we might spend every minute of it praying to God for a salvation that there would be no doubt about it taking us through to Heaven.

THOS. BOLAND.

Norval

Rev. Mr. Patterson who has received the call to the Presbyterian church of Norval and Union, is in Ireland making preparations for removing to Canada. He expects to return the latter part of this month.

Mr. Lorne Campbell was at Picton last week attending the unveiling of a soldier's monument in that town, on which the name of his brother, Stanley Campbell appears, the latter having made the supreme sacrifice.

Glenwilliams

An incident in connection with the death of Jos. Williams, grandson of the founder of Glenwilliams, shows that representatives of five generations now rest in the one plot in the cemetery on the hill in this village. This shows that the Williams were early settlers and also that Canada is becoming an older country. In the plot are the remains of Mr. Williams' grandfather and grandmother, his father and mother, his daughter, his granddaughter and himself.

Terra Cotta

A large number of the neighbors and friends gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Marshall on Wednesday evening Sept. 15th, to bid them farewell and presented them with a well-filled purse, and also a very appropriate address. A good program was also given. The first number was a piano instrumental by Mrs. John McMillan, Rockside. Vocal music by the Cheltenham Quartette, also a solo by Miss Norma Thompson, "Just a Wearying For You," which was highly appreciated. There was also a recitation by Miss Eva Choyne, followed by congratulatory speeches by Mr. E. Townsend, B. Taylor, J. A. McKane, Mr. House, W. H. Brown, Cheltenham, Mr. McMillan, Rockside, B. Patch, Rev. Mr. Aiken, who spoke highly of the work done in the Methodist church here, and that their place would be hard to fill. Mr. A. McKane very ably presided as chairman. A very appropriate toast was served. The remainder of the evening was enjoyably spent in dancing. We all deeply regret the removal of Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Marshall and family from our midst, and wish them every success in their new home in Georgetown.

Action

The price being paid for turnips at the opening of the season this year is lower than last year. The ruling price is 20c. The crop and quality are both excellent.

Mrs. O. A. Gane left for her home at Winter Haven, Florida, last week after spending a couple of months with her mother and sister and other friends in the old home here.

The Acton Farmers' Club shipped a car of wheat to the Goldie Milling Co., Quelph, for which the farmers received $2.42 per bushel, yesterday.

Miss Myrtle Clarridge left last week to attend Normal school at Toronto.

The music at the Fair by the splendid gramofona of Mr. Frank King, Georgetown, commanded general attention.—Free Press.
