The principal product of the factories of Fredericton are boots and shoes, lumber, manufactures of wood, canoes, motor boats, leather, concrete blocks and farm implements. The annual value of its manufactured products is approximately two million dollars. The city is surrounded by a good agricultural country, and the Dominion Government has one of its experimental farms over 500 acres in extent, in its vicinity.

The special train left Fredericton Saturday morning at 8.30 a.m. for St. John's.

By the "Valley Line" operated by the C.N.R. the party travelled to St. John, following the St. John River to where it empties into St. John Harbor and the Bay of Fundy. For over eighty miles the river is in full view and the scenery is unsurpassed anywhere on the continent.

"At that point where the River St. John enters the harbor is what Mark Twain dubbed the 'reversible falls.' Apt was the term, for while there is no sheer drop from top to bottom, when the incoming tide rushes into the rock-walled channel it is at times higher than the river level, and consequently falls up-stream, while when the tide recedes from the channel the water falls in the other direction. From the high bridges which cross the gorge the visitor obtains a magnificent view of these 'reversible falls,' the like of which are said not to exist in any other part of the world. The gorge also possesses a whirlpool in which debris is sometimes engulfed and held prisoner for weeks at a time. According to tradition, in this 'whirlpool' a floating tree was upon which [illegible] escaped. This is [illegible] Indian who [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]
