Milton's Musical Festival
The musical festival and tattoo held at Milton last Friday night was a grand success. Long before the parade of the "massed bands" from Acton, Georgetown and Milton, both sides of Main Street were crowded with hundreds of spectators from all parts of the country, who were delighted with the excellent playing of the seventy musicians, who made a good appearance in their uniforms. Both the visiting bands were accompanied by citizens from their respective towns. At the agricultural grounds a varied programme was rendered by the three bands, which was greatly enjoyed by the many hundreds who were present. This was the last of the series of town festivals this year, but it is likely they will continue next year.
