

FISH STORIES
Some men are very virtuous until they meet temptation. They never fall from virtue until they get a chance. Their truthful habits save them from all exaggeration, but fishing would put you in a trance. They'll tell you how they caught it and what they used for bait. The time, the place, the circumstance, they cheerfully will state. And when you ask them where it is and say: "Produce the goods!" They have the nerve to tell you, "Praps they lost it in the woods." But still you'll never catch 'em confessing that they lie. They'll tell you something as they look you in the eye. And when of hearing what they caught you're weariest, so you say. They start a brand new set of lies on those that get away.

Get the Cream of the Trade
"What lovely styles! How do you manage to get all these delightful novelties?" said the new customer as she looked around her.
"I got tired of seeing my customers boarding the trains to buy elsewhere, just because I didn't have some novelty that was being advertised."
"Whenever a new style makes a decided hit, the wholesaler or manufacturer's salesman calls me on Long Distance, and tells me about it, and I order a few."
"I haven't seen prettier vells, smarter stockings or gloves, georgette-crepes or gingham anywhere. And I see you have the new music, too. How perfectly splendid! They leave me no excuse at all for going up to town to buy."
That's just one of the many things Long Distance does for small-town merchants, enabling Dry Goods, Hardware, Grocery, Paint and Shoe Stores to obtain new styles immediately and cater to the progressive people in their town—the cream of the trade.
