Beautifying the Railways

(1) The Station Garden at Milton, Ont.
(2) The Fountain in the Station Garden at McAdam, N.B.
(3) The Station and Office at Woodstock, N.E.

At the present time of the year when the snow covers the ground and decidedly mingles the station section gardens along the Canadian Pacific Railway with their profusion of shrubbery and flowers. It is the policy of the Canadian Pacific Railway to establish permanent gardens, and the C.P.R. Stational Committee gives every possible assistance in carrying on this work; thus every year sees an increase in the number of permanent gardens held out.

In carrying out this work a great number of trees, shrubs and perennial plants are used annually. Suitable trees such as ash, elm, maple and poplar are supplied and shrubbery such as honey-suckle, lilac, hollyhock, spirea, elder, weigela, etc., together with perennial plants such as peonies, delphinium, galliardia, cornus, sweet william, phlox, pink and others are supplied. Vines are also supplied to cover out-buildings and fences. For this purpose Virginia creepers, hops and Japanese Ivy are considered the best.

The first display of color in the winter is obtained from the seed of tulip bulbs in the fall, but owing to their short life and labor involved, the distribution is limited to large stations and terminals.

Following this, standard annual seed packages are supplied on request to all those interested. The varieties are specially selected for their hardiness and with consideration to the display they will give. Those chosen are nasturtium, marigold, zinnia, sunflower, cosmos, alyssum and others. These seeds can be sown in the open and very good results quickly obtained.

For formal displays and formal flower-beds, a large quantity of bedding plants are annually supplied and this list comprises cosmos, geraniums, cosmos, sinula, asters, lobelia, the latter two varieties being mainly used for borders.

Gradually, however, this class of plants is being replaced by perennial stock which requires less manual work and comes up from year to year living through the severest winters. In the Lake Superior country perennials are used. This class is a very hardy class and has been found to thrive well in that part of the country.

It is pleasing to remember that this work is to be directly credited to the agents and other employees, for it is carried out mostly in their own time and through enthusiasm in beautifying their own living quarters. The C.P.R. recognizes their effort by presenting prizes on each division according to merit. These are keenly contested for, and in their distribution due consideration is taken of individual effort and the results achieved therefrom.

One important measure is to improve conditions around track houses and points where employees gather and accordingly make their surroundings pleasant and attractive.

Under the guidance of a Committee which includes fully qualified foresters and horticulturists, plans are carefully laid and the work carried out under their direction. The Committee is constantly in touch with other horticultural experts, including agricultural colleges and horticultural societies so that no stone is left unturned to keep the work up to a modern standard.

Many English Notables, Including Famous Beauty, Arc in the Divorce Courts

In the past eighteen years the number of cases tried by English divorce courts has doubled, but the damages awarded have been halved. The increase is ascribed partly to the war and its after effects and partly to the increased facilities for divorce. Perhaps the increase has had something to do with the reduction in the damages, judges and juries being a good deal harder to shock nowadays and not regarding cause for divorce as so damaging an affair as they did when such cases were fewer. The nobility figures in several cases that are now awaiting disposal, and persons prominent on the stage in some others. It is only cases such as these that have retained their power to interest the public. The ordinary divorce case attracts no more interest than the ordinary motor accident, even though the English papers publish details that a Canadian paper would print. The argument put forward in behalf of such hoary offenders as the London Times is that newspaper publicity is part of the punishment that an erring wife or husband should be obliged to suffer, and that the knowledge that scandalous details may be given to the public acts as a deterrent.

Perhaps the most conspicuous of the present petitioners is the Countess of Drogheda. Last May she obtained a decree against the earl for a forfeiture of conjugal rights, but this appeal to come home he has ignored, and now she asks for her freedom. Whether she gets it or not, she has announced that her next move will be a hunting expedition to East Africa. The countess has been married twelve years, her husband being the tenth of the line and a representative peer of Ireland. The countess is one of the ladies whose photographs are to be bought in the shops, for she was rated as one of the most beautiful women in England. In Scotland, where she was born, her rank was even higher, for she has been described as the "most charming woman north of the Tweed." She was active in the war, in which she earned still another title, as the "Flying Countess," on account of her interest in the aerial forces.

Another beautiful woman according to a verdict attributed to Sir Philip Barron Jones, the most beautiful woman in the world — is Mrs. Buckmaster, known on the stage as Miss Gladys Cooper. She, too, has wearied of married life with her gallant captain, who married her thirteen years ago. She has obtained a decree for restitution against her husband, and if he does not return to her in six months or make an adequate defence, she will be granted her divorce. At present Miss Cooper is appearing in "The Sign on the Door," in which she is said to give one of those "tearing, torturing performances in which she has few equals." If all goes well, Miss Cooper will appear on this side of the ocean next year. Some time ago she was awarded $5,000 against a newspaper which said that "Heaven and earth are being moved to hold in check a scandal in the Ireland." Miss Cooper induced a jury to believe that this referred to her, and that the main action was that her husband was about to divorce her.

Another actress, Miss Iris Hoey, who in married life is Mrs. Manlyter Leeds, wife of an actor, has been married ten years. She has now obtained a divorce. It is announced that she will shortly be married to Captain Howard, in a case which is being defended in that of Lady Synnott Walker, who asks for divorce from her husband, Captain Sir Robert James Milo Walker, Bart. The Princess Protiva, daughter of the Rajah of Cochin Bharar, is being sued for divorce by her husband, Lionel Maudslayi. This case has been on before, but the judge was not satisfied with the evidence brought against the princess, and asked for corroboration. In another case an Egyptian prince is cited as co-respondent.
