Samuel Gardner Party

The Samuel Gardner Party held in the park Friday evening was, in spite of adverse weather conditions one of the successful events of the season. Although the night was rather chilly and damp for remaining long in the open air, the fact that the occasion was a success goes to prove that the people of the community will always put their shoulders to the wheel to support any undertaking with a worthy end in view. The concert was opened by several snappy selections by our band. Beave Dale, who occupied the chair, in a few brief and well-chosen remarks thanked the people of the community for their hearty support of such a worthy undertaking, and also the local talent who gave their generous assistance to make the concert a success.

The programme was of a varied and interesting character, and was with one exception, given by local talent. The entertainer of the evening, Mr. Yale, delighted the audience with his rollicking songs and clever impersonations. The local talent taking part were as follows:—Mr. Carl Adams, Miss Jess Adams, Mrs. C. C. Mackay, Mr. Arthur Herbert, vocal soloists; Miss Black, Cantelli, Herberts and Bone, quartet; Messrs. Bert and Jack Thompson, violinists; Mr. Percy Laird (alias Doc Sawbones), and the tenor boys presented great enjoyment in their presentation of a novel operetta. Mr. Greenwood of Norval was the source of much amusement with his delightful recitations and stories.

The accompanists of the evening, Mrs. Bradley and Mrs. Henderson, rendered their part of the programme in a most competent and artistic manner. Much credit is due the committee of young men of the town who worked so manfully to assist their more unfortunate companion and for making their garden party the success that it was.
