THINGS TO FORGET

Forget the slander you have heard,
Forget the hasty, unkind word,
Forget the quarrel and the cause,
Forget the whole affair, because
Forgetting is the only way.
Forget the storm of yesterday,
Forget the chap whose sour face
Forgets to smile in any place,
Forget the trials you have had,
Forget the weather if it's bad,
Forget the knocker; he's a freak,
Forget him seven days a week,
Forget you're not a millionaire,
Forget the grey streaks in your hair,
Forget the home team lost the game,
Forget the pitcher was to blame.
Forget the coffee when it's cold,
Forget the kick, forget the scold,
Forget wherever you may roam,
Forget the guy who wrote this poem,
Forget that he, in social bliss,
Forgot himself when he wrote this,
Forget your troubles and vexations
Have the best time in creation
Every day.

Tombstone Humor

Our ancestors jested about most things, including death. Taste in humor has changed now, but we can still smile at the quaint turns of thought and frankness in speaking of the dead displayed by some of the epitaphs on old tombstones, says Tit-Bits.

Thomas Fuller, a learned divine of the seventeenth century, gave instructions to have inscribed on his tombstone in Cranford churchyard, "Fuller's Earth." No less a dignitary than Archbishop Potter has these jesting lines on his tombstone in Croydon Church:

"Alack! and well a day,
Potter himself has turned to clay."

Sometimes it happens that the humor is unconscious. An inscription at Pewsey, Bedfordshire, describes the deceased as "First cousin to Lady Jones, and of such is the Kingdom of Heaven."

Another, on the tombstone of an Englishman at Malta, states that he "expired on this island, having been ordered by his doctor to a warmer climate." A Somerset tombstone reads: "This stone marks the resting place of John Clark, accidentally shot, as a mark of affection by his brother.

A Surrey churchyard shows a grave with the name of a woman who "lived a life of virtue and died of cholera, caused by eating green fruit, in the full hope of blessed immortality. Reader, go thou and do likewise."

—Don't remain at home these long evenings and get the "blues," but take in the "movies." Always something good and many laughs thrown in at the Rex. Go tonight.

A Satisfactory Store

The sale epidemic has corrupted the Clothing Business. Coats, Suits and Trousers are marked double their worth and then reduced to half. If some advertisers were compelled to establish the truth of their statements it would ruin them—since it would force them to be honest.

HONEST VALUES!

It is easy to distinguish between our honest values and those false values. That's what has made our business grow. People buy at this store because they know they get the most for their money here and certain of satisfaction.

The success of a store depends upon what it does. Not on what it promises to do.
