

Massed Selling by Long Distance

Right now, all over Canada, salesmen are making appointments with customers in distant cities, foreclosing competition and getting the orders on the books.

At no time in history has it been more important to the business man to be in many places in one day. The more places he can be in, the more goods he will sell.

No man can be in two places at once except he use Long Distance.

In many cases the line that separates the efficient from the inefficient is the thin copper line of Long Distance."

BEDDING FOR STABLES

Straw, Peat Moss, Sawdust and Shavings Considered.

Straw Preferred for Many Reasons
—Measuring Hay in the Stow and in the Stack — Hand-feeding Lambs—Farm Trimmers Required.
(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

The materials used for bedding domestic animals are generally straw from the grain fields, peat moss from the swamp, or shavings from the saw or planing mill. Straw is used to a greater extent than any other material for reasons of its abundance; secondly because the stable offers a medium for transpiring this by-product of the field to manure, and thereby facilitating its return to the land; thirdly because it is a good absorber of liquids. Straws from oats, peas, rye, wheat and oats vary in value as a litter or bedding material. The hard rye and wheat straws, while durable in the wear of animals, is not as good an absorber as the softer oat, barley and pea straws. Wheat straw is being highly valued as a feed and its greatest value as a stable bedding. The nitrogen, potash and phosphorus content in straw is relatively low, but the value of the manure resulting from straw is so great that it is not as great as straw. Sawdust and shavings, while serving the purpose of a litter or bedding material, add little to the value of the straw. Sawdust and shavings, while serving the purpose of a litter or bedding material, add little to the value of the straw.

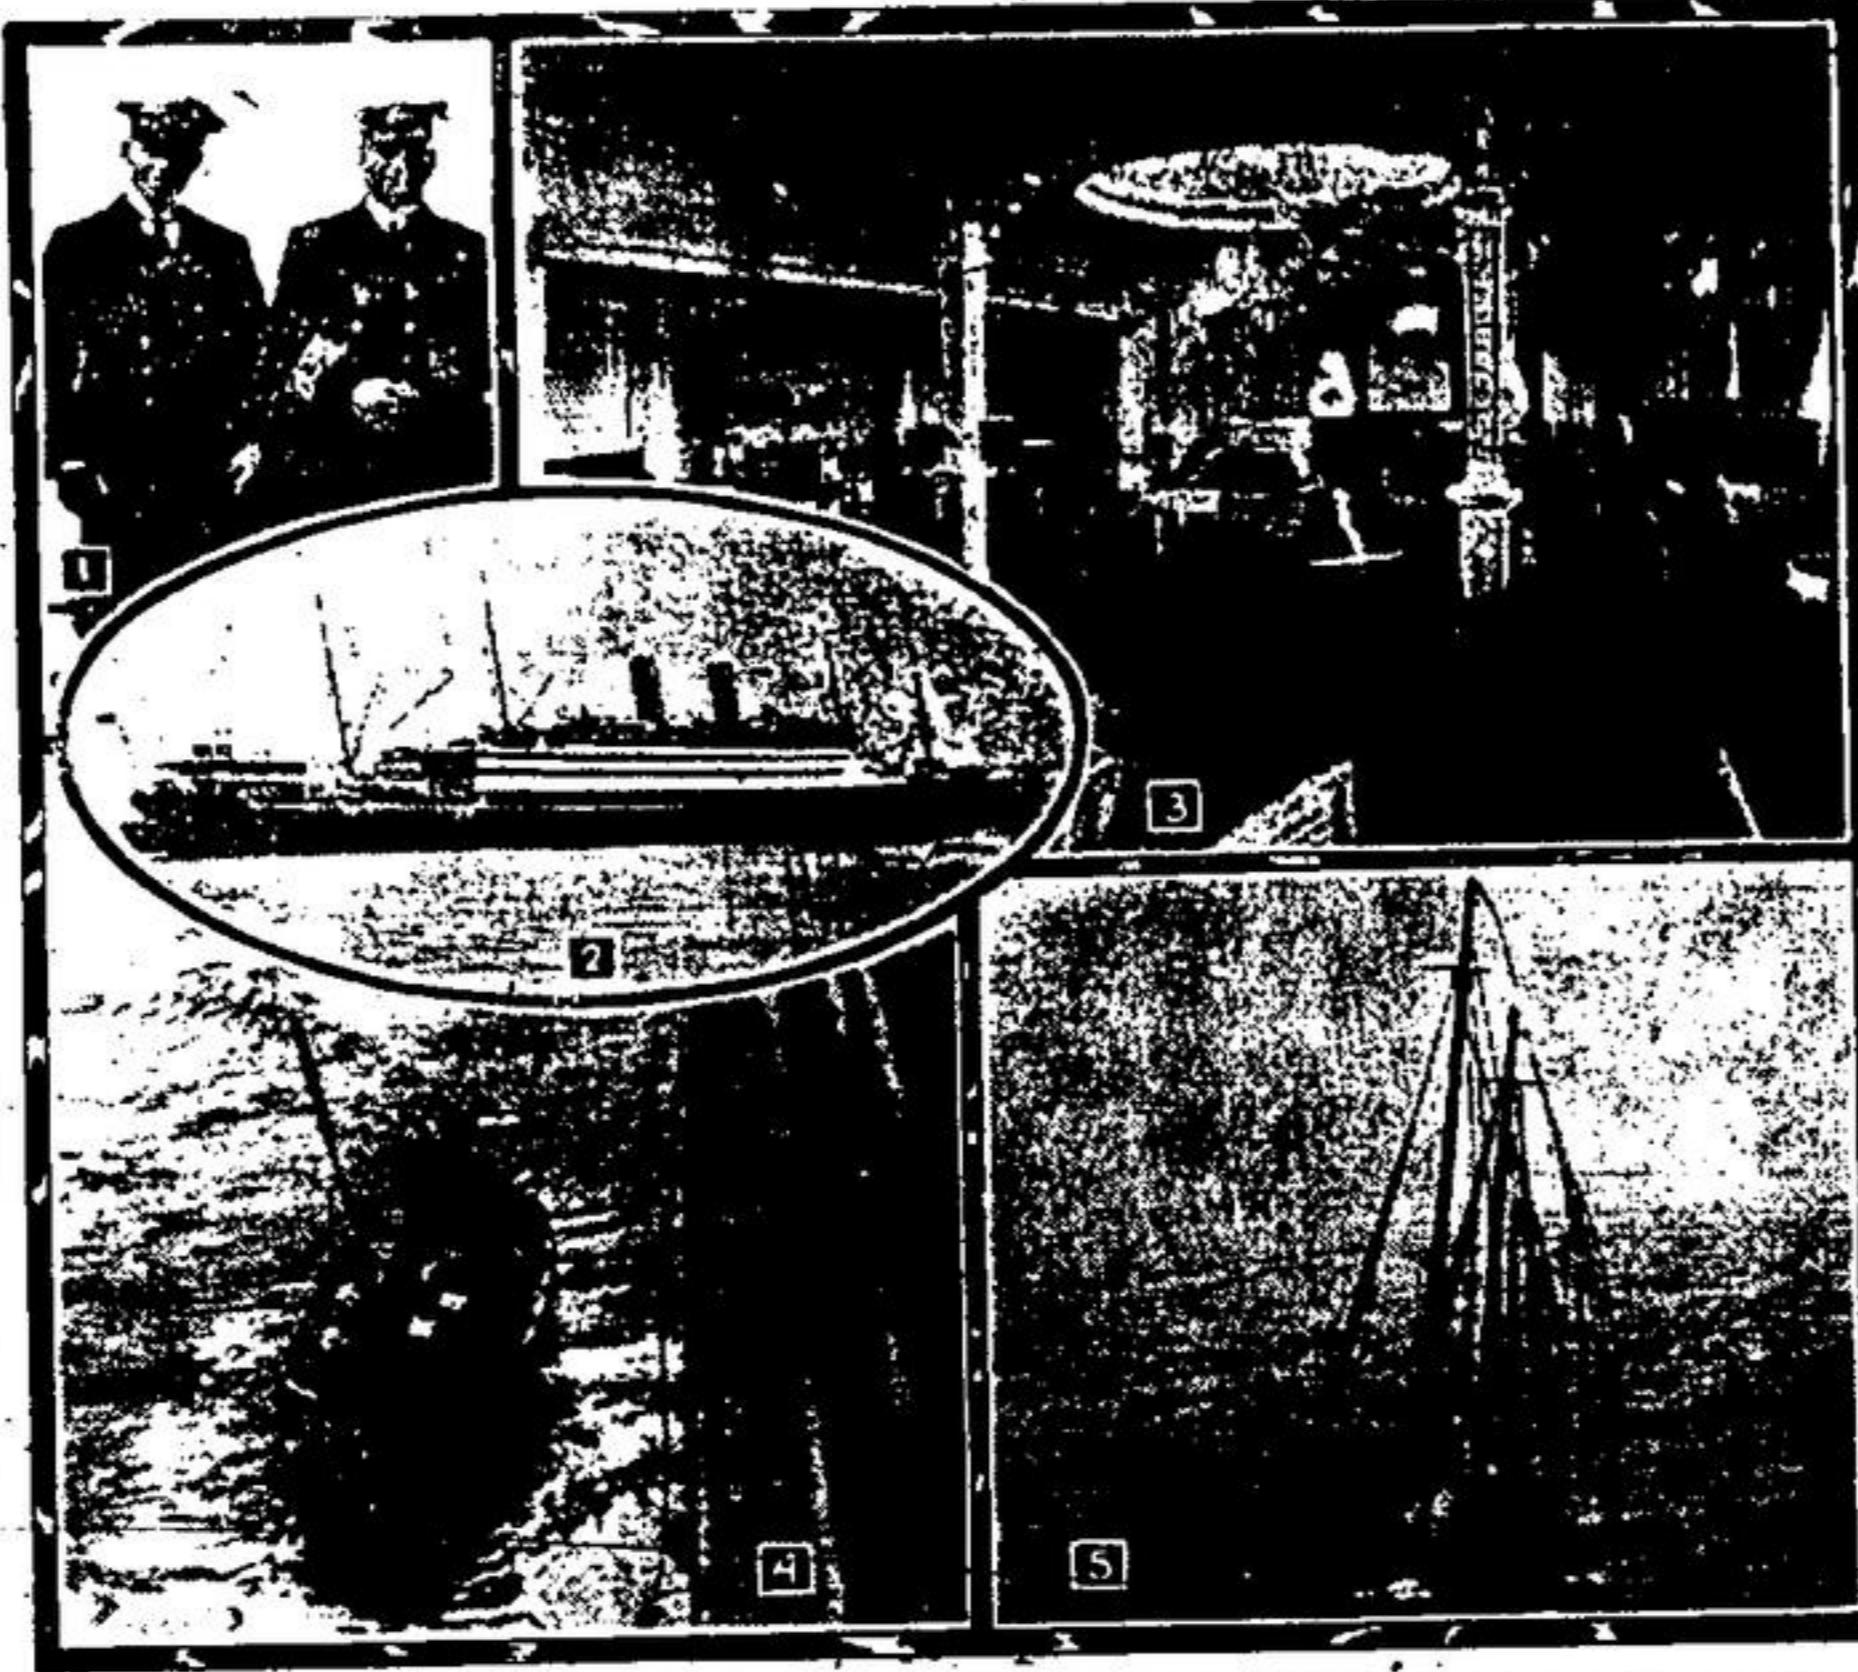

Peat moss is also valuable as a bedding material. The nitrogen, potassium and phosphorus content in peat moss is relatively low, but the value of the manure resulting from peat moss is so great that it is not as great as straw. Sawdust and shavings, while serving the purpose of a litter or bedding material, add little to the value of the straw.

A DARING RESCUE AT SEA

Unusual pictures of the sinking of a Lunenburg, N.S. schooner, 1—Capt. Gillies of the "Scotland" and Chief Officer McMurray alight, who commanded the lifeboat that made the rescue. 2—The "Empress of Scotland" 3—A glimpse of the lounge aboard the "Scotland". 4—The return of the lifeboat. 5—The last few moments of the "Clinton".

THE tale of an heroic rescue at sea, and of a desperate battle with the elements to keep a sinking vessel afloat until help arrived was told with the Canadian Pacific steamship "Empress of Scotland" arrived at New York recently with Captain Aaron Kearley and his crew of five of the tiny schooner "Clinton".

It was an epic coming on the part of the tiny Nova Scotians and of the coolness and heroism of British seamanship in which Chief Officer W. McMurtry and Captain Kearley, old schooner played the leading roles.

Total helpless in a terrific storm, the "Clinton" bound for Halifax from Fortune Bay, Newfoundland, was in a sinking condition when it was sighted by the crew of the liner. The commanding officer, the liner's commander, was compelled to abandon the lifeboat in which the schooner's crew was rescued because of the heavy seas.

"For three days and nights we had manned the pump, Captain Kearley said. "We had given up hope and were completely exhausted when we sighted the steamer. We hoisted the crew of the schooner lost everything except the clothes they wore, but were smiling and eager to get on shore when they arrived. One suffered any ill effects from the long dash across the ocean.

Chief Officer McMurtry, his brother officers said, has play the part of rescuer in several sea disasters, and received a silver loving cup from the Queen of Japan for his rescue of a crew of Japanese steamship in the China Sea several years ago. Other officers of the liner have also been decorated for bravery, including First Officer Ronald Stewart received the Victoria Cross for sinking a German submarine while commanding of a "mystery ship".

"The crew were clinging to ropes, and every wave broke over the tiny craft. The sea was so heavy that we could not get alongside, and all were utterly exhausted and half dead from cold when we got them in," he said.

"It was a ticklish task getting back to the "Empress," he continued. "We finally got alongside, but it was so rough we had to abandon the lifeboat. The liner had to jump in to the swelling waves. We had some trouble in picking them up, and all were severely bruised and half dead from cold when we got them in," he said.

"For three days and nights we had mopped up the deck, and were completely exhausted when we sighted the steamer. We hoisted the crew of the schooner lost everything except the clothes they wore, but were smiling and eager to get on shore when they arrived.

Captain Gillies is Commander of the Order of the British Empire.

All of the wrecked schooner's crew are under 30 years of age and unmarried, Capt. Kearley said. They were given a hearty welcome by the liner's crew.

The liner is the great Canadian Pacific liner now cruising the Mediterranean carrying a large party of tourists from all over the United States and Canada. The liner will be back upon the regular Canadian Pacific trans-Atlantic route. The remarkable photo of the sinking schooner and the lifeboat were carried by a passenger on the "Scotland".
