In The Public Eye

A man who looks forward to a bright future must do so with undimmed vision. It is his eyes that determine his functions properly. He should allow low vision optometrists to examine them. Whether they become weakened from age, from use or from about the remedial lenses that will be prescribed, he should let you look out on the world with the all-seeing eyes of youth.

WHAT SHAPE HAS MOTH HOLE?

On This by No Means Simple Question Hangs Result of an Omaha Lawsuit.

On whether a moth makes an oblong hole or a round hole when he attacks the contents of the more succulent portions of dad's last winter overcoat or sister's summer fur, hinges a law suit in Justice Collins' court, brought by a Omaha store against Miss Josephine Hill of Council Bluffs. The store seeks to enforce payment for an $80 suit which Miss Hill is alleged to have purchased, says the World-Herald.

According to the girl's testimony, a week after she bought the suit she found a moth hole in it. She returned it to the store. The suit was mended and given back to her with instructions to wear it 30 days and bring it to the store at the end of that time if not satisfactory.

Miss Hill testified she wore the suit for 28 days, placing it carefully up a hanger in her closet each night. At the end of the specified period, examination, she said, revealed not one little white remnant of holes. She returned to the store forty and fifty-two, who took the case into court.

After one clerk for the store told the court the holes complained of could be made by moths because any self-respecting moth eats a round hole, while those under discussion were distinctly oblong, and after Miss Hill had made a declaration of the hole and another clerk had suggested that Miss Hill might have worn the holes in the skirt by rubbing against her typewriter desk, Justice Collins looked wise and took the matter under advisement.

TERM THAT BANISHED ANGER

Appellation, Bestowed on "Bachelor Maids" Put Further Animosities Out of the Question.

The two Elton sisters, age thirty and thirty-two and very successful business women, like next door to the Smith sisters, about forty and fifty-two, who are also retired and given to the occupations of crocheting and quilt making. The Elton sisters speak of themselves as "old maids" and their Smith sisters as "peppy old maids." In order to distinguish between them. Also they are given to much pitying of the "bachelor maids."

But the other evening one of the Elton sisters, clad in a beautiful apron, was out sprinkling the lawn. As she moved around the house she heard the Smiths in conversation. "Yes, sister, age has its compensations," one was saying. "Now look at those 'old maids' and their peppy old maids."

That was enough for Miss Elton. With a rush she was in the house. "Oh, Grace," she told her sister, breathlessly, "those Smiths are real nice. We've got to stop calling them peppy old maids."

New Glass Industry

Important developments are eventuating in the new glass industry. One of Dartmouth, in Devonshire, England, in consequence of the discovery of a very large deposit of granite, a substance of much value in the manufacture of glass. According to experts, "granite contains not only silica, but potash, soda and alumina, which are the essential elements of glass-making. It is not only economical, but gives the best results in the production of glassware of the highest quality. It is stated that an experimental furnace has been in use for some time, two others are being constructed, and it is anticipated that the commercial manufacture will commence almost immediately—Scientific American.

"Gone Broke" in Vaudeville

It is said that the first man to undertake to produce vaudeville in America was Siles W. Steves of San Francisco, who inherited $400,000 from his uncle in 1885, and not being used to handling money in large quantities, started in to spend it freely. He went on a trip to Europe and spent most of his time at the Alhambra music hall in London, and launched a project to start the "New York Alhambra." His scheme was approved by a number of amusement people, and he hired hundreds of them to come to the United States. But his money ran out and he left his party on a boat in New York bay and disappeared.

Muscle Massage in Rickets

As an aftermath of undernourishment during the war period, rickets has become a common disease among children in Germany. To stimulate the flabby muscles of these little patients, without risking malformation of the softened bones, many curious devices have come into use, according to an illustrated story appearing in the August issue of Popular Mechanics magazine. In treating the jaw and neck muscles, for example, the subject is laid on an inclined board, while the surgeon stands at the head and manipulates the harness of two straps.

FOOL THE CUSTOMS OFFICERS

Canadian and Maine Farmers Said to Have Ingenious Systems of Smuggling Devices.

Entirely aside from questions of tariff reform, reciprocity and free-trade which have been the dominant theme of the constant lawmaking that goes on along the border, it is estimated that eight thousand persons are engaged in smuggling goods across the line.

One instance has been reported in which a party of schoolboys consisting in an old pung down a hill that slopes across the boundary, apparently for fun, brought with them at every trip a chest of tea, until fifty chests had been smuggled into Maine, contrary to law.

Again, an "aqueduct" of small lead pipe, half a mile long, was secretly laid from a river in the Dominion to a public house on the other side of the line, through which hundreds of barrels of gin and other liquors were smuggled. Not one such "aqueduct" is always restricted to liquors. A wooden spout was used for years to convey milk across the boundary.

The lawbreaker was a New Brunswick farmer named Ogilvie, and a neighbor across the line named Armstrong. Armstrong raised about six hundred bushels of oats on his farm and sold ten times that quantity to the lumber camps. The customs officers watched his premises and searched them over in the season, but were unable to discover anything wrong until after he moved away, when they found a square spout, made of boards and buried under the snow and miles of brush, which extended from Ogilvie's barn to a bin in the Maine man's granary. Inside this conduit was a cow belt provided with tin cups and attached to a winch that could be turned by a crank in Ogilvie's barn. Ogilvie's companion.

ENGAGED IN SPLENDID WORK

New York School Devoted to the Task of Making Cripples and Unfortunates Self-Supporting.

From his association with the late Rev. H. Rowwell Bates, founder of the orphaned children's home, George A. Merritt learned how little was being done to make cripples almost universal, and the belief that owing to various afflictions these unhappy ones must always be a burden on others. This was not his belief, and so strong did he hold an opposite conviction that, with the aid of a few charitable persons whom he inspired with it, he founded the Path school at 60 West Twenty-Fifth street, New York, in order to teach cripples commercial and railroad telegraphy and thus give to them that greatest boon, a means of livelihood. This school is still going, but it has already proved itself many times over. It trains legless, armless, and deformed persons, but especially the young who are thus afflicted, either in the course laid out by the school or in some other line most suitable to individual cases. It is free to all, non-sectarian, and it has already in its short life lifted nearly 500 poor creatures from a state of dependence, or even penury, to positions where by honest labor they can support themselves and have the joy that comes from self-support.

"Isle of Artists"

An island in Lake Como is to be known as the "Isle of Artists." And thereby hangs a tale. The owner of the island, Sig. Capriani, was a great admirer of King Albert of Belgium, and in his will he left it to him with the wish that it might serve some noble purpose which Italy could share. King Albert, through his minister of arts and sciences, has handed over the property to the Italian government with the object of making the spot a central retreat and center of activity for those who have devoted their lives to art. Under the Academy of Milan villas are to be built for artists and the place will be transformed into a little capital for promoting the fine and industrial arts in the Italian lakes district.—Chicago Daily News.

Why Ship is Feminine

A ship is invariably spoken of as of the feminine gender; this is traced to the ancient Greeks, who called all ships feminine names out of respect to Athena, goddess of the sea. Friday is believed to be an unlucky day by those who are superstitious. It is derived from the fact it was the day of Christ's crucifixion, as well as the one on which Adam and Eve ate the forbidden fruit. Few, perhaps, are aware why a weather-cock is frequently attached to a church steeple. This is believed to remind people of Peter's denial of Christ. It is a common belief that peacock's feathers are unclean. This is due to the tradition that the bird opened the gate of paradise to the serpent.

Ostrich Eggs Show '33 Spoil

Ostrich eggs keep a long time before spoiling, according to a report by M. H. Juselle to the French Acclimatization society. He tells of ostrich eggs sent to him from Telmar on August 22, 1918, which spoiled him at Mareuil on December 12 still perfectly good. M. Hermentier had eggs that he opened and into which he dipped as he needed them; this for several days.

La Nature suggests that if a regular supply of ostrich eggs in large enough quantities could be arranged for it would be a boon to the confectionary and baking trades as one ostrich egg contained considerably more than a quart of goodness.
