With all due respects to that gentleman's efficiency, I would suggest that he remove that liquid silver instrument of torture to a position with a more southerly aspect.

The writer had the pleasure of viewing that old glass a few weeks ago, and there it was, just what cheap, common garden, fifty-cent article, on a nail, in an exposed position, facing north, open to all the winds that blow down the railway tracks and through the rocky ravines of the north shore of Lake Ontario, shores of Lake Superior—the C. P. R.

Yes, of course, it's cold, freezing, roaring, blasting, cold, that congeals the blood in one's body, I had the misfortune to work with it at Schreiber, just a few miles north of White River, as a roundhouse shipper and, believe me or not, I have had the big mogul engine stalled with 125 pounds of steam on—the piston rods frozen and icicles hanging down from the firebox, making a solid pack to the rails.

Truly, one can smell the bears, wolves and seals on the breeze that comes down from the pole up there on the fringe of civilization.

But for all that it's not so cold or tragic as the good folks at White River Station make it out to be.

Canadians and Gold Coast.
The Gold Coast of West Africa, extending for 334 miles along the Gulf of Guinea between the French Ivory Coast and Togoland, formerly German territory, but now under a British mandate, has as its Governor and Commander-in-Chief a native of Toronto, Sir Frederick Gordon Gugg-enberg, K.C.M.G., D.S.O. In his annual address to the Legislative Council he expresses the firm conviction that the future moral and material prosperity of the race of that country lies in the steady expansion of education in literature, trades, professions and citizenship. This all requires money, and in order to increase its trade and its revenue the Government is building at Takoradi a deep-water harbor to cost $2,000,000.
The contractors for this work, Messrs. Stewart and McDowell, are Canadians. The Governor's private secretary, Mr. Vincent Basevi, was at one time a newspaperman in Toronto.

Force of Habit.
Retired Auctioneer: "And what can you give my daughter?" Prospective Son-in-Law: "A thousand a year, a car, a country

Retired Auctioneer, absent-mindedly: "Sold!"

Family Resemblance.
Willie: "Oh, mother, the baby takes after grandpa!" Mother: "Yes, I think he does a bit!" Willie: "Oh, rather! It is tooth-less."

Hindus Are Superstitious.
Among the Hindus it is considered exceedingly unlucky for a person to look back when he leaves his house.
